Vol. LXXXI. JUNE 13, 1908. No. 2099.

CERTAINLY one of the most remarkable aspects of the existing business depression is the extent to which the old rates of wages have been maintained. Rarely before in the history of the country has a more sudden contraction taken place in business than that which occurred last fall and winter. There is no precise way of estimating the shrinkage in the volume of business transacted; but it is probable that the average diminution in all the industrial branches of economic production amounted to almost thirty per cent., and it was only the relative prosperity of the farmers which prevented the situation from becoming much worse. Even so, the proportion of the laborers employed in the mechanical trades, manufacturing and mining, who suddenly found themselves out of employment was probably as much as forty per cent., and while this proportion has diminished somewhat since last November, it remains very large. The effect of such a sudden business contraction is usually an equally sharp diminution of wages. Such a diminution took place after the panic of 1873, and to a smaller extent, after the panic of 1893. But the panic of 1907 has had no effect upon wages corresponding to its severity. Of course, there are thousands of individual cases in which men are working for less money now than they did a year ago, and there are certain instances in which entire trades have accepted a reduction of remuneration. But these instances are much more rare than might have been anticipated. It looks, on the whole, as if the country would pass through one of the severest industrial crises in its history and find at the end thereof wages at substantially the same level as in a period of abounding prosperity.

HOW has it come about that wages have been maintained at something like their former level? And what effects may be expected to follow from such an unusual condition? These are questions which deserve answering with much elaboration and care, and within the limits of a paragraph only a few intimations of the proper answers can be given. In general, however, wages have been maintained partly because of the exodus to Europe of hundreds of thousands of recent immigrants—an exodus which has reached unprecedented proportions, and which has done much to relieve the strain. A still more important cause is, however, the superior ability of the American workingman to pull through a period of adversity. He has enjoyed many years of abundant work and comparatively good wages. He has saved money and has become himself a capitalist in a small way. He can afford to refuse work rather than accept it at a sacrifice and that is what has actually taken place in a great many cases. Every considerable employer of labor must have been impressed by the stubborn insistence with which men out of work have refused to accept work at the price of a concession of wages. Of course, many thousands have done so, but the concessions have been small and the understanding has been that the earlier rate would soon be restored. Still more important, however, than the ability of the workingman to refuse to make concessions has been the indisposition of capitalists to insist on concessions. The railroad companies and other large employing agencies have made no concerted and vigorous attempt to force on their employees a lower scale of wages. They have threatened to do so; and they have grumbled because they were unable to do so; but they have, none the less, refrained. And they have undoubtedly refrained because they were afraid to raise the issue. The only possible method of forcing a substantial reduction in wages would have been to turn off the employees who would not accept the reduction, and that would have meant a prolonged and embittered period of industrial warfare. With a presidential election at hand, and with the agitation against corporations but little diminished, the big employers could not risk the possible political consequences of a series of strikes and lockouts. They have, consequently, done little or nothing to bring about a general reduction of wages; and the country has so far been spared the radical political agitation which followed on the panic of 1893. Just what the remoter consequence will be of the maintenance of wages is not so easily ascertained, but to all appearances it should help to make the recovery in business earlier than would otherwise have been the case. A general reduction in wages means a more permanent diminution of the consuming power of the country than will take place under current conditions. As the number of the employed increases they will almost immediately regain their former power of consumption; and this fact will undoubtedly hasten the coming of the time when at least a normal amount of business will be transacted. On the other hand, the fact that wages remained high during a period of depression will make employers unwilling to submit to any further advances in wages during a period of prosperity. As soon as they realize that every increase in the level of wages is a permanent increase, they will have a much stronger interest in fighting such increases as long as they have any chance of success in so doing.

IT IS APPARENT that the advocates of the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn will eventually carry their point. They have the necessary votes in the Board of Estimate, and they will use them for the purpose of fastening like a leech upon the municipal treasury an unprofitable subway. The city cannot afford to build it. In building it, the city will sacrifice more necessary and more generally useful transit improvements. And after it is built it will not pay its operating expenses for many years. Mayor McClellan and Comptroller Metz deserve the utmost credit for the stiff fight which they have put up on behalf of the general public interest in this matter. They have exhibited an independence and a steadiness of judgment in the face of newspaper attacks and the clamors of local public opinion that indicate how much unpopularity they are willing to incur in the defence of a sound municipal policy. The extraordinary aspect of it is that the Public Service Commission has yielded to this clamor while two elected officials have stood out against it. One would have expected the commission to be independent and capable of resisting an unreasoning outcry because it is appointed by the Governor, and is directly responsible to him. But instead, it has exhibited an utter lack of backbone. It has shifted the responsibility for the Fourth Avenue subway to the back of the old Rapid Transit Commission, and its members have claimed that in laying out subways they can ignore the financial condition of the city. If the route is wrong, that is the mistake of the former Rapid Transit Commission. If the city cannot afford the money, the responsibility rests with the Board of Estimate. The Public Service Commission apparently intends to lay out subways and urge their construction, irrespective of their effect upon a comprehensive plan of transit development and irrespective of the financial condition of the city. The ill effects of a divided administrative responsibility are plainly to be seen in this instance. The majority of the Board of Estimate shelters itself behind the Public Service Commission. The Commission shifts its responsibility upon the old Rapid Transit Board and upon the Board of Estimate. And the result will be the spending of $16,000,000 and more upon a subway benefitting 150,000 people, while 3,000,000 people in other parts of city are totally neglected.

THE BRIDGE DEPARTMENT has recently announced that the Blackwells Island bridge would be opened for traffic some time during the coming year; and this announcement calls attention once more to the absurd manner in which these bridges have been planned. The city will have spent about $12,000,000 in constructing a bridge, which, when it is finished, cannot be put to any useful service for an indefinite number of years. It is planned to accommodate an enormous traffic, but no means have been taken to develop that traffic. The construction of a bridge terminating where the new Blackwells Island bridge terminates is precisely comparable to building an eight-track subway from Forty-second Street to Canal Street, and then leaving it wholly without further connections either to the north or the south. Of course, eventually, the terminals of the Blackwells Island bridge will be connected with those parts of the two boroughs which passengers wish to reach, but such connections should have been an essential part of the original scheme. Owing, however, to a division of responsibility between the bridge departments and the transit departments of the city governments, nothing has been done to make the Blackwells Island bridge really useful. For many years the city will be losing the several thousands of dollars a day which the bridge will be costing for construction and maintenance. It will not get the money back either in increased taxes or in the increased economic efficiency of its citizens. The bridge will be used only to an extremely small percentage of its capacity until the terminals are connected with the centres of traffic on both sides of the East River. There can be no doubt, for instance, that trains should be run over the bridge and directly into an East Side subway, and it should be a matter for careful consideration whether the additional traffic from this source could be safely poured into a Lexington Avenue tunnel. But it will probably be ten years before such a connection will be made and in the meantime the city will have lost a sum of money equal probably to two-thirds the cost of the bridge itself. This is the sort of management which wastes our municipal resources and makes New York one of the poorest among the rich cities of the world.

THE BUILDING CODE AND THE RIGHTS OF OWNERS.

THIS is the second year of the proceedings for a revision of the Building Code, following a preliminary period of agitation and anticipation. Why should so much time be consumed, and is the long uncertainty one of the causes for the stagnation in building operations, or in anywise inimical to property interests?

A job well done is worth the time it takes, is a building maxim. "Political exigencies" can be set down as one of the reasons for the long time taken for the revision—and political exigencies are difficult to analyze sometimes—and the building and real estate interests are not in this case particularly concerned about them.

The present commission is expected to submit its report in September, leave three months for public hearings and corrections, and conclude its labors in December, which will correspond to the length of service of the first commission. Inquiry does not disclose any marked objection to this schedule on the part of building interests, or that any injustice is being worked by it. Rather it is hoped and expected that in the vital essentials the code will be worked out more scientifically, and embody more fully the best architectural thought of the time, with due regard for the natural rights of owners. Particularly in the matters of height and area of buildings, interior trim, masonry (including concrete construction), the fire limits and the discretionary power of the Superintendents of Buildings, the prevailing thought is that too much care and research cannot be expended.

That a large amount of work for which plans have been filed and figured is being held up, for one cause on another, is known to everybody. Likewise that the filings at the Department of Buildings in all the boroughs are far below a normal number. But for this no one blames the Building Code revision. At the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings the occupation permits for tenement houses (which represent the completion of contracts) average only two in a week. Not in many years has building been at so low an ebb.

This week's cut in the price of structural steel, taken with the lower cost of all other materials entering into building construction, is expected to uncover in due time a large amount of work of the first class, though some time must elapse before all the building arrangements can be effected, and in the meantime the national political uncertainties are expected to be removed.

A Large Problem.

PRESIDENT HOPPER, of the Building Trades Employers' Association, considers that there is a great necessity for the revision of the code. He said this week:

"I appreciated this fact on June 1, 1904, at which time I wrote to the Borough President and called his attention to this very important matter. It is a large problem, with many interests to consider and many questions of great importance to decide upon. For years, to my knowledge, all builders have been working under serious disadvantages. The present committee of revision are wrestling with the problem, and expect to complete their work before the summer season closes.

"We cannot say that the building interests are suffering any financial embarrassments at the present time, as there is so little doing or contemplated at the moment in the new building direction."

Such Work Necessarily Slow.

AN important member of last year's commission, Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, for years the chief engineer in the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings, cannot see that any building interests are being affected by the apparent delay in completing the revision. He also said:

"Any such work must necessarily be slow, and I believe that the more consideration the Building Code receives the better for it. In speaking with parties interested in building operations, I find that valid objections had been made to several matters in the report made by the last commission. I for one did not favor passing the Building Code as proposed by last year's commission as it was. Ample time should have been given to that code for general discussion and the whole matter referred back to the old commission. The present commission has probably started out on entirely different lines and may be doing the entire work over again, which will very easily explain the delay."

The Natural Rights of Owners.

HAVING only recently returned from abroad, after an absence of some months, Mr. Charles Buek, of the Board of Examiners, and prominent also in the Realty League, said he had been prevented from following closely the developments in regard to the new code, but in answer to a query he said:

"While uncertainty in any business matter is more or less harmful at all times, yet in this case the delay in regard to the Building Code is beneficial rather than otherwise. The code is almost certain to be amplified and extended, made more complex, restrictive and embarrassing to the builder, and I believe our present condition to be better than it will be under any new code we are now likely to obtain. The tendency of all our legislation affecting buildings has been to circumscribe the freedom and discretion of the individual with hard and fast rules, putting continually increasing limitations on the natural right of the owner to do as he likes with his own, and compelling the use of materials and methods that have made our city the most expensive to build in in the civilized world."

EFFECT OF RAISING BUILDING STANDARDS.

The raising of building standards by force of law did not, said Mr. Buek, always work advantageously to real estate interests:

"For instance, extending the fire limits to Queens and Richmond or to the outlying parts of Brooklyn, compelling the erection of $10,000 improvements on $500 lots, is certainly not going to help the property affected, although indirectly it may keep up rents in Manhattan tenement districts.

"Again, restricting at this late day the height of office buildings when so many have already been built without restriction, may make these latter more valuable by giving them a monopoly of light and air, but certainly will not increase the value of property yet to be built upon or rebuilt. If the proposed limitation discussed in your columns last week is any criterion as to spirit and method, the effect must be confusion worse confounded."

POWERFUL INTERESTS AT WORK.

Asked as to the possibility of the clashing of interests, Mr. Buek said:

"I am not in position to express any opinion, but it will be fair to assume that special and powerful interests will take good care to be well protected under the new code, and the people at large being entirely unrepresented, will have to bear the expense in more ways than one. The great public is, of course, apathetic in building matters, and even many real estate owners whose interests will be seriously affected, feel that the subject is too technical for their ken.

"Under these circumstances the new code is pretty sure to be fuller even than the old of minute and elaborate requirements, often difficult to understand and more difficult to apply, and will probably largely increase the supervisory powers of the superintendents, which have already been carried so far that a property owner cannot in this city shift a plumbing fixture, or put in a new gas outlet, without the formality of an application to and consent from the Building Bureau."

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

An authority has pointed out that more loss of property may be ascribed to the communication of fire through unprotected openings in buildings than to any other cause. In fact entire sections have been destroyed simply because flames have found ready ingress and egress through openings, such as ventilators and doors. According to statistics, most of the large fires in the United States have occurred in this manner.

The matter has become so serious that the underwriters are now insisting on fireproof construction, especially as to windows, doors and skylights. In order to lend the authorities greater assistance in guarding against costly conflagrations, it might be well for the property owner when remodeling old structures to replace worn out wooden sashes and frames with those made of sheet metal. The cost is not prohibitive and metal has its advantages.

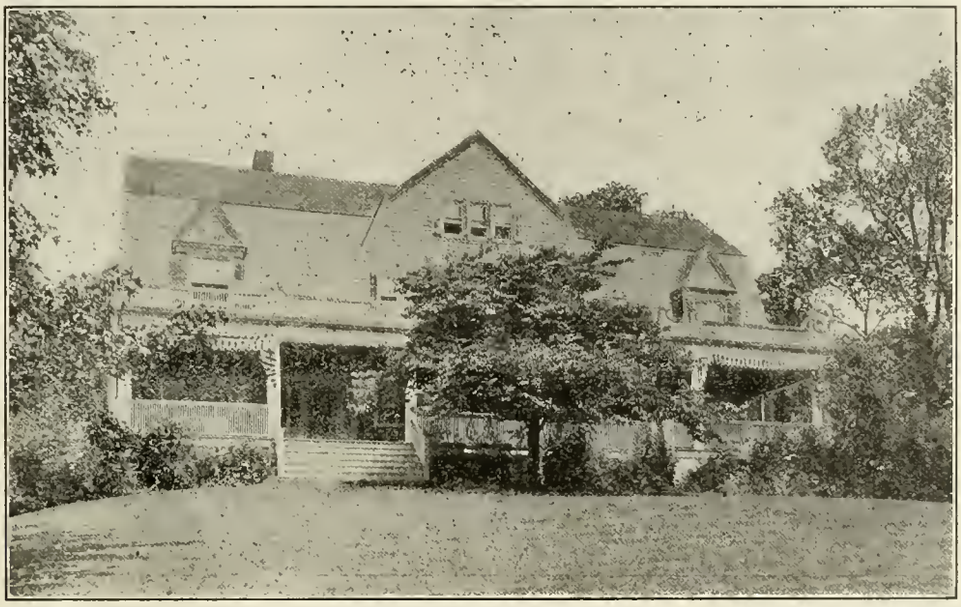
CONSTRUCTION

A HOUSE IN THE NEAR-COUNTRY

ABOUT this time of the year people in the city begin to dream about a home in the near country. In most dreams it is a modest house, within striking distance of business, preferably in sight of tide-water, and set amid trees and lawns. Everybody builds his castle in these early summer days. The current magazines fan the flame of interest, and the real estate columns of the dailies add fuel. Houses must be dreamed about before they can become realities.

Pictures of shady verandas, a motor-boat anchored in the river at the foot of the lawn, and an automobile at the door dance enchantingly through the imagination of the tied-to-the city man. Prominent in the foreground is the automobile. This is a contrivance that has added a large voltage to the strength of the pull toward the country—and the motor-boat is pulling, too. The fascinations of the suburban cottage alone many have until now successfully resisted (though they would really like to have a place for the bulldog), but the possibility of having an automobile on the premises, tugs them off their mental cleats.

"Perhaps there is no sort of habitation about which there exists a greater curiosity in the minds of the great American middle class than one finds to-day in regard to the suburban or the country house," is the surmise of a writer in the current Architectural Record Magazine. He regrets a certain lack of honesty in planning such a home, on the part of the owner—a lack of honesty to himself and to his family that is responsible for the often ridiculous miniature mansions:



The owner would have his house planned and designed as though he were building chiefly to afford his friends an interesting and diverting place in which to hold social intercourse. His real purpose, namely, to provide a comfortable home for his family is forced into the background, and in place of the few roomy chambers which his domestic establishment requires, he permits his house to be divided up into a greater number of smaller rooms, none of which is adequate to serve, with any measure of success, the purposes for which it might, under other conditions, be intended. Accordingly, one encounters parlors and libraries, sitting rooms and dens all squeezed into the meagre compass of a space of twenty-five by thirty-five feet or less, a mere piece of affectation. The prospective owner of such a house could do nothing better than to take to heart those lines of Shakespeare in Polonius' advice to his son:

"But this above all,—to thine own self be true."

LAYING OUT THE GROUNDS.

So, when this dream house comes to the stage of being planned in reality, have the rooms large, even if there be not so many of them. Then Harold R. Caparn advises, in another essay in the same magazine, that the most important question in laying out a place—for, of course, you will have a little land with the house—is the placing of the house, for on that all the rest must depend, the paths and roads, the turnabouts, the getting-in of coal, the shape and size of the lawns and so on. It is safe to lay down the broad principle that the house should not be put in the middle of the lot. This, on the average narrow and deep lot, would usually make two largish pieces (front and rear) approximately square, and two narrow ones at the sides on the length of the house:

"Assuming then that your house is placed to advantage, don't spoil the value of your spaces by cluttering them up with things. Don't put a round or starshaped bed of geraniums or cannas in the middle of the front lawn. Don't give way to the temptation to stick in a bush or tree wherever there seems to be a space to put it. Always try to picture your tree or bush, not as a scraggly pole or bundle of sticks as it comes from the nursery, but as a large and rampant mass of foliage big enough to sit under or to stop a gap eight or ten feet wide. If you prefer the popular informal style like most of your neighbors, remember that in a general way, the lawn is a picture and the frame is foliage, and so be careful how you scatter bits of the frame over the canvas. If you have a small lot, and want to have a flower border round the back of it, make it wide enough, six or eight feet or more, and have plenty of tall, growing things, helianthus, bocconia, hollyhocks and so forth at the back. In fact, what you do, do thoroughly and positively, always trying to get a clear idea first of some definite scheme, next to what it will look like when it is done."

HOUSE OF MR. THOMAS LAMONT.

Englewood, N. J. Mann & McNeill, Architects.

Harold R. Caparn, the landscape architect, says of this house that it sets well on a gentle rise and is well united to the ground by the foliage frame rising on both sides and merely opening to let the steps through. It will look even better when the shrubbery at the base of the house is better grown. Even the tree in front which cuts so large a piece out of the house adds much to the attractiveness of the picture.

Wilson Eyre says that in eliminating the very small country house the first step to be considered is the situation and orientation; the latter should be the chief consideration; the outlook and views should be secondary unless very unusual conditions exist regarding the outlook. A mistake in placing the various rooms toward the proper points of the compass would undoubtedly destroy the living comfort of the house; the house should have its greatest exposure to the south, and a plan with wings on either end and pointing to the north would result in the greatest amount of sun and air, giving the most exposed part of the house the south, east and west outlook, at the same time giving a court effect on the entrance drive; the wings would serve to protect the north exposure of the house. Mr. Eyre further says, through the American Architect, that the entrance vestibule, and as much as possible the service portion of the house should be to the north, and so give the living part the better exposures and the privacy of the garden:

The dining-room and kitchen quarter should be to the east, because the morning sun is most desirable at breakfast, especially in autumn and winter, and in the summer it is not objectionable, being the coolest part of the day. This places the dining-room on the shady side of the house in the later afternoon, and thus avoids the sun at the dinner or supper hour, when it is hotter, and, being low, slants into the room and becomes an annoyance. Another advantage of this arrangement is the fact that it throws the living-rooms to the south and west sides, which are the best exposures for both winter and summer; also it places the kitchen apartments where they belong. These should not be placed to the southwest, because the prevailing winds are from this direction in most parts of the country, and they drive the odors of cooking through the house.

A living hall with the stairway leading from it is a picturesque feature, but Mr. Eyre thinks it not very practical, because the stairway, unless much enclosed, is a source of draughts, and makes a traffic-way of your living place:

If your means are limited and you cannot afford a large stairway hall, it is far better to have a small one, and make a large comfortable living-room. If the living-room is a library as well, there should be a small parlor or reception-room, but the better arrangement, in my judgment, is to have a small study for writing and books, and keep the large room for general use. In the country one does not usually have formal guests or need a reception-room.

A MODEST COTTAGE ON OAK ROAD, TARRYTOWN, N. Y.
Ewing & Chappell, Architects.

The service quarters should be ample, and should consist of the pantry, kitchen, servants' dining-room or living-room, a cold room or pantry with a built-in refrigerator. This pantry should be so situated that it can be supplied with ice from the outside, and conveniently near to the tradesmen's approach.

There should be a large coat-closet on the first floor; also a small wash-room.

The bedroom plan should be so arranged that the owner's quarters are somewhat separated from the guests' quarters. They should, of course, have their own bath-rooms, and, if the appropriation for the house warrants it, it is well to have a bath-room for each room—at any rate, not more than two rooms should be dependent on one bath; the first expense is more than counterbalanced by the saving in services in the chambermaid's department. A large linen-closet, with light and air, is a necessity; in addition to this it is well to have a slop-closet and a broom-closet. In every closet that has no window there should be an automatic burner which lights with the opening of the closet.

A THOUGHTFUL USE OF MATERIAL.

Local building conditions vary so enormously throughout the country that costs figured for one locality will scarcely be accurate in another, but Jared Stuyvesant, in the current Country Life, wonders why more houses of stone are not built. He takes as an example the farm cottage that has been erected for Mr. Tracy Dows at Rhinebeck, on the Hudson, which is a combination of well-built stonework with Georgian details, for the main portion of the house, and picturesque wings covered with white hand-riven shingles. (Albro & Lindeberg, architects.)

According to Mr. Stuyvesant's experience, stonework costs only a third more per square foot of wall surface than shingles or clapboards:

It costs about twenty-eight per cent. more than roughcast plaster on the ordinary stud frame. Yet it is cheaper than brickwork—about twenty-three per cent. cheaper, and about thirty per cent. cheaper than concrete work when the latter is furred inside for plastering and plastered roughcast on the outside. This comparison of costs assumes that local stone is available near the site and that the wall will be furred inside for plastering. It is based on prices in the vicinity of New York City, and cannot, therefore, be accurate for any other locality.

So much for the cost of a stone house. Now as to its desirability. Stonework stands supreme among building materials in its diversity of possible textures. You can have rough-faced stone laid up with wide joints of white mortar, or you can have smooth-faced stone with narrow joints of various colors. Stonework offers more variety in color than any other wall material, and its results repay to a greater extent whatever thought and care and craftsmanship are spent upon it. In no other form of wall construction do we get those deeply recessed windows, recalling memories of the old homestead with its broad white-painted windowsills bearing their groups of potted geraniums. Above all, however, a stone house gives an impression of solidity, of permanence, that no other kind of house can give.

The expedient of the architects of Mr. Dows' house of confining the stone portion to the central part has had the effect of making the house appear larger than if the plan had been carried out entirely in stone.

WHAT HE HAS DONE RECENTLY AND WHY HE DID IT.

BROOKLYN'S THREE MILLION DOLLAR HOTEL.

It is expected that actual work will be commenced in July, by the Consolidated Mortgage Company, Produce Exchange Building, Manhattan, for the erection of the new 12-sty reinforced concrete hotel which is to be erected on the Plaza at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, the cost of which it is said will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. Architect Robert T. Lyons, 31 Union sq, is making some changes in the plans which will effect both the interior and exterior designs originally prepared. As seen in the perspective view, one is somewhat reminded of the Hotel Astor in Times sq, there being certain similarities in style and treatment. It will contain 1,200 guest rooms, arranged in suites of one to four rooms each, with bath. As announced in the Record and Guide, issue of May 30, 1908, the cost of the building, including the equipment, will be about $2,700,000, the plot costing $300,000.

The plans provide for a strictly fireproof building of reinforced concrete, faced with white terra cotta and glazed brick. A private plant for heating and lighting will be installed, as well as a cold storage and ice plant, a fully equipped kitchen plant and Turkish baths. There will be eight plunger elevators, interior telephone system, bowling alleys, billiard and pool rooms. Vulcanized lumber will be specified to be used throughout. The construction work will be in charge of C. J. Zimmermann, the secretary and treasurer of the company, and the building is to be ready for tenants in September, 1909.

A. H. Muller is president and N. A. Macbride is vice-president of the Consolidated Mortgage Co., which also owns the Hampton apartments on the Plaza.

—"Two Family and Twin Houses" is the title of a new book soon to be brought out by Wm. T. Comstock, publisher, New York. It will contain upwards of fifty designs from architects in different parts of the country. The two-family house is an old friend of the young husband who wants to get on. In other days it was planned a little differently than is now customary in Brooklyn and the Bronx. The purpose of the book is to bring together a large number of designs from the hands of architects in all parts of the country who have given their attention to this class of work. The book will be found of much value to persons contemplating improvement of property just outside the more crowded residential districts.

ARCHITECTS CONGRESS AT VIENNA.

ADVICES, by way of London, from returning delegates who were in attendance at the eighth International Congress of Architects at Vienna, state that about twelve hundred architects of all the leading nationalities were present, and while the technical value of the majority of the papers was small, the occasion afforded an opportunity for an informal interchange of views between the leading men of Europe, particularly between the German-speaking visitors, i. e., the Germans, Austrians, Russian, Dutch and Scandinavians.

The English-speaking countries, including America, were not particularly prominent in the proceedings, owing to language difficulties. The sessions were held in the Parliament House. A photographic print of the opening session, which has arrived in New York, much resembles a session of our House of Representatives, the interior of the two assembly halls being much alike, with the exception of the statuary in the Viennese parliament.

The visitors enjoyed themselves looking at what our Mr. J. P. Morgan says is really the most beautiful city in Europe, attending receptions and fetes and taking part in excursions.

The opening meeting was an exceedingly impressive function, and at which it was interesting to hear among the speakers men of the standing of Cuypers (for Holland), Domay (for France), Hinkledyn (for Germany), Kutnor (for Russia), and Geo. O. Totten, of Washington, D. C. (for the United States).

There were no accredited delegates from the British Institute, but there were forty or fifty British and Colonial architects present, including accredited delegates from the Cape Institute of Architects, the Transvaal Institute of Architects, the Architects' Association, Quebec; the Institute of Architects of Canada, and the Ontario Association of Architects. America was well represented.

The most pleasing feature of this great gathering in the Austrian Parliament House was not so much the value of the actual speeches, as among the official representatives of all countries who spoke as to the necessity of improving the architectural treatment of our great cities, the raising of the status of the architect, and a definition of his position, and the desire for the creation of official departments concerned specifically with architectural as distinct from what was termed the "routine" execution of public works.

A list of the resolutions passed at the various meetings will be published in due course. In one or two instances it was pleasing to note that different governments had already made use of the resolutions of the previous Congress, by advancing legislation in their own countries.

THE DISCUSSION ON TECHNICAL SUBJECTS.

The London Builder in its report of the Congress says that the technical problems considered, that the reinforced concrete discussion was perhaps the most animated and useful, and it is to be hoped that the resolution calling for reports of accidents in all classes of buildings (as distinct from reports of accidents in reinforced concrete structures only) will be beneficial in showing what a small proportion of failures actually occur with reinforced buildings as compared with other buildings. Several of the official delegates present have already made arrangements for such reports to be issued by next year.

THE ENTERTAINMENTS.

The entertainments in connection with the Congress were lavish to a degree, and extremely well arranged. For instance, a banquet with 1,400 covers, given in the Town Hall by the municipality, when no fewer than 1,200 were seated in one room, was a function of quite exceptional character.

The excursions to the hills and to some of the old chateaux were most interesting, the facilities afforded for visiting public buildings and attending performances at the Court theatres were useful, whilst a court function at the Old Hofburg Palace, if not particularly exhilarating, gave éclat and royal patronage to the gathering.

Congresses of this type must not be judged so much by their technical value, for they are much too unwieldy to do any real good work, but sub-committees, resulting from these congresses, occasionally do much that is practical, and above all these congresses serve as a rendezvous for the architects of all nations for the interchange of experience and pleasurable acquaintanceship.

THE CONGRESS EXHIBITION.

In connection with the Congress, an important architectural exhibition, excellently arranged in rooms covering an area approximately identical with the whole of the principal rooms at Burlington House, served as a most interesting record of the progress made in Continental and American architecture. The American exhibit was very creditable, far surpassing the British collection.

Our architects may not agree with the exaggerations and monstrosities of the so-called "Art Nouveau" group of some of their Continental colleagues, but all must have admired the excellent arrangement and representative character of the exhibits presented at this exhibition.

GOVERNMENT AND SPECULATIVE INTERESTS.

THERE is nothing connected with the conditions in the building trades of New York which does not apply equally to the industries of the country at large, except that it represents an extreme case, is the view of Mr. Charles H. Israels, the architect.

"In such a process of industrial depression as we are now passing through speculative enterprises feel it most," Mr. Israels remarked in conversation this week.

"New York is a speculative market, and New York real estate a speculative commodity. Our methods of taxation favor the speculator. Most of these men have carried their methods beyond the limit, and have contributed to an extent far in excess of their numerical importance to the conditions which brought about the depression from which we are now suffering. Witness their successful opposition to the bill to simply state the truth in placing the real consideration in a real estate transfer.

"In the process of the evolution of industry from the competitive system to the better methods of the trust, the trades union and the corporation, the machinery of the new arrangement has gotten in the control of a powerful speculative minority which is exploiting the majority and which has been attempting to turn representative government into misrepresentative government to serve its own ends.

"The President has thrown the limelight on these methods and upon the newly invented sins incident to them, the result of which has been to convince the country that our civil and criminal laws and their administration must be made to keep pace with the evils created by the new methods. In the meantime the controlling minority fear to proceed and the majority is suspicious.

"Industry awaits this readjustment, or at least the definite conviction that it will come peacefully.

"President Roosevelt has not accomplished much as yet, but he has performed an inestimable public service by arousing public opinion. By doing this he has undoubtedly contributed to our hard times—but save the country from a more violent upheaval which will be bound to come unless we have more executives of his type.

"The 'divine right of kings' received its death blow in France in '93; the power of the 'almighty dollar' will receive a similarly violent check unless the curb is put on gradually by politicians and presidents like Roosevelt."

BUILDERS MEET IN NEW EXCHANGE.

The first gathering of the members of the Building Trades Employers' Association in their new quarters on the top floor of the new Builders' Exchange was held on the evening of June 5. Over three hundred were in attendance at this informal opening of the rooms and all were highly pleased with the way in which the house committee had arranged the furnishings and accommodations for the comfort of the members.

The feature of the occasion was the presentation to Mr. Lewis Harding, the retiring chairman of the Board of Governors, of a handsome watch and chain, and a beautifully illuminated set of resolutions. Mr. Harding had been chairman of the Board of Governors for two successive years and was urgently requested to permit the use of his name for renomination. He was compelled to decline the honor before the annual meeting was held last spring. It was then decided by the members that some action should be taken to show their esteem for Mr. Harding and appreciation for his services. A committee comprising Messrs. John Beattie, Ronald Taylor, B. D. Traitel, C. G. Norman and Robert Christie was appointed to arrange the details. Mr. B. Traitel made the presentation. The resolutions ran as follows:

"The Board of Governors deem it a pleasure to place on record a testimonial of their esteem and appreciation of his two years' service as chairman of this board, therefore be it resolved:

"That as Mr. Harding declined a renomination for chairman, that in his retirement from this board we lose an able, active and efficient co-worker, whose services in this board and loyalty and untiring efforts on behalf of the Building Trades Employers' Association, which we represent, entitle him to our warmest regard.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that he carries with him our warmest friendship and high appreciation of the faithful services he has rendered our Association, and we hope health, happiness and prosperity will attend him always."

The resolutions were signed by the members of the special committee, Mr. Ross F. Tucker, chairman of the Board of Governors, and Mr. William J. Holmes, secretary of the association.

A brief address of welcome to the new rooms was delivered by Mr. C. G. Norman, chairman of the house committee. Short speeches were made by Mr. Isaac A. Hopper, president of the association, and Mr. Charles A. Cowen, one of the charter members of the old Building Trades' Club.

UNCERTAINTIES IN BUILDING.

BUILDERS read with interest in last week's Record and Guide the plan proposed by the architectural societies for limiting the height and area of buildings. One of the phases of the question is the possible effect of the long uncertainty as to the outcome of the agitation. Mr. C. F. Bond, the builder, of 136 Liberty st, being interrogated on this point during the week, stated that in a case where it would leave the investor in doubt as to what rentable area he could rely on to furnish a return on his investment, and to what extent that investment might eventually go,—uncertainty of that description undoubtedly had a depressing effect.

"It must be taken into consideration," continued Mr. Bond, "that in financing the larger projects, a long time, often a year or more before the erection of the building is actually started, the basis on which the investment is to be made is arrived at, and the plans are prepared with a certain well-defined expenditure and its probable return agreed upon. To have, therefore, a condition of doubt as to the height to which a structure may be carried and as to the nature of the trim or any other component part of the building would not be advantageous to a promoter's efforts."

In regard to kind of trim that may be allowed in tall buildings, Mr. Bond said:

"Of course there are many interests endeavoring to have the rulings personally profitable and, unfortunately or not as the case may be, they are so widely diverse as to make compromise practically impossible. The actual fire risk from wood trim, which to-day is universally simple, is so slight as to make this issue seem forced. It would work an uncalled for hardship on the carpentry and allied lines of the building trades to enact any measures prohibitive of the use of wood trim in tall buildings. Many claims have been made that eventually metal trim will supersede the use of wood entirely. If such is the case it would seem a better policy to let the condition work itself out naturally. It also occurs that it is rather strange reasoning to prohibit the use of wood trim in an office when the use of combustible furniture of any description is still allowed."

Asked as to his views on the question of licensed constructors, Mr. Bond said:

"The question of licensed constructors is one that affects the general contractor importantly, but which seems to have so far taken a very minor part in the deliberations on the new code. There is quite a diversity of opinion as to whether or not the idea is a good one, and a doubt as to whether or not the essentially practical man on whom the carrying out of the infinite details of construction really rests, would be able to meet the technical requirements of the examination. If, on the other hand, its demands will bring us more intelligent superintendence, that would be much in its favor."

LICENSED CONSTRUCTORS.

After the disturbances created among builders by the proposed revolutionary laws of the previous Code Commission, Mr. Guy B. Waite, of the Standard Concrete-Steel Co., surmises that the longer the postponement of action of the present Code Commission, the greater good they will likely do in nursing the present poor building business to a healthier growth.

"While all concede the need of up-to-date laws," said Mr. Waite, "no on feels like chancing any experiments such as 'licensed constructors,' etc., at this time. Probably such medicine for the acknowledged sick man would kill him.

"While many of the proposed laws of 1907 terminated under potent personal interests, the time which has been granted by the present Code Commission has given opportunity to the opposing sides to show their strength; and it is believed that the new laws will recognize in a broader manner than the old ones did, established engineering truths."

Mr. Charles A. Cowen said that builders generally are opposed to the "licensed constructor" idea: "The more we go into the matter the more complex it becomes, and the more likely to lead to that inevitable end—Graft."

EXHIBITORS TARDY IN INSTALLING DISPLAYS.

"In the experience that I have had in connection with the preparations for, and the opening of, exhibitions of building material, it has always been the case that the exhibitors are slow to install their displays after space has been acquired."

This explanation was given by Mr. Ross F. Tucker, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association, when asked why so many concerns which have taken space in the exhibition department on the second floor of the Builders' Exchange Building, 33d St. were tardy in installing their exhibits.

Mr. Tucker is president of the Concrete Association of America, which has a costly collection of concrete exhibits on the 11th floor of the Brunswick Building, 225 Fifth Avenue, and he was one of the prime movers in arranging for and perfecting the details for the opening of that exhibition.

He states that the average time lost by exhibitors in installing their exhibits after signing for the space is over two months. In fact, he cited instances where the tardy concerns have paid rent for space six months and more before placing their display in position.

The exhibition floor of the Building Trades Employers' Association is liberally supplied with signs indicating that spaces have been taken. Nearly a third of the entire floor has been acquired by concerns representing a dozen or more construction trades, but few of the exhibits have been installed. This being the busy season, is given by the majority of the delinquents why they have not availed themselves of the space secured. The exhibition department is proving to be the success that was anticipated, at least as far as the renting of space is concerned, but more good would be accomplished, especially for the concerns which already have space, if their exhibits were in place.

About seventy-five of the leading architects of New York have indorsed the opening of such an exhibition by commendatory letters sent to the association. A number of these have been published in a neat book just issued. A very practical one, and illustrating the tone of the others, is that from Clinton & Russell. It states in part:

"We have no doubt as to its (the exhibition) usefulness to both owners and architects. Especially so for brick, marble, tile, etc., up-to-date samples of which are kept with difficulty in an office. The samples accumlate, get dusty and discolored, and are stacked up in some corner out of the way, so that it is hard to find what is wanted, and often when found to suit it has no label upon it to tell where it may be obtained, or if the label is there, then it is found that the particular shade is not made any more and is out of the market."

An invitation has been sent to the members of the Building Trades Employers' Association to attend a reception to be given to them by the Concrete Association of America in its permanent exhibition room, at 225 Fifth Avenue at 6 p. m. Wednesday afternoon, June 17.

OBSERVATIONS IN EUROPE.

Mr. Maximilian Toch, of Toch Brothers, paint manufacturers, 320 Fifth Avenue, has returned from a flying, recreative trip to Europe. Although he was only nine days in Great Britain and on the Continent he saw some things that ought to be gratifying to American contractors. When asked what impressed him most in the limited time that he had to observe construction work Mr. Toch said:

"I noticed particularly the fact that there is an increasing use of steel in the erection of business buildings in England. The same can be said of France and Germany, although I spent most of the time in England, France and Belgium. Of course high structures, such as we have in New York, are not permitted in the European capitals. In Paris the plans for a building have to pass through a municipal department that compels owners and architects to conform to the architectural surroundings. There is more uniformity, more effort to bring about artistic effects, than in America.

"The same principle is followed in London, although the restrictions are not so stringent. In addition to this, high buildings are not permitted because of the difficulty experienced in fighting fires in such structures. I believe that there is one twelve-story structure in London. This is very high for that city. The buildings which I saw in process of construction are about four or five stories. The use of steel in such is apparently increasing very rapidly. The methods of construction are becoming more and more Americanized, although the facilities afforded here by the use of derricks and lifts for the raising of material are not so well advanced. Notwithstanding this the streets are very seldom blocked by material lying on the pavements. I do not think that at any time I saw more than two loads of material before a building being erected.

"The use of paint on the steel to prevent corrosion is not so general, although it is also increasing. One coat suffices, as a rule. In American cities three coats are almost invariably put on, especially in the big, fireproof structures. The reason of this is that the variation of the temperature, which is the principal cause of the corrosion, is not so great in London, for example, as in New York. Here the variation is about 130 degrees; in London it is about 85 degrees. I believe that in the St. Lawrence region it is as high as 160 degrees."

Although Mr. Toch was on a trip to get a rest, he had an opportunity to sign up a substantial contract and did so. This was in the north of England, where he was visiting a friend. Toch Brothers do a world-wide business, having a representative in Europe. The business in that section of the world is steadily increasing.

—Chicago has the merit of starting a new style of domesticity. It has been evolved from the contracted flat, which is now scarcely big enough to swing a kitten in, much less accommodate the average American family. So tiny are apartments in Chicago, says an unidentified commentator, that the father of the family is obliged to "room out," and leave the two cramped bedrooms to wife and daughters. Of the latter, of course, there are seldom more than one or two. But, with all the girls' "things," there's no place for father to hang up. Hence expedient, cheery Chicago solves the difficulty by lodging him elsewhere and letting him meal at home in the flat, which is a concession.

NEITHER NECESSARY NOR DESIRABLE.

THE RESTRICTION OF BUILDING HEIGHT, IN THE VIEW OF THE BOARD OF TRADE AND TRANSPORTATION.

THE New York Board of Trade and Transportation has received and approved of a report from a committee of which Calvin Tomkins is chairman, on the subject of the regulation of the height of buildings. The report says in part:

Diminution in height of building is neither necessary nor desirable, but provision for light and air and protection from fire are essential for public and private welfare. The underlying consideration which governs this problem is that of the economic use of land. Intensive use of land in lower Manhattan, such as nowhere else may exist, is inevitable as a consequence of geographical and commercial conditions which create a local situation unique in comparison with the other cities of the world.

Whatever one might wish to make the problem, it is really one of how to handle greater congestion rather than to enforce less. But objectionable features can be reduced while greater concentration of business and amusement in Manhattan and the creation of cheap, available and comfortable residence outside for a constantly increasing proportion of our citizens can be both at once progressed.

The improved systems of horizontal transportation which are being developed radially from Manhattan will have an accelerating tendency to concentrate business and amusement in lower Manhattan, and the hope that improved transit facilities will distribute business over a wider area so that the necessity for concentration in tall buildings will not be so urgent is illusionary. The lack of adequate freight terminals in Manhattan and the greater adaptability of its land for wholesale business, may distribute factories and factory population among the outlying suburbs, but convenience and speed in transacting business will inevitably accentuate its progressive centralization, and as a consequence tall building construction will proceed even more rapidly than heretofore in this part of the city, and indeed should do so, if its conditions can be kept tolerable.

Custom and law have permitted private owners of lands to be used for business purposes a very large degree of liberty to utilize nearly the entire area of the plots owned and for as great a vertical distance as practical. The recognized limits within which restriction can be made effective are those of fire and health. It is not likely that in the immediate future this drift of custom and law will be suddenly changed so as to deprive these plots of a large part of their value. If the State or city should attempt to do this by regulation, the courts will unquestionably intervene to protect property rights. For example, if a 20 or 30-sty building has already been erected it is unreasonable to expect that such new restrictions will be imposed upon the land adjacent to it as will greatly benefit the building in question at the expense of the property adversely affected. While provision for light and air should be anticipated, abutting property owners must be left to arrange this, and the enforcement of arbitrary restriction is as improbable as it might be unfair. Already there has been developed a well marked tendency on the part of builders and owners of tall buildings to provide themselves with light and air in this manner. This usage, coupled with the economic advantage of utilizing larger and larger plots of ground, will ultimately bring about the evolution of a better adapted and more economic type of building. The entire block affords the best opportunity for such safe, economic, artistic and sanitary treatment, and protection or extension of street privileges of light, air and access gives the best field for regulation. Even then legal bounds may be overstepped and the courts will limit the effort to impose unfair restrictions. But as a consequence of the attrition which will ensue, an intelligent process of building may ultimately be developed.

While, therefore, the relations between adjacent owners are such as to make this matter difficult of regulation, it can be claimed that the street facades can be subjected to more drastic regulation that at present exists. Everybody uses the streets and reasonable provision for light and air must be maintained in them. The street areas remain constant and tall buildings will continue to multiply. The public right to light and air in the public streets can be insisted upon, and reasonable regulations to make it effective can be imposed, which the courts have recognized in other cities and will recognize here. It may not be possible or desirable to provide for an angle of light as ample as that which exists in English and continental cities, but it is reasonable to insist upon a possible angle of say 70 degrees for the average width of streets and more nearly approaching a right angle for buildings facing on a wide public square, or for limited portions of a street facade—either with or without adjacent courts. With the modern type of iron cage construction it is possible to step the buildings back from the street line above a given height varying with different street widths. Such public restrictions imposed upon street facades would prepare the way for the more progressive private owners of adjacent properties to arrange for similar restrictions among themselves, and there would then be developed the flat building, the isolated tower type of building advocated by Mr. Ernest Flagg, surrounded with air and light above a specific height, and a terraced type of building, with or without an accompanying tower, each possessed of its respective advantages.

There is finally to be considered the matter of fire protection, which in the minds of many people who have given it consideration, is paramount. It will be economically impossible to limit the vertical growth of Manhattan to the limitations of a street fire protection service, which would in effect impose a height limit of a little more than 100 feet. The business part of New York must expand vertically as the social development of the city proceeds horizontally. Any great danger for conflagration on an extensive scale which now exists is due not so much to our high buildings as to the general prevalence of low inflammable types of buildings. These structures should be eliminated as fast as the city is rebuilt and buildings to be constructed of incombustible materials erected in their place. It does not seem an extreme requirement to insist upon the construction of all buildings intended for business purposes in lower Manhattan in this manner.

METAL DOORS IN CONCRETE DWELLINGS?

Will the use of concrete soon become so general in construction work that fireproof doors will be included in the plans for dwellings?

This question was inspired by queries submitted by several contracting concerns recently, relative to the cost of putting metal doors and windows in concrete houses.

Opinions of several of the largest manufacturers of such doors follow:

O. C. Reinecke, New York manager for the Dahlstrom Metallic Door Company, 299 Broadway:

"Within the past few days we have had two inquiries along this line—one from New Jersey and one from Chicago. One of the letters asked for a price on metal-covered doors for a group of all-concrete houses to be erected in New Jersey, each structure to have not more than twelve doors. I believe that it will soon be possible to have such doors in concrete dwellings that would be occupied by clerks and the like drawing from $1,500 to $2,000 a year. The use of concrete for the construction of such structures appears to be spreading, and the addition of metal doors or metal-covered doors would lessen the cost by reducing the insurance very substantially. Moreover, lack of facilities to fight fires in the suburbs and country strengthens the tendency to resort to concrete."

Mr. McCormick, representing John W. Rapp, 1 Madison av:

"Only the other day we were asked to give an estimate for the placing of fireproof doors in a large number of concrete houses to be built in a suburb of New York. However, it is doubtful whether the use of such doors would become general, even if dwellings for the rank and file were constructed of concrete. Metal is high and the doors could not be manufactured much cheaper than at present if there was a slight decline in price of the material used. The increasing use of metal doors in the better class of houses is probable."

Mr. Blanchard, of the J. F. Blanchard Company, manufacturers of fireproof doors, Fuller Building:

"Taking the experience of the past few years as a basis it could hardly be said that fireproof doors would be used in the average dwelling, even if erected entirely of concrete. Although the manufacture of metal doors and concrete construction work have been associated to a degree, I have not given this phase of it enough thought to justify me in giving an opinion."

Mr. Ross F. Tucker, who has been prominently identified with improvements in the use of concrete for many years:

"It will not be long before the all-concrete house theory will be put into practice. This will probably be followed by the use of a new door that will be a protection against fire, although not absolutely fireproof. It will be cheaper, as the metal or metal-covered doors are too costly for the average dwelling."

FUTURE OF THE BELMONT TUNNEL.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I read with great interest the editorials in your issue of June 6, 1908, in relation to the Long Island City tunnel, and I am in entire accord with the views expressed. The Public Service Commission should certainly resume negotiations with the Interborough Company at the earliest possible moment for the purchase of the tunnel. Its purchase and operation are demanded by the interests of the city and of Queens, and many are vexed at its long delay.

Further, you favor extending it to 8th av, which suggestion is timely. I would propose extending it to 9th av, so as to connect with the elevated road. This extension would make it almost twice as valuable as it now is, and would be a great boon to real estate in 42d st and the adjoining streets, besides being a great help to business interests and reaching the heart of the amusement district. It is earnestly to be hoped that the same will soon be put into effect.

Your statements in regard to the 4th av subway in South Brooklyn are also to the point. There are many densely populated districts in Manhattan without adequate transportation facilities, and to construct a subway through the sparsely settled district of South Brooklyn would be the greatest folly. First construct subways where they are needed as in many parts of Manhattan, and where they will be a paying investment, and when Brooklyn is sufficiently built up as to require subways, then construct them.

June 9, 1908. FRANK J. HAAS.

THE MAN ON THE STREET.

Years ago there was an architectural draughtsman of German birth named Papplebaum. He imagined that the world was his oyster. He had a well-developed sarcastic tongue, and he used to allude to his fellow-workers as "Zeichenknechte," which means in English, drawing-slaves; and none were spared his bitterest vein.

Finally the architect for whom he worked, a man of kind heart and eminent in his day and generation, paid him a weekly stipend to remain away from his office, evidently feeling this to be the most economical expedient.

Then Papplebaum spent his time blackguarding his benefactor, even as did Harold Skimpole, in "Bleak House," until death ended the game and the architect settled his funeral expenses.

There are numerous situations in the building business where an employer is put in the position of being a branch of the Charity Organization Society and is loaded up with a lot of dead wood which makes his force like a dead load on the deck of a waterlogged ship.

These dependents often imagine their chest measures are the size of their hats, but they have another think coming. It would be a good scheme if they would get busy with a good sized bluefish every Friday for the benefit of any gray matter they can gather, but their main function seemed to be chewing the rag at someone else's expense.

Yesterday on the ferry boat, a reconstructed side wheeler with some new wrinkles interesting to those who sometimes deal in "alterations," Bill went out with the horses and such, as it was raining. Even teams were scarce and after looking at the big crank turning for a while, he drifted to the engine-room window.

Within was a veteran of many years service, eagle-eyed and beaked, and gray-mustached like the old pilot up above.

Bill wanted to know him personally, so he spoke of Kipling. Something doing. Had he read the apotheosis of the marine engine? No, but intense interest appeared immediately. Bill got busy with his best elocution and started in; explanations in between bits of verse. Everything was going nicely when, "Losh! Yon's the stand-by bell," and the auditor reached for the lever, Bill disappearing forward to the safety gates for landing.

This man has the fine sense of thinking of a trained mechanician, whose duties cause him to be much alone and is now under strict surveillance in poetry and such other humanities appealing to all those in creative architecture and the like, including yours truly. You can't lose me, Charley.

In the great entrance hall of the Metropolitan Museum of Art is a stone statue by George Gray Barnard, which we all may study and reflect upon. It represents two male figures, one upright with the strength of victory on his face, the other prone, with brutal defeat of himself depicted in every feature. It is the famous "I feel two natures struggling within me."

The limitations of the sculptor's art reduced this number to its lowest, but how many of us realize the many natures and traits which fiercely battle in our internal selves, especially in the building trade, with its high pressures.

In a real estate corporation's office the other day a woman of splendid heart, which plainly showed itself in her fair face, speaking of an architect, said: "He tries to be kind to every one." The Man on the Street has known him for many years intimately, and is well acquainted with many other sides of his natures. They are multiplex.

He is kind to weaker ones, but he can at times grow to fierce anger at four-flushers, short-change artists and like kidney, and as he comes of a long line of pioneer ancestry in this country, all the Indian fighting Revolutionary war battling, and every other scrapping time in which his various families have been mixed up, and who have passed on their quota of hot blood, causes him to go and to smite these grafters, hip and thigh.

Yet as he realizes his own imperfections when the mill is over, he retires to a mental cave of gloom, berates himself soundly and thinks of the serenity of the classic art and the teaching. "Peace on earth and good will toward men," which produced our great Gothic monuments through fervid emotionalism.

So might many other plus and minus qualities be shown, but this is typical, and it's so with everybody who is truly alive.

Old Socrates said, "Know thyself," but when one does it makes a pretty wide circle of acquaintances right in one personality, and they are both friends and enemies.

The "jolly" as a business proposition is a good deal of a back number, and it never was very deeply rooted in the actual vital part of the building business. The original "jolly" in the East and its synonymous, "josh" in the West were all right. Serious matters were clothed in light garments of persiflage, but the substance was there.

Then Smart Alecks sought to relieve Easy Marks of their rolls by using these methods of jocularity to cover the introduction of inferior material or service, and with soft persuasive voices successfully threw the "con" into their victims where they were fools enough to listen to their sirenic songs.

Actual workers in the constructive field, however, knew instinctively that "fine words butter no parsnips," and sought delivery of the actual collateral or there was trouble. Thus the slick article in many cases became a Willy-to-the-Woods.

Here and there he still wanders, harping on his one string, that "there is a sucker born every hour," but he is away off in his vital statistics. Come off your perch, Polly! The cracker doesn't come that way.

One of the oldest German builders in the city is a friend of the Man on the Street. He is a great admirer of Bismarck and has a large picture of him within his range of vision in his bed-chamber. He likes to look upon this strong man in statecraft, for he likewise has been a strong man in building, and like attracts like, unlike electrical elements.

Bismarck was a power indeed, but the personality that has always attracted me in the organization and up-building of the German Empire was Von Moltke. He was of tall, wiry form and sensitive, alert face and brain. He did not study the strength of his own side only, but its weakness, and incidentally the strength of the powers that encompassed his adopted country. He did not neglect their weaknesses either. Note the results of the Franco-Prussian War.

As chief-of-staff he had many schemes, scientifically developed for any attack or defense, multitudinously pigeon-holed and so systematized that had war been declared the initial moves could have been made without his getting out of bed to give orders.

Constructors of all kinds and business men in all works of life may well study these methods, since modern business in its present development is elemental war and the ways of great strategists are as broad avenues of education to him who would read as he runs. Foxy Quillers can from them lift a few ideas which may be an improvement to their own.

You can handle men in two ways: by being a despot who knows the whole game from A to Z, and relies on his brutal power alone, this being absolutism; or by surrounding yourself with a loyal, enthusiastic collection of co-operative workers who are thoroughly in sympathy with the leader and who receive from him and give a square deal. This being true democracy.

Richardson, the famous architect, brought together such a force as the last, and though he has been dead twenty or so years, to-day his former "boys" are glad to be known as having been of this organization, and he paid low salaries, too.

You can bat the stuffing out of an employee, and get certain sullen results, but you have got to be like a weazel and sleep with one eye open, or he'll get back at you.

The best way is to preserve the spontaneity and good-will of your assistants and you can obtain two for one. Put this in your pipe and smoke it into your system if you have one.

Young men affiliated with the building trades, fledgling architectural superintendents, representatives of large constructive companies "pushing" things along on the structural work of their organizations, real-estate striplings and others here and there with their callowness leaking out all over, and, like young bear cubs, with most of their experience and a good many sorrows before them, are often liable to look askance at the veterans of these activities who seem to them less physically strenuous, and to regard these as back numbers.

Well, "it's better to be a 'has-been' than a 'never was,'" and the seasoned men of many a hard mental fight and well-won victory sometimes smile quietly to themselves as they are told the exact way to do the trick, and how the real things, the aforesaid tyros, could handle the proposition so much better if they only were put in charge; how they would cut loose and make things hum, and do this and that in a record-breaking manner—yas.

Something like the pilot's cub in Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi," a profound delineation of the multifarious difficulties of human effort disguised under a humorous overlay.

Experience is general'y a hard teacher, and some of these singed cats after going through the fire find they did not quite know it all in spite of everything. So, my agile brained friends, as grandmother sits knitting by the fire, just pause a moment in serious contemplation before you give her your finest points in pedagogics on the gentle art of sucking eggs, and realize that perhaps she knows a thing or two about osculating the product of the hennery and was not born yesterday, as you comparatively were. No hard feelings.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT.

PRICES CURRENT.

BRICK.—Last week's business in the wholesale brick market amounted to fifty cargoes or barge loads. In normal years fifty cargoes represent more than fifty per cent. of an average week's trade, but in this case the increased sale was only a temporary fluctuation resulting from a previous week of slight activity on account of rain. The average outgo of brick has not yet permanently passed beyond the halfway line into the realm of "Pretty Fair," and is still out of sight of the land of "Good Enough," beyond which are the velvety lawns and flower gardens of "Prosperity."

Speaking of velvet, it is now two years since the manufacturers have walked on anything having any resemblance to either velvet, velour or plush. Alternating revivications and reactions cause shifting lines of thought, so that even the best authorities in this line of business, which is still looked upon as the steam gauge of the building trades, cannot foretell the movements of the finger on the dial.

A little more firmness in quotations is apparent, with some determination by manufacturers to compel a better price, but the possibility is not for a considerable advance. For the present, quotations continue low and nominal.

Mr. Wright D. Goss, president of the Empire Brick & Supply Company, remarked this week, in regard to the building material market, that while times still continued dull, money was becoming more available for real estate and building purposes. The indications were that building was going to start up presently into something like normal activity.

"A lot of work is getting ready," said Mr. Goss, "and with easier money and low costs for material and labor, there should soon be a large amount of building. I think this will be visible as soon as certainties are established in political affairs."

The brick interests are not disposed to leave the arena of discussion entirely to the cement interests. It is understood that they had a committee in attendance at the recent hearing before the Building Code Revision Commission on Masonry and Foundations which would have had something to say in favor of brick construction had the respective merits of brick and concrete really come before the meeting.

The committee consisted of Messrs. William K. Hammond, Wright D. Goss and Nathaniel Wise. The question of masonry construction was not alluded to at the meeting, but an intimation was given that the old construction needed no defense, and that the existing code would stand in all respects that affect walls and foundations.

It is understood that the representatives of the brick interests were prepared on this occasion to say something to the effect that there were some limitations to the availability of concrete construction, for both economical and practical reasons, as compared to brick construction.

The National Association of Brick Manufacturers are coming to a realization that something must be done to defend the market for brick from the competition of rival materials. The old notion that bricks are indispensable is still true, but not in so full a measure. Something like the following action, taken at the last convention, had been expected:

"Whereas, We deem that the matter of bringing to the attention of the general public the superior merits of burned clay as a building material in all forms of structural work to be of great importance, be it

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the chair to consider ways and means of securing this desired publicity in the most effective manner possible; that the president and secretary of this association be ex-officio members of said committee and that the committee report to the executive committee, with the view of securing action, if same seems desirable, at the earliest date practicable."

CEMENT.—The quarterly convention of the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers was held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City. The principal business transacted was the discussion pro and con of trade conditions and reading of technical papers. J. B. Lober, Esq., of Philadelphia, presided. A banquet was held Wednesday evening at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel. The annual meeting will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York, next December.

This association is composed of practically all the cement companies of the country.

The head of one of the leading cement concerns, in speaking about the business situation, expressed the opinion this week that as soon as the election is over trade conditions would return to something like a normal basis. He said:

"Just now we are experiencing a slight improvement, say about 10 per cent., as compared with the period of depression following the late panic, when our business fell off approximately 50 per cent. In keeping with this prices which ruled on the basis of $1.61 per bbl. about a year ago are now down to $1.48 New York.

"As might naturally be supposed, the late financial upheaval checked building operations, etc., all around. However, with the elections over the wheels of trade will again start in active motion, and by this time next year I believe we will be in the throes of marked improvement in the commercial world. In the meantime building operations will be facilitated by a readjustment in the various iron and steel products, which I expect to take place before a great while."

Contracts for the enlargement of the Crescent-Portland Cement Company's plant at Wampum, Pa., to cost $850,000, have been awarded to the National Building & Construction Co., of Ellwood City, Pa. Six new buildings will be erected and the capacity will be increased from 300 bbls. to 3,000 bbls. a day. The new buildings will be of concrete construction, with structural steel trusses and cement tile roof. The improvement programme includes the following: Kiln building, 120x200 ft.; raw grinding building, 280x100 ft.; dry grinding building, 240x60 ft.; coal pulverizing building, 100x70 ft.; stock house, 500x70 ft.; machine shop and office building. Plans were prepared several months ago.

IRON, STEEL ETC.—When the reduction in steel bars was announced last week, all the inquiries for bids on large structural shapes were withdrawn in expectation of a readjustment of prices in that department also. A general opinion prevailed that there would be no large activity until there was some modification. All the open concessions that had been made had been shouldered supposedly by the fabricators and erectors.

Until the last moment the representatives of the Steel Corporation denied that there would be any further reduction. Their stout and long-continued protestations, that prices would be maintained on the old level, in face of the general depression, has been widely remarked upon.

The official announcement stated that the prices of iron ore had been or would be reduced 50 cents per ton base. Billets, from $28 per ton to $25 per ton. Pittsburgh, sheet bars, from $29 per ton to $27 per ton, Pittsburgh; plates, from $1.70 per 100 pounds to $1.60 per 100 pounds, Pittsburgh; structural iron, from $1.70 per 100 pounds to $1.60 per 100 pounds, Pittsburgh; merchant pipe, a reduction of two points or $4 per ton, Pittsburgh; wire nails, from $2.05 per 100 pounds to $1.95 per 100 pounds.

The reduction in the structural iron, while not very large, is particularly welcome to the building trades and the general belief is that it ought to be productive of much new business. One reason for the delay in work coming forward has been the high cost of structural shapes, as most other materials have been greatly reduced in cost.

Among the orders pending are those for the Hotel Astor extension, the Whitehall Building annex, the building for the Island Realty Co., at 69 Wall, one at John and William for which Whitney-Steen Co. is the general contractor, the Emigrant Saving Bank, the Municipal Building, and a pier shed for the Hamburg American Co., at Hoboken, besides numerous smaller structures in Manhattan that have been pending for weeks.

The Iron Age says: "So far as the attitude of the iron trade can be gauged so soon after the announcement of the readjustment in prices on steel billets and certain lines of finished materials, it is one of disappointment. It is not radical enough and merely recognizes concessions which had been more or less openly made during recent works, and which had been undermining confidence both among sellers and among buyers."

For several weeks that concessions for structural shapes were obtainable in certain quarters was generally known. The official cut recognizes these, and unless the fabricating and erecting concerns resolve to carry their personal reduction farther, the difference in quotations will not be particularly noticeable. The repre sentative of one structural steel firm said: "For months past consumers of steel have been awaiting this event and now that it is about to come it is not likely that they will hold back for further cuts. "Our own case is an example of this. For months we have been making sales of structural material at a very small profit, and even at no profit at all, simply to keep from absolute idleness. Now that prices of the basic material are to be lowered and our old margin of profit to be restored, there would be little to gain in holding out for still further reductions. Reductions by the steel manufacturers should have come long ago. We cut our prices to meet changed conditions; the steel manufacturers should have, too."

One steel man expressed this opinion: "I do not know what effect the reduction will have on business. I am not enough of an optimist to be enthusiastic over the outlook or to expect that there will be a sudden rush for steel products. The action taken is good from an economic point of view, and it seems to me what is good in economics is good in business."

The Housesmiths' Union has made a complaint to Comptroller Metz that the prevailing rate of wages law is being violated on the contract of the McClintic-Marshall Company at Piers 57, 58 and 59, North River, known as the Chelsea Piers Contract. Walter Drew, Commissioner of the National Erectors' Association, says the union made the complaint merely to try to coerce the contractors into employing union housesmiths only. The contract is an open shop one.

J. Van Vechten Olcott, receiver for the Milliken Steel Company, manufacturers of structural steel, intimates that the Milliken works on Staten Island will soon resume. He said:

"In my judgment, while I am not a steel expert, many of the independent steel manufacturers have been working at a loss. This reduction will probably let them into the market on a profit-paying basis. I believe it will also affect the price of structural steel. I regard it as a good sign."

TIN PLATE.—Tin plate manufacturers report a heavy call for nearly all grades. Mills are running to capacity on rush orders, due to the approach of the canning season. Galvanized plates are also in good request, but black plates are still a little slow.

A meeting of the Eastern bar iron manufacturers is being held for the purpose of effecting some arrangement that will put business on a better basis. In the meantime quotations are uncertain.

LUMBER.—In Manhattan carpenter and joiner work is scarcely in better form than in midwinter, as indicated by the number of unemployed mechanics, but in the other boroughs and in Jersey and Westchester there is a decidedly better state of affairs, which seems to being improved upon. Building work during the summer will not be of large proportions, but it is expected that there will be a lot of work under way in the early fall. As stocks in the hands of both jobbers and retailers are not of large proportions, some good orders are expected before September. Prices on nearly all lines are still irregular and quotably unchanged.

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

OILS AND VARNISHES.—A large amount of repair work in town and country is reported, but the absence of the usual amount of other work leaves a surplus of material and labor. Linseed oil continues to hold steady on the basis of previous quotations, but many in the trade are now of the opinion that the present business does not justify any advance in prices. As regards varnishes, round lots are not receiving much attention, but a good jobbing business is reported, with prices firmly maintained, owing to continued strength in values abroad, but these values are much below the level of former years.

WINDOW GLASS.—Prices in the metropolitan district are referred to as about 90 and 35 per cent. discount for single and 90 and 40 per cent. discount for double strength glass. It is intimated, however, that the market is an open one.

WIRE.—The presumption is at this writing that a reduction has been made in plain wire, in conformity with the changes in other iron and steel schedules, but the particulars as they will affect consumers have not yet become certain.

Demand for Paving Brick Growing.

The annual report of the secretary of the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, shows that the members of the association furnished 4,250,306 sq. yd. of paving-brick pavement during 1907, which is equivalent to a street 27 ft. wide and 268 miles long.

During the first two months of 1908, 216,341 sq. yd. of brick pavement were let or nearly 14 miles, notwithstanding the winter season when paving contracts are not considered in most cities.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Hotel Gramatan to be Rebuilt at Once.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y.—Plans will be prepared at once for rebuilding the south wing of the Hotel Gramatan Inn, at Lawrence Park, Bronxville, N. Y., the portion destroyed by fire, in a manner that will be practically a reproduction of the original building. A portion of the wing destroyed was three stories in height and the rest four stories. Fire walls separated the building into three sections and saved two-thirds of the building. It will be recalled that the Gramatan was also burned in the spring of 1900. Plans were prepared in competition by Renwick, Aspinwall & Owen, Chas. I. Berg and Barlow & Bates for a building, four stories, 100x200 feet, to accommodate about 300 guests, and cost about $75,000. Barlow & Bates, of 5 West 31st st, won the competition, and the general contract was given to John Borup, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., on a percentage basis. Earl & Kingsley, of Yonkers, had the carpenter work, Walker & Chambers doing the heating. A. W. Lawrence, of No. 542 5th av, is the present owner. No contracts have yet been issued for the new building.

New Broadway Office Building.

BROADWAY.—Messrs. Lee & Fleischmann, 141 Broadway, have commissioned William L. Rouse to prepare plans for the immediate erection of a high office building at Nos. 1182-1184 Broadway, adjoining the Hotel Breslin, at the southeast corner of 29th st, on a plot measuring 53x114 ft. It is expected that the building will be completed ready for occupancy in the early part of 1909. It is believed that this operation is but a forerunner of a building movement of some proportions which will take place in this section above Madison Square, when the Pennsylvania and McAdoo tunnel improvements are completed.

The Fifth Avenue Theatre is diagonally opposite and the Hicks Building is in the rear. At present there is a 5½-sty building on the site.

Alterations in Flatiron Building.

All of the windows in the Flatiron Building are to be changed, the contract having been awarded to the J. F. Blanchard Company, with offices in the same building. All of the new windows, upwards of 1,000, will be fireproof. The same company has the contract for the metal-covered doors and interior metal trimming called for in the plans of the Roebling Building.

John W. Rapp will supply the fireproof doors for the big office building to be erected on the site of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. There will be nearly 1,700 in all, including about 273 small valve doors. The contract also includes 2,500 fireproof windows, 86,000 ft. of picture molding and 1,300 interior sash.

Plans Ready for Emigrant Savings Bank.

CHAMBERS ST.—Architect Raymond F. Almirall, 51 Chambers st, has now completed plans for the new 14-sty office and banking institution which the Emigrant Savings Industrial Association, Thomas M. Mulry, president, is about to erect at Nos. 43 to 47 Chambers st, running through to Nos. 21 to 25 Reade st. It is expected that figures will be taken shortly, and the contracts let in the near future. The size of the building will be 120x151 ft. The plot is admirably situated, and is generally regarded as an ideal location for a modern building. (See issue Feb. 1, 1908.)

Whitney-Steen Co. Get New Contract.

JOHN ST.—The general contract has been awarded to the Whitney-Steen Company, engineers, contractors and builders, No. 135 Broadway, for the erection of the new office building at the northwest corner of John and William sts for the Golden Hill Building Company, No. 76 William st. The plot measures 89.11x123.3 ft., and the site is to be cleared immediately. Architect A. D. Shepard, Jr., 36 East 23d st, is preparing the plans, calling for best fireproof construction. The building is to be ready for occupancy by May 1, 1909. (See issue June 6, 1908.)

Ten Dwellings for Gravesend Avenue, Brooklyn.

GRAVESEND AV.—Messrs. Shampan & Shampan, 772 Broadway, Brooklyn, are preparing plans for ten 3-sty 2-family brick dwellings and also one 2-sty 2-family brick dwelling, to be erected at the northwest corner of Gravesend av and Av C, Brooklyn, for the Macon Construction Co., 545A Macon st, Brooklyn. The buildings will be erected on a plot 200x100 ft., designed in the French Renaissance (modern) type of architecture and trimmed with white glazed terra cotta and a gray Roman brick. The interior will be finished of hardwood trim.

Final Award of Esopus Water Shed.

The contract for the complete construction of the Wallkill division of the Catskill Water Supply has been awarded to the T. A. Gillespie Co., 90 West st, Manhattan, at figures of $6,290,803.50. The other bidders were as follows: Bradley Contracting Co., 329 West 68th st, $6,414,335; McArthur Brothers Co., 11 Pine st, $6,419,173; Degnon Contracting Co., 60 Wall st, $6,579,410, and S. Pearson & Son, Long Island City, $6,787,111.25. The engineers' estimate for the construction of this work was $5,313,684, and the time required fifty-four months.

Honor Degree for Daniel V. Mahoney.

All who will have business relations with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings will learn with pleasure that Daniel V. Mahoney, one of Superintendent Edward Murphy's chiefs of staff, was awarded a civil engineer's degree by the Faculty of Cooper Institute as one of the honors of its semi-centennial year. The coveted prize was won by Mr. Mahoney as a result of several years of study at night after his department duties were over in the classes of the Post Graduate School and is an advance in professional rank for the recipient, who was already a master in sanitary engineering.

Mr. Mahoney joined the department in 1897 as an expert in plumbing, and his diligence and capacity for responsible work was so modestly proven that when the recent rapid development of the uptown section of Manhattan enlarged the field of department supervision, Mr. Murphy placed him in charge of the upper district with full rank and authority as a chief of division. As such he has won the confidence and regard of master plumbers and builders generally and vindicated the judgment of the superintendent in promoting him.

Brick Leads for Street Paving.

An interesting investigation was recently made by the "Municipal Journal" to ascertain the relative use of various materials utilized for paving city streets throughout the country. The results of the inquiries show that, during 1907, brick led the entire list in all sections except New England, where stone block and gravel found more general use. In the Middle Atlantic States asphalt occupied second place, and in the South Atlantic states bitulithic pavement stood second. In the Ohio Valley district brick constituted more than 80 per cent. of the material used, and it is estimated that in 1908 it will constitute fully 90 per cent. In the estimate for 1908 it appears that asphalt will take first place in the Middle Atlantic states and stone block in the South Atlantic states, but brick will continue to be the favorite in the Ohio Valley and Mississippi Valley states. In the Rocky Mountain district and on the Pacific Coast asphalt leads all other paving material.

CONCRETE MACHINERY.—The Ransome Concrete Machinery Co., of Dunellen, N. J., is having a great demand for their 200-page handbook of machinery for making and handling concrete. It describes mixers of various kinds and for many purposes, barrows, boilers, hoisting engines, tools for surfacing concrete, Ransomite for making new concrete adhere to old and many other tools and products. There are nearly 100 pages of tables and other information that will be found useful to engineers, including methods of mixing concrete, cost data on the subject, and the layout of concrete mixing plant.

Inferior Tin False Economy.

Twisted and tattered pieces of tin on the top of a scrap heap in the rear of the office of the Roof Maintenance Company, 55 E 124th st., tell a tale that is full of significance. It is just about eight months ago that this same tin was laid as roofing of a new tenement house and its brilliant appearance on a bright day seemed to justify the assertion of the roofers that it was good for many years.

A few days ago the owner called up Mr. L. C. Anderson, president of the Roof Maintenance Company, and asked him to have the covering of the tenement house inspected, as there was a leakage. Investigation disclosed the condition indicated by the appearance of the scraps referred to. The tin had not been painted on the under side and, being of an inferior quality, corrosion had made great ravages in one section of the roof. After but eight months of service it was practically useless. To a query as the cause, whether incompetency, false economy or ignorance on the part of the owner or original roofers Mr. Anderson said:

"It was a case of using an inferior quality of tin. The desire of speculators to put up a building that looks all right after a superficial inspection by a prospective buyer has led them to increase the use of inferior tin for roofing, when that material is decided upon. The average buyer knows little or nothing about roofing. The result is that when we repair a roof the new owners have become so disappointed with the showing made by the tin that some different and more serviceable material is demanded.

"We frequently cover an old tin roof with slag or composition. The use of this inferior tin is shaking the faith in tin generally, although roofing of good tin is most desirable and its use is continued very often where repairs are made. Its service is always good.

"The city authorities are constantly sending out specifications for repairs to the old schools and when the old material is tin the specifications generally call for slag or some other good substitute."

The rather astonishing fact was disclosed by Mr. Anderson that, although roofing of inferior tin cost about $3 more per square foot than that of slag, the cheap tin is used very often in preference to slag or composition. A satisfactory explanation for this could not be given. In sharp contrast to the roof that lasted but eight months Mr. Anderson cited a case of a slag covering that did not require repairing until 33 years after it had been laid.

Building in May Shows a Decrease.

Statistics showing the amount of new building for which permits have been issued in the principal cities over a period of months furnish an excellent index of the trend of affairs in an important field of outdoor work. These data indicate the state of employment among a large class of representative artisans, and unfortunately the figures of recent months have not been telling a cheerful tale, the January, February, March and April exhibits having recorded decreases of 45, 40, 37 and 30 per cent. respectively. However, the returns for May, to Bradstreets, are somewhat more pleasant, for reports from seventy-eight cities in the United States show that permits were taken out for buildings involving a total expenditure of $48,602,316, which sum represents a decrease of only 9.2 per cent. from April —which month usually sees the first rush of new building permits, because it is then that spring work opens in earnest—and as compared with May, 1907, the decrease is 27 per cent. Twenty-four cities contribute increases over May last year, and some of these are of large proportions. Thus Salt Lake City furnishes an increase of 539 per cent., Fort Worth one of 145.7 per cent., Topeka 142.9 per cent., while Denver and Pittsburgh report gains that are identical in amount—111.7 per cent. respectively. On the other hand, fifty-four cities show decreases from May, 1907, and the majority are for large amounts. It is noteworthy that while the metropolis shows a decrease of 42.1 per cent., Chicago reports a loss of only 1.1 per cent.

The following table, based on returns from an unusually large number of cities, furnishes a very complete record of building operations in the United States during the elapsed five months of the calendar year, together with comparisons for 1907:

Lessons from 'Frisco Fire.

Reports given out in New York indicate that property owners in San Francisco are taking advantage of the lessons taught by the great conflagration in that city several years ago. The plans to protect the new structures against fire include the installation of fireproof doors in many of the finest buildings being put up. Orders to Eastern manufacturers of metal work for doors, windows and interior trimming are following in quick succession. The fire has taught the same lesson in other cities on and near the Pacific slope, and the building operations there are swelling the contracts being signed in the West.

The Dahlstrom Metallic Door Company, 299 Broadway, has closed about a dozen contracts to furnish metal or metal-covered doors for new fireproof buildings in San Francisco, Los Angeles and other Pacific cities. The J. F. Blanchard Company, Fuller Building, have similar contracts for the First National Bank Building and the McGregor Building in San Francisco.

WHAT MINERAL WOOL IS.—Some reminiscences about mineral wool have elicited a contribution from George M. Huss, the architect, saying: "I used this product in the walls and under the floors of the residence of the former president of the New York Stock Exchange—Samuel T. Hubbard, Jr.—at Yonkers, about twenty-five years ago. A. Mr. Elbers was then interested in the material, which was called 'slag wool,' because of the accident which suggested its manufacture. The waste slag from an iron furnace happened to come in contact with a steam pipe in the refuse yard and the escaping steam puffed it into wool, hence mineral wool. When it first appeared the resemblance to sheep's wool deceived all sorts of people, and many wagers were lost by those unfamiliar with its properties in trying to set it on fire."

THE WEEK.

THE market was exceedingly dull and uninteresting. The number of sales reported was small, and with a few exceptions there were none of special note. The corresponding week last year also showed a large falling off and almost without exception each succeeding week made a poorer showing, until finally the number of sales consummated for the week ending January 11, gave a grand total of 20. From that time to date there has been an increase, to be sure spasmodic at times, but the tendency was always toward greater activity. The greatest number of deals put through was the weed ending May 2, when 91 were reported. Brokers as a whole do not expect an active market until after the election, and say they will be perfectly satisfied if the situation will have thoroughly cleared itself by that time.

The City of New York purchased the old dispensary building on the northwest corner of Centre and White sts, 54.6x90.11; also the southwest corner of Centre and Walker sts, 70.3x75, as well as the plot 36x101 on the northwest corner of Centre and Howard sts. These plots were purchased through the Public Service Commission and will be used for the new subway extension. The two 3-sty and basement dwellings 31 and 33 East 27th st were bought by the Felt Construction Co., and it is their intention to erect an 8-sty office building. No. 31 has a frontage of 22.4 feet, and was sold in May, 1905, for $31,700.

The 5-sty double tenement 235 East 94th st, 25x100, was purchased by an investor, who gave in trade the 4-sty double flat 234 Linden st, Brooklyn. A sale that met with considerable comment was that of the old Hotel Balmoral, on the east side of Lenox av, between 113th and 114th sts. This property was purchased by the seller at public auction about thirteen months ago for $342,350. They attempted to sell it at auction last April, but the market conditions were such that they had to buy it in. The old building is going to be demolished and two 6-sty elevator apartments erected in its place. This deal will have a decided influence on that section, because about ten lots are involved. The original venture, as a hotel, was a failure, and the building has remained untenanted for some years.

The sale of the 6-sty apartment on the northeast corner of Madison av and 96th st is also worthy of attention. This building occupies a lot 100x101.1, and is a modern structure. It is in a prominent apartment house district. On the north is the Ambassador, a 6-sty building, 100x100, and adjoining on the east are two 6-sty houses each with a frontage of 50 feet and built to a depth of 88 feet. Probably the two sales that involved the smallest amount of land each that were put through were those of a small strip of land about 15 feet deep. They are located at the rear of 31 and 33 Hamilton terrace, and were purchased by the owners of those houses. The price paid for the land at the back of No. 33 was $400. These purchases are important as they fill out the plots, and make the two properties considerably more valuable.

In the Bronx the 5-sty tenement 305 and 307 East 146th st, 37.6x100, changed hands. This is a newly constructed house and is located 112.6 feet west of College av. The price reported was $49,000. An investor also bought 530 East 148th st, a 5-sty flat, 25x100, and the 6-sty tenement 531 and 533 East 155th st also was sold. There were also a number of vacant lots that found their way into new hands.

The Woytisek Construction Co. borrowed from the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Co. $135,000 for 5 years at 5½ per cent. on the property 35 to 39 West 96th st. This holding is vacant and is located 307 feet east of Columbus av, about 64x101. Pincus Lowenfeld loaned Charles I. Weinstein $109,000 on demand at 6 per cent., on the property known as 195 to 203 Av B, which is located on the northeast corner of 12th st. The building known as 195 and 197 Av B, a 6-sty structure, is the Tompkins Square Post Office, and occupies a lot 50x93, the building being built to a depth of 87 feet. The rest of the plot is improved by two 6-sty tenements, each 39.6x93, having a depth of 80 feet. The Manhattan Dock Co., a corporation of New Jersey, borrowed from the Compound Motor Co., of Brooklyn, a corporation of West Virginia, $60,000 for two years at 6 per cent. on the land between high and low water mark and under water in and around Ward's Island and outside low water mark to exterior line, beginning at the junction of Harlem River and Little Hell Gate and 413.8 west on the line between lots 1 and 2 on the map of Ward's Island, containing about 97/100 acres.

THE AUCTION MARKET

THE auction market again presented a doleful appearance. With the exception of a sale of some Long Island City lots, the offerings were very ordinary. The majority of the offerings were by order of the Court and the results were decidedly unsatisfactory to the defendants.

The property on the north side of 180th st, 198 feet west of Crotona av, 33x135.7, vacant, was purchased by James G. Gregg for $4,600. This was at a partition sale. The 2-sty dwelling and store on the north side of 150th st, 175 feet west of Convent av, was knocked down to Henry Powell for $6,100. The amount due on the judgment was $5,499.43; taxes and other charges amounting to $92.42. The 4-sty dwelling 569 West 161st st went to Martin McHale for $14,800. This property is on a lot 18.11x99.11 and is located 190.11 feet east of Broadway. The amount of the judgment was $14,271.07; taxes and other charges aggregating $230. The sale of the 4-sty tenement 147 West 63d st, 414.3 feet west of Columbus av, sold to Patrick J. Cosgrove for $14,250. The size of the property is 18.6x100.5. The amount due on the judgment was $13,157.79; taxes and other charges amounting to $613.71.

There is one reason why auction sales of the forced variety are not a success at the present time and that is because prospective purchasers are timid about bidding, because they fear their ability to place a loan on the property. They argue that this particular parcel has a black name, because the owner did not pay his interest, and a doubt immediately arises in his mind whether he had better have anything to do with property which has been in trouble.

Another and exceedingly important reason for the failure of the market to respond is due to the fact that the professional speculator is not taking on any additional lines, and the public in general is totally unfamiliar with the workings of this kind of sale. Of late some of the auctioneers have taken the trouble to explain explicitly what a sale of this charactor means, what the purchaser is expected to do, what the seller must do. In fact they know where they stand. The result is that these particular sales have netted better results than they otherwise would have.

The auctioneers take too much for granted. They think that because they know all the inner workings of the auction market that every one who attends these sales must also. It would certainly be a paying investment to print the terms of sale in a clear and concise form. Assume that everyone is attending his first sale, and start from the beginning. It may be somewhat tiresome to some of the old stagers, but the results will justify the additional time spent.

RENTAL DEPOSITS.—The practice of returning rental deposits to prospective tenants who change their minds is spreading more and more in Manhattan and the Bronx. It is a bad custom and should be discouraged. Insist on the applicant living up to his agreement and don't let sentiment alter your purpose. Business is business.

LAW DEPARTMENT

TITLE REGISTRATION.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

In the article entitled "The New Title Registration Act," in your issue of May 23d, I notice several misunderstandings of that law.

The Land Title Registration Act, is to go into effect on the first of February, 1909, throughout the entire State of New York. By its provisions its use is entirely optional with the individual and in this, as in many other provisions, it is very similar to the Massachusetts Act. It was prepared by a majority of the Commission appointed under chapter No. 628 of the Laws of 1907, by Governor Hughes, to investigate the Torrens System of Land Title Registration. The Commission was authorized to draw a bill for the adoption of a system of land title registration in this State if it believed that the results of its investigation justified its doing so. The investigation was thorough and was carried on by correspondence with whoever could be of help to the Commission and by a study of the literature published on the subject. The conditions relating to land transfer in this State were examined, also those in all the States of our Country which have adopted a Torrens System, and in the provinces of Canada and Australia. Our consuls as well reported to the Commission on the systems prevailing in the various countries in which they were stationed. A full description of the methods employed was given in the report of the Commission to the Governor and the Legislature, which was printed by the State and also by the Brooklyn Eagle. The majority of the Commission became convinced that our present system, the recording of instruments "grows more cumbersome as it becomes older" and "is tending to break down of its own weight," and that a system of Land Title Registration will sooner or later be adopted by all civilized States. The most perfect form now existing is to be found in the German and Austrian Empires where the system is compulsory. The evolution there from the mere recording of deeds to the complete registration of titles, is fully shown by C. Fortescue Brickdale, in the Parliamentary Report of 1896 of his investigation in these countries. A special report on the working of the Act in Boston, Massachusetts was made by Mr. Ralph Folks, a member of the Commission. He found that a majority of the Savings Banks accepted the certificate at the Registrar's Office as proof of title and made loans thereon. He also found general satisfaction there with the system and was convinced that the Act resulted in no injustice nor was there any real cause of complaint against it. This report and the address of Judge Davis, of the Land Court of Massachusetts before the New York State Bar Association (printed by that body), are convincing proofs of the effectiveness of land title registration in Massachusetts.

A title registration system is now in operation in the county of London, England, the population of which is about 5,000,000, compulsory upon all sales or dealings in real property. It has been in force there about ten years and the last report of the Registrar showed an average of 48 new registrations, and 70 dealings, or 118 transactions a day, for the four years ending December 31, 1905. The report of our Consul-General at London to the Commission stated that the annual cost of the Registrar's office in that city was about $250,000. The cost of the Register's office in the Borough of Kings is about $225,000 a year and that for Manhattan is about the same; and this is for the mere recording of instruments. This recording is the basis and the most costly part of the work required to register titles to real property. Our States and cities perform the most expensive portion of the work necessary to title registration, but do not give their citizens the benefit of the economies which should result therefrom.

A most careful and painstaking report upon the constitutionality of an act for the registration of titles, was made for the Commission by Professor Alfred G. Reeves (printed in full in its report), the conclusion of which was that an act could be drawn which would be constitutional under both the laws of the State of New York and of the United States. The act as passed, is both in general plan and details largely the work of Professor Reeves. It preserves as nearly as possible the methods now employed in our laws relating to real property. It does not create a new set of office holders. It is intended to make use of the plants of the title companies and will cause but little increased expenditure of public money.

After registration the cost of dealing in real property will be very moderate and it will facilitate its transfer and the loaning of money thereon.

Yours respectfully,
DAVID A. CLARKSON.

June 3, 1908.

[In the copy of the Title Registration Act before us at the time of writing the article to which our correspondent has reference, the provision was for a referendum of the act to the several counties at a general election, before adoption as law. In the act finally signed by the Governor, the law as a whole becomes operative throughout the State Feb. 1, 1909, without further action, as since stated in these columns.—Ed.]

ROBINSON RAPID TRANSIT BILL.

DISAPPOINTMENT EXPRESSED THAT MEASURE WAS VETOED BY GOVERNOR.

THE vetoing by Gov. Hughes of the Robinson Rapid Transit Bill is a source of disappointment to many realty owners, who have been working arduously for better transit conditions. It is not believed that private capital will come into the market and offer to lease the lines when completed, and the concensus of opinion is the city will not only have to build the route, but will also have its operation on its hands.

Were the road to be run with profit to the city, matters would be comparatively simple, but assume, for the sake of argument, that the road was operated at a loss, the indebtedness would immediately revert to the debt limit and the concurrent resolution would be of no avail. Mr. Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, when asked for his opinion on the matter by a representative of the Record and Guide, said:

"Further consideration of Governor Hughes' veto of the Robinson bill amending the Rapid Transit Act gives little comfort to those who are interested in securing additional transit facilities for this city. It must be remembered that any additional transit roads—trolley, elevated or subway—must now be built by the city. The only means for financing the same, as the law now stands, is out of the diminishing margin in the city's debt limit. Governor Hughes, in his memorandum, referred to the passage of the concurrent resolution which, if passed next year and voted upon favorably by the electors in November, 1909, would, he assumed, afford an additional method of financing rapid transit roads.

"The concurrent resolution which the Governor relies upon for the construction of rapid transit roads will be of no assistance in the case of subways which are not profitable. The indebtedness of a non-self-supporting improvement, under the provisions of the concurrent resolution, reverts to the debt limit. Under these circumstances, I doubt if the city would be able to finance any subway under the provisions of the concurrent resolution, for the reason that the best expert opinion is to the effect that a city-built subway cannot be operated profitably.

"The Governor gave it as his opinion," concluded Mr. Robinson, "that private capital would not invest under the provisions of the Robinson bill. I do not know where he obtained his information on this point. It was the opinion of those who supported the Robinson bill that private capital would invest under its provisions, and I believe that even if subways could not have been built through the use of private capital, much needed surface and elevated lines in the outlying portions of the city would have been constructed."

IMMEDIATE ACTION NECESSARY.

Mr. Edward F. Clark, secretary of the City Investing Co., said:

"It is to be hoped that the civic associations which advocated the Robinson bill, vetoed by Governor Hughes, after passing both Houses of the Legislature, will continue their campaign for legislation which will secure proper transit facilities for the City of New York. The consistent support given this movement by the Allied Real Estate Interests and other organizations of taxpayers has served to emphasize more strongly the necessity for immediate action on the part of the proper public authorities. The Robinson bill, if it had been enacted into law, would have furnished an opportunity for an early test of the question, whether or not private capital would enter the field when afforded an opportunity for a reasonable return on the investment. The bill would have left the control of the franchise to be granted in the hands of the Public Service Commission, so that equitable terms would have been obtained by the city or the bids could have been rejected. It has been quite conclusively shown that under the present law private corporations will not enter the field of leasing the city subways for the period permitted under the existing laws. Apparently with the laws unchanged, we are committed to a policy of not only municipal construction but even of municipal operation.

"The advocates of this policy of municipal construction state that, upon the adoption of an amendment to the constitution, exempting from the debt limit bonds issued for rapid transit construction, the city will be in a position to built its own subways to such extent as it may desire, but even if the amendment to the constitution should produce this result, it would postpone the undertaking of any new work until 1910. A more serious objection to reliance upon this source of relief is the fact that under the provisions of this amendment to the constitution it is necessary, in order that bonds be exempted from the debt limits, that the public improvement for which they are issued, shall yield sufficient income to meet the interest on the bonds. It would probably not be controverted that construction by the city will be more expensive than that by a private corporation and that its operation will also be more costly. It is the opinion of some authorities that subways built and operated by the city would not yield sufficient net income to meet the interest upon the bonds issued therefor. If this should occur, the result would be unfortunate upon the credit of the City of New York, as it would create a situation where the bonds outstanding were in excess of the proper debt limit."

Chairman William R. Willcox, of the Public Service Commission, said: "It will be a long time before the concurrent resolution which the Governor mentions in his memorandum becomes operative. It must be remembered that the next Legislature must take action upon it, and after that the people must put it to vote. It is questionable in my mind whether it fully covers the situation."

OPPOSES FOURTH AVENUE SUBWAY.

The following letter to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment from Edward Polak, representing the Nineteen Civic Associations, urges strongly the immediate commencement of subway construction in Manhattan and the Bronx. These associations have made a consistent fight against the construction of the 4th av subway in Brooklyn, and in many respects their arguments are sound. Unquestionably the denser parts of town should have transit facilities, in preference to the outlying districts. What would become of the additional number of people landed in Manhattan? The present accommodations are far from adequate. One of the answers to this argument is that many people will leave Manhattan and buy and build in Brooklyn, and thus relieve the congestion. This sounds all right, but as a matter of fact it will not work out that way.

There are always plenty of people to step in and take the places of those who have moved. When the present system was being built the argument was advanced that Manhattan would certainly seriously feel the effects, to the greater advantage of the Bronx. This has not been the case. The Bronx has been helped materially, but can any one say that Manhattan has suffered?

The facts of the matter are that Manhattan cannot take care of the traffic conditions as they are to-day. When the several bridges under way are completed; when the tunnels nearing completion are being operated, the present rapid transit system will appear childish. Why add to the disorder by building additional outlying routes, landing a large number of people in Manhattan when it is impossible to take care of the crowds of to-day, with the present facilities? First of all build a subway in Manhattan. Build it north and south, connecting with the Bronx, and try to meet the present requirements before taking on any additional load.

Board of Estimate and Apportionment,

Gentlemen: The question of appropriating money to build the 4th av Brooklyn subway will come up before your Board next Friday. The Nineteen Civic Associations of Manhattan and the Bronx have, from the beginning, opposed the 4th av subway unless the Broadway-Lexington av subway was built at the same time. We have all along contended that the route is part of the Tri-Borough system and this system should be started in the three boroughs at once so as to complete the system in the quickest time.

We also contended that the east side of the Borough of Manhattan is the most thickly populated and needs a subway before any other part of Greater New York.

We have also maintained and it cannot be successfully disputed that a subway running along the east side of Manhattan would pay better than any other part of Greater New York. For these and many other reasons, which we have stated from time to time, we are opposed to building the 4th av subway as an independent proposition.

On February 28th, 1908, the Nineteen Civic Associations of Manhattan and the Bronx held a mass meeting in the Morris Building, corner 149th st and 3d av. The hall was crowded to the doors. Resolutions were passed demanding that the tri-borough subway be built for which the City of New York had already spent over one million dollars on plans alone. But that there be expended "Not one dollar for Brooklyn subways unless Manhattan and the Bronx be included." Yet, despite the great demand of the people of Manhattan and the Bronx for subways, it appears that your Board intends to side-track them and build the Brooklyn Subway.

When the matter of appropriating money for the 4th av subway comes up it should be deferred until the Broadway-Lexington av-Bronx routes are included.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Public Service Commission have approved the Broadway-Lexington av-Bronx routes and the Public Service Commission are preparing or have prepared a form of contract for your approval. It is only necessary for your Board to approve the form of contract and the Public Service Commission can let the contracts and the work started before the summer is well advanced.

There will be an additional sum of about $50,000,000 added to the city's borrowing capacity next month. Let the Board of Estimate appropriate $10,000,000 of this to begin the Great Tri-Borough System this will be enough for one year's work, next year another $10,000,000 can be appropriated. In two years the constitutional amendment eliminating the cost of subways from the debt limit will have become a law, then all the money needed can be procured for subways by selling subway bonds irrespective of the so-called debt limit.

If you gentlemen will work on these lines we will have subways in sight very soon. It is up to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to furnish this relief and the citizens of New York will hold you responsible if the relief is not forthcoming soon.

We want the subways and want them NOW.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD POLAK, President.

—Automobile stages running to Riverside drive and 72d st were put in operation last Thursday by the Fifth Av. Coach Co. The route of the new line will be as follows: through 5th av, from Washington sq to 57th st, thence to Broadway, to 72d st, to Riverside drive. The fare will be ten cents and no transfers will be issued. As soon as enough of the new automobiles arrive this route will be continued up the drive as far as 135th st. The new vehicles will carry red globes by day and red lights by night to distinguish them from the older line.

TAXES PAID IN VARIOUS CITIES.

WHAT amount of tax per thousand does the realty owner pay in the various cities of the United States? The legal per cent. assessed for taxation may be 100%, but in actual practice the taxes are based on a smaller percentage.

Hon. Lawson Purdy, Tax Commissioner, referring to this side of the question, said: "It is a most difficult matter to properly assess property for taxation purposes. While the law in this city says real estate must be taxed on a 100% basis, I think that New York property is on about a 90% basis. This matter would be exceedingly difficult for any one not perfectly familiar with the system now in use to understand, but I have given the matter careful study and consider that the property owners in New York are paying on about that basis.

"An average must be reached. One cannot take into consideration too seriously boom prices, nor can you hold that auction prices obtained in times of panic are fair criteria of the value of a given parcel of land. There are special reasons governing nearly every parcel sold which must be taken into account.

The following table of comparative tax valuations may prove of some interest to the readers of the Record and Guide. In some instances the figures given are those for 1906, they being the latest obtainable. The figures in some instances are only approximate, but they are near enough for the purpose of comparison.

COMPARATIVE TAX VALUATIONS.

Name of city.	% value assessed for taxation.	Rate of city tax.	Tax per $1,000.
Atlanta, Ga.	66%	$1.25	$8.25
Baltimore, Md.	70%	2.00	14.00
Buffalo, N. Y.	66%	1.75	11.55
Cambridge, Mass.	90%	1.88	16.92
Chattanooga, Tenn.	33%	1.50	5.00
Denver, Colo.	33%	.75	2.49
Detroit, Mich.	80%	1.09	8.63
Duluth, Minn.	33%	1.47	4.93
Grand Rapids, Mich.	70%	.97	6.83
Indianapolis, Ind.	70%	2.16	15.12
Jersey City, N. J.	90%	1.61	14.49
Lowell, Mass.	90%	1.94	17.46
Memphis, Tenn.	70%	1.97	13.79
Milwaukee, Wiss.	60%	1.77	10.62
Minneapolis, Minn.	50%	2.45	12.20
Nashville, Tenn.	70%	1.50	10.50
Pittsburgh, Pa.	50%	1.40	7.00
Portland, Me.	90%	2.32	20.88
Providence, R. I.	90%	1.65	14.85
Richmond, Va.	80%	1.35	10.80
Rochester, N. Y.	66%	1.87	12.34
Savannah, Ga.	75%	1.45	11.85
Seattle, Wash.	50%	3.10	15.50
St. Louis, Mo.	60%	2.17	13.02
St. Paul, Minn.	50%	1.65	8.25
Toledo, Ohio.	50%	1.70	8.50
Wilmington, Del.	80%	1.00	8.00
Worcester, Mass.	66%	1.66	10.95
New York.	90%	1.50	14.50

It will be seen from the foregoing that Manhattan realty owners pay $14.50 per thousand, though the tax rate is approximately $1.50, and the law says that payment should be made on a 100% basis. While the amount paid by New Yorkers is pretty well up, still it must be remembered that they have many advantages over the realty holders in other cities. The main advantage that they have is in the fact that there is always a ready market in Manhattan.

FIFTH AVENUE RENTAL CONDITIONS.

FIFTH AVENUE property is undergoing a reaction at the present time. The condition is perfectly natural considering the enormous raise in values that has been taking place for the last few years. After a boom, prices invariably sag off somewhat, and a period of quiet sets in, and if those holding realty only have the patience and the capital to withstand the strain, everything comes out all right in the end.

The concensus of opinion of brokers along the avenue is that while there are now more stores to rent then for some time past, still considering the great number of houses remodeled and the new buildings constructed, property along that thoroughfare is giving a good account of itself.

PRICES REMAIN FIRM.

Mr. Chambers, of Chambers & Vieller, real estate brokers, 353 5th av: "There are more vacancies in store property in the 5th av section this year than in the corresponding time last year. The rents in some of the buildings are too high for the smaller merchants, though the larger houses can well afford to pay the price demanded. It is only natural that the smaller houses should seek the side streets, where their expenses will not be as heavy. In fact, the section is in the process of equalization. There has been no recessions in rents. Prices remain firm.

"The loft buildings rent for $2 per square foot, which was the price asked a year ago. In my opinion the new office building that is in the course of construction on the site of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel will help that part of the avenue. While hotels are a good thing for a shopping district of the better class, still a big improvement, such as the one I have just mentioned, is a step in the right direction."

BUSINESS RECESSION.

Mr. J. M. Stearns, manager of Ernestus Gulick Co. Estates: "There are many more vacancies on 5th av and the adjacent blocks now than for some time past. One of the reasons is that during 1907 nearly all the rents were raised and the short term leases were not renewed at their expiration. A falling off in business is the chief reason. These smaller people are moving into the side streets and renting places which command a more moderate rental. On the other hand, those firms having long term leases have elected to stay and are waiting for business to improve and pocketing a temporary loss. There has been some disappointment expressed by the newcomers from the lower portions of the city. The increase in their business has not come up to expectations, nor in proportion to their increased expenses. Naturally things will right themselves in time. Personally I am a firm believer in this district.

After all, when you have something good to sell, a customer will always be forthcoming, though, perhaps, a little patience is required. A 25-ft. store on the west side of the avenue, south of 34th st, rents for about $15,000, while on the other side of the avenue $12,000 is a fair average price. Basement stores on the west side bring about $6,000 and parlor stores about $7,000. Above 34th st $20,000 is paid for stores on the west side and $15,000 is demanded on the east side. In other words, there is an increase of about 25 per cent. asked as soon as you cross 34th st going north. One of the reasons for this advance is that a number of the larger firms are located in that zone."

PROTECTING FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association has been devoting considerable time investigating the Fire Department conditions. To this end a committee of three was appointed and their report to the association is printed herewith.

In the opinion of this committee the fire alarm system of Manhattan would be instantly destroyed should a serious accident or fire occur on the 3d or 9th av elevated railroad systems, because the fire alarm cables are suspended from the structure and in close proximity to the third rail.

While they do not recommend the expenditure of a large sum of money, at the present time, to do away with this condition, still they recommend that provision be made for suitable fire alarm conduits in the construction of the Broadway-Lexington av subway, which would afford permanent relief.

New York, May 28, 1908.

To the Harlem Property Owners Association,
147 East 125th Street, New York City.

Gentlemen:—

The undersigned, your committee, have carefully read the report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters (May 6th, 1908), on the condition of the Fire Department of this city, and we endorse the following among their numerous recommendations, viz:

6. That all unnecessary details be discontinued and that no uniformed men capable of doing active fire duty (except possibly one to the Commissioner's and chief's offices) be assigned to other than fire duty.

7. That the civil service requirements for the weight limit and chest expansion be increased, and that the physical examination count 75 per cent. and the mental examination 25 per cent. in the final average.

8. That the Fire Department Medical Board make thorough physical examinations to demonstrate the candidates' fitness for fire service.

10. That the civil service requirements for applicants to the position of engineer of steamer include a course at the engineers' school of the department and qualifying before the examining board of engineers of the Fire Deprtment.

17. That the present practice of assigning members of the uniformed force to theatre details be discontinued.

18. That the owners or proprietors of theatres be required by law to employ experienced men (able-bodied retired firemen preferred), such employees to be under the immediate supervision of the theatre inspector of the Bureau of Violations and governed by rules and regulations prescribed by the Fire Commissioner.

26. That the smaller engines in Manhattan and Brooklyn be transferred to outlying districts.

29. That additional oil surveyors be appointed so as to make periodical inspections of all licensed premises (other than for kerosene oil) as well as to supervise blasting operations.

34. That additional engine companies be established near the following locations:

West 123d st and 8th av.
West 151st st and 8th av.

35. That each of the above companies be equipped with an engine of not less than 650 gallons actual working capacity.

37. That additional ladder companies be established near the following locations:

West 116th st and Amsterdam av.
West 123d st and 8th av.

39. That water towers be located as follows: With Engine 22, East 85th st, near 3d av (tower now with Ladder 26, East 114th st). With the proposed company, West 123d st and 8th av.

Respectfully submitted,

RALPH HOLZMAN,
L. S. KAHN,
EDWARD J. MURRAY, Chairman,
Committee on Fire Department.

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

CEDAR ST.—Theo. A. Havemeyer sold 117 Cedar st, a 4-sty building, 23.7x59.9. The buyer is Charles Wolff, who owns 113-115 adjoining, and the abutting property, 110-112 Liberty st. With his latest purchase Mr. Wolff now controls a plot just west of Trinity pl fronting 60.1 ft. on Cedar st and 47.10 ft. on Liberty st, and adjoining the Engineering Building on the east.

City Acquires Land for Subway.

CENTRE ST.—The Cruikshank Co., in conjunction with Ruland & Whiting Co., sold for the New York Dispensary to the City of New York through the Public Service Commission, the old dispensary building at the northwest cor of Centre and White sts, 54.6x90.11. The Criminal Court Building is across the street and Engine Co. 31, Batallion 2, is on the northeast cor of White and Lafayette sts.

CENTRE ST.—Ruland & Whiting Co., in conjuncton with the Cruikshank Co., sold the 7-sty building on the southwest cor of Centre and Walker sts, 70.3x75, for the Rossiter Realty Co. to the City of New York. This comprises the larger portion of the block front between White and Walker sts.

CENTRE ST.—Ruland & Whiting Co. sold for the estate of Calvin Stevens the northwest cor of Centre and Howard sts, an old building, on a plot 36x101, to the City of New York, through the Public Service Commission.

Adds to Holdings.

WATER ST.—Chas. F. Noyes Co. sold to Julius and Bernhard Lichtenstein for Jas. G. Lyon, executor of estate of M. A. Lyon, the two 5-sty buildings 246-248 Water st. The purchasers, who have bought for investment, own the adjoining property 246 Water st, and now control a plot at this point about 41x82 in size. The seller acquired this property Dec. 28, 1888, from John Abendroth, the stated consideration being $26,000.

Staatz-Zeitung Purchases.

WILLIAM ST.—Ruland & Whiting Co. sold for Edward J. Hancy to Herman Ridder, for the Staats-Zeitung, 184, 186 and 190 William st, 27 Spruce st, and 31 Frankfort st, 4 and 5-sty buildings, with frontages of 78.5 ft. on William st, 25.4 ft. on Spruce st, and 14.8 ft. on Frankfort st, and covering a plot of about 13,000 sq. ft. This is the property sold through the Ruland & Whiting Co. in 1906 by the Cohen estate to Daniel B. Freedman. The Staats-Zeitung now owns a plot of nearly 17,000 sq. ft., including the northeast cor of William and Spruce sts, the site of its present building, which was purchased last year through the same brokers. A representative of Mr. Ridder said that no plans for utilizing the additional property had yet taken definite form.

27TH ST.—The Felt Construction Co. bought 31 and 33 East 27th st, two 3-sty and basement dwellings, 47.4x98.9, 100 ft. east of Madison av. An 8-sty office building will be erected on the plot from plans now being prepared by Architect Frederick C. Zobel. The building is to cost $120,000, and will be ready for occupancy in January. It will be opposite the Madison Square Garden and will have for neighbors three big apartment houses and the French Catholic Church.

27TH ST.—F. E. Barnes sold for a client to the Brunswick Realty Co. 121 and 123 East 27th st, two 3-sty and basement dwellings, 40x98.9.

Brooklyn Property in Trade.

94TH ST.—S. Bergman and S. Bacer sold for Saul Obler 235 East 94th st, a 5-sty double tenement, 25x100, to Morris Stahl, who gives in part payment the 4-sty double flat 234 Linden st, Brooklyn. The two adjoining houses, Nos 231 and 233, sold in April, 1906, at voluntary auction for $39,350, and in January, 1907, brought $40,400 at voluntary auction.

109TH ST.—Benjamin F. Vineburg sold to the Louis Meyer Realty Co. 88 East 109th st, southwest cor of Park av, a 4-sty and basement dwelling, 17x80.10, for $17,829.

113TH ST.—Gibbs & Kirby sold for L. N. Hershfield 75x100.11 on the north side of 113th st, 225 ft. west of Amsterdam av, and the abutting plot 100x100.11 on the south side of 114th st. The buyer, E. J. Moloughney, will erect high-class apartment houses on the property. Adjoining on the west are five 4 and 5-sty houses 55 ft. deep, while the property on the east is vacant.

114TH ST.—Henry B. Davis sold to Joseph Polstein 100x100.11 on the south side of 114th st, 100 ft. west of Amsterdam av. The property adjoins on the east Mr. Moloughney's purchase, reported above. Adjoining on the east facing Amsterdam av is a 6-sty apartment house 50.11x90x100, and the block front on the avenue are similar houses, except on the northwest cor of 113th st, which building is 5 stories in height. Across 114th st is Columbia University South Field, while on the east side of Amsterdam av is St. Luke's Hospital.

137TH ST.—F. Dornberger Realty Co. sold for I. Birkner to Mrs. Caroline Morlath 125 West 137th st, a 5-sty apartment house, 25x100. The property last changed hands on Dec. 1, 1905, subject to a mortgage of $22,500.

AMSTERDAM AV.—The Polstein Realty Co. sold the two 6-sty apartment houses 1105 to 1111 Amsterdam av, 80x100, to a Mr. Calder. On the west end of the avenue are some of the Columbia University buildings.

Physician Purchases Apartment Hotel.

COLUMBUS AV.—Charles W. Smith, of the office of James K. Holly, and N. Wilson sold for S. L. Pakas to a Dr. Walker J. Clarke the 10½-sty fireproof apartment hotel known as the Hotel Orleans, located on the southwest cor of Columbus av and 80th st. The dimensions of the plot are 102.2 ft. on the avenue by 64 ft. in the street. There are stores on the avenue side. This structure is of exceptionable construction, and cost about $500,000. The New York Life Insurance & Trust Co. are the holders of the 1st mortgage, which is for $300,000 for 5 years at 5 per cent. The gross rentals of the building aggregate $60,000. There are 5 apartments on a floor, comprising four 3 room and bath and one 2 room and bath apartments. The dining room is on the 10th floor, and there are 15 servants' rooms on the top story. The purchase price was a trifle under $500,000. Adjoining on the south is the Lotus Brady Building, a 2-sty business structure, 102.2x117.9, and on the northwest cor of 80th st and Columbus av is the Warwick Arms, a 10-sty fireproof apartment, 51.2x100. The holding just sold faces Manhattan Square and the American Museum of Natural History.

To Demolish Hotel Balmoral.

LENOX AV.—Arnold, Byrne & Baumann sold for the Sphinx Realty Co. to Harris & Seigel, the Balmoral Hotel, covering the entire block front on the east side of Lenox av, between 113th and 114th sts, 200x125, comprising 10 lots. Harris & Seigel will immediately demolish the present structure and erect 2 high-class 6-sty elevator apartment houses, providing accommodations for about 75 families and having 20 stores. The entire operation involves an outlay of about $1,250,000. This is one of the most important operations undertaken in this neighborhood for some time. This building has been untenanted for a number of years. It was purchased by the present sellers at foreclosure sale on May 16, 1907, for $324,350. It was put up by them at voluntary sale last April, but was bid in by Jacob Mendelson, who is treasurer of the company. The highest bid was $300,000.

I. T. Flatto was appointed receiver of rent of the premises 641 East 136th st by Judge Charles L. Guy, pending the foreclosure of a mortgage.

The City Mortgage Co. gave the Barnard Realty Co. a building loan of $100,000 on the property at the northwest corner of St. Nicholas av and 172d st, 94.6x100.

Salomon & Greenbaum, real estate and mortgage loan brokers, have removed their offices from 132 Nassau st to the United States Express Building, 2 Rector st, Suite 717.

A mortgage of $250,000 was given by Jacob Newstate to Jacob H. Schiff for 5 years at 5½ per cent. on the property, 173.5x108.8, in 95th st, 400 ft. west of West End av.

George W. Bard sold 64 lots at White Plains on June 6 of the 130 lots of the A. C. Todd tract, at an average of $250 each. After this number was disposed of the owner adjourned the sale to a later date.

Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, as attorneys for Nathan L. Carpenter, filed a notice of attachment against the property of John B. Walker on the south side of 69th st, 300.5 ft. west of Central Park West.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. loaned Max Kurzrok and Hyman Hein $210,000 on the property on the north side of 16th st, 200 feet West of Union sq, 50x92. This was in the form of a building loan.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank loaned the Freundschaft Society $200,000 at 5 per cent. on the property at the southeast corner of 72d st and Park av. The parcel has a frontage of 102.2 and is 130 ft. deep.

The South Bronx Property Owners' Association will hold their fifth annual outing on next Thursday at Donnelly's Park, College Point, L. I. Henry Eggert, Jr., is the chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

William H. Jasper has been appointed receiver of rents of the property 243 and 245 West 116th st, a 6-sty flat. This appointment is due to a suit brought by Mary Hirschfield against William Hubbinnett and others to foreclose a mortgage of $14,000.

On Thursday last a train of cars was run from Hoboken to the 23d st station of the Hudson River tunnel line. William G. McAdoo, president; Wilbur C. Fiske, vice-president and a large party of invited guests were on the first train. This station will be opened to the public shortly.

McKee, Hayward & Co. have fitted up commodious offices at 2644 Broadway, where they will conduct a general real estate and insurance business. Special attention will be given to the management of estates. A special appraisal department has been opened. The firm includes Messrs. G. R. McKee and M. M. Hayward.

Another improvement of consequence in the Terminal zone will shortly be commenced when the old buildings at the northeast corner of 6th av and 27th st, owned by the estate of Townsand Underhill, will be modernized. The two lower floors will be converted into stores and the upper part of the building will be altered into flats.

The old Windsor Theatre, recently rechristened the Kalich Theatre, located at 39 to 47 Bowery, is going to be torn down to make way for the approaches to the new Manhattan Bridge across the East River. The theatre was burned in 1883 but was immediately rebuilt. Of late plays in the Yiddish language have been presented in this play house.

TAKES MEMBERS TO TASK.

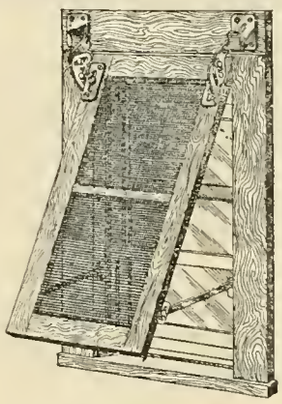
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE GIVES TIMELY ADVICE.

At a recent meeting of the Twenty-third Ward Property Owners' Association much consideration was devoted to the report of the executive committee which takes the members to task for failing to give closer attention to their own interests.

In his report, Chairman Chas. H. Baxter says in part:

"Your taxes have increased alarmingly the last three or four years, and the assessments charged against you have in amount more than trebled for the same class of work done, and why? Because you don't attend your own affairs; you don't do your duty."

TRANSIT SITUATION CONSIDERED.



The report dwells at length on the transit situation as affecting the Bronx, and says that the only relief that residents in that section can expect for the near future is the third track on the elevated and extension of the system as advocated by the association and shown by maps prepared by its chairman. Touching on the subject of congestion at 149th st the report suggests that the only way to relieve that point is to construct a double station similar to that at 8th av and 53d st.

ATTEND MEETINGS.

"If you desire these benefits," it concludes, "if you are anxious for relief, come to the front, attend the meetings, make your demands, don't go begging, and support your officers. Before election, before even nominations are made, demand that proper men are put forward who will represent the people, and not the bosses or corporations. Demand transit, demand necessary improvements on an economical scale, demand sound legislation and proper representation, stand for your rights, and a healthy 'boom' will follow as a natural result."

NEW HANGER FOR SCREENS.

THE accompanying illustration shows an adjustable hanger and hinge combined that may be used to attach either half or full length screens. It can be fastened either on the top or at any point along the sides of the frame. It works equally well in either position. The double adjustment permits the half screen to be fitted so that the top crossbar of its frame fits snugly against the bottom rail of the upper sash, thus making a flyproof joint, and doing away with the many inconveniences caused by sliding half screens. Once fitted with the attachment it becomes an easy operation to hang the screen. It is only necessary to raise the sash and hook it on. The supporting arms are then slipped through the locks and adjusted.

ADJUSTABLE SCREEN HANGER.

One of the chief advantages of a screen fitted up in this manner is that it may be easily opened and locked in position with a single hand and from the inside.

There is nothing so exasperating as the old-fashioned hinge. Not only is it an arduous task to properly attach it to the ordinary screen and window frame but the operation of removing it is a feat equally trying. Those who have experienced the difficulty will understand best.

Owners of apartment houses and dwellings in the outlying districts will find a hanger of this description an indispensable convenience.

A NEW ELEVATOR SIGNAL.

With the increase in the height of office and mercantile buildings more attention is being given to signal systems for elevators than ever before. In fact no modern business building is regarded complete without mechanism of this description. Not only is an effective signal system a great convenience in so far as the tenants are concerned, but a necessity to the owner as well, since by its use a great saving can be made in power consumption. In a number of instances this saving has equaled ten per cent. by enabling the operator to handle an increased number of passengers.

One of the latest signals of the order mentioned is an apparatus recently invented by Chas. E. Moore, agent of the Merchants Trust Company Building, Los Angeles. It consists of three devices which include a chromatic annunciator which turns in the signals from each floor; an electric indicator which flashes the numbers of each floor in colored lights; a safety flash light which throws a bright light on the threshold when the elevator is brought to a stop, and which goes out the instant the car leaves the floor.

CHROMATIC ANNUNCIATOR.

In explaining the operation of the new signal a leading publication says that when a passenger pushes the button which signals the direction he wishes to travel, it remains flush with the face of the box, showing to the others that the signal has been given, also avoiding disputes as to whether signal was given. The elevator electric indicator is an electric sign which shows the direction the car is traveling and is visible on every floor from the time each car starts from the main or the top floor, and is extinguished on each floor after the car passes that floor. The device is controlled automatically by the movement of the car, and avoids confusion.

The elevator safety flash light is spoken of as a powerful light which is thrown upon the threshold of the car and landing. This light is automatically operated in connection with the controller of the car, and is extinguished when the car is put in motion and lighted when and wherever it is stopped. It calls the attention of the passengers to the position of the car relative to the floor landing, and will avoid many accidents. The device was suggested to the inventor by an accident in which a person was injured from stumbling, and claimed that the operator did not call his attention to the high step.

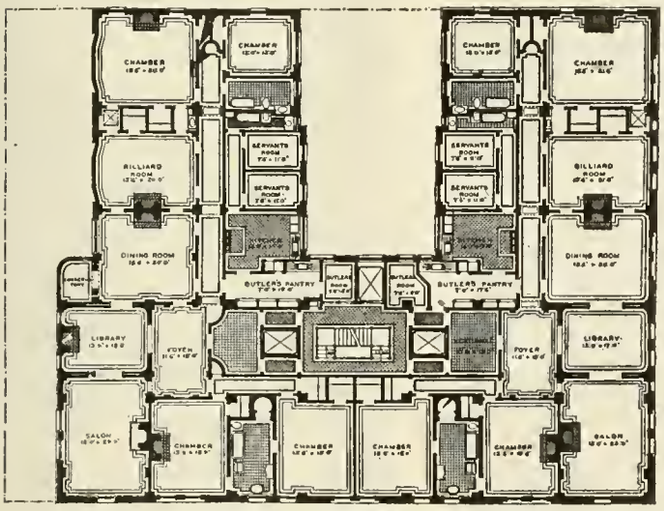
The new system has been installed in the Merchants Trust building of Los Angeles and is said to be giving complete satisfaction.

REALTY COMPANY STATEMENT.

The United States Realty and Improvement Co. in its annual report just issued shows a surplus of $2,893,014.45. The net profits for the year ending April 30, 1908, are $1,248,236.08, but of which dividends amounting to $888,954 were paid. This leaves a surplus of $359,282.08 for the year.

Of its construction department it says: "The ensuing fiscal year promises satisfactory profits in the building department. A year ago the company had construction work under contract aggregating $27,521,357. At the date of this report the contracts for work to be performed aggregate $21,554,495.83."

MODEL APARTMENT HOUSE.



MANY NEW FEATURES IN THE VERONA.

The new 10-sty brick and limestone building now nearing completion at the southeast corner 64th st and Madison av demonstrates the wants of high-class apartment dwellers. Its architecture will be that of the Italian renaissance, having simple but dignified lines. It is situated in the heart of the finest residential section of New York City.

The builders intend to keep this house as a permanent investment and for this reason no expense has been spared in its construction. The supervision of the contractors has been most careful, insuring the tenants every comfort.

UNIQUE FEATURES.

The Verona is arranged for two families on a floor; each apartment contains 14 rooms and 3 baths with additional shower baths. All the rooms are exceptionally large and square shaped with lofty ceilings. Among the unique features of the layout in these apartments is that each set of rooms have the kitchen, pantry and serving rooms grouped in the center of the building without loss of air, light or ventilation, and are reached by an independent service elevator.

VERONA APARTMENTS.
725 Madison av. Wm. E. Mowbray, Architect.

There are two passenger elevators, which have access to the vestibule of each separate apartment without the annoyance and discomforts of the usual public hallway. All the living and sleeping rooms, as well as the entertainment rooms are on the outside of the building with views of the street, insuring permanent light and air. The plumbing, trim and interior finish will be the best procurable and will be installed under the supervision of the architects, who are devoting their energies to seeing that every possible convenience is obtained.

Vacuum cleaner and refrigerating systems will be installed in all the apartments, as well as safes and the usual electrical appliances. As the services will be in charge of a competent superintendent the tenants can well afford to pay the rents which are being asked.

BILLIARD ROOMS PROVIDED.

The lower floors are renting at from $8,000 to $9,500, while the upper floors on Madison av side bring as high as $11,500. It is quite unusual for dwellers in apartments to have the convenience of a billiard room and well situated entertainment rooms, and privacy that can usually be secured in private dwellings. The master bedrooms are very convenient, having independent baths so that nothing could be desired for convenience, comfort, health or happiness.

Within a short distance of this property are the homes of W. Van Orden, L. C. Witherspoon, E. H. Harriman, John R. Drexel, H. P. Armour, F. B. Harrison, Geo. Crocker, J. W. Alexander, Van Cortlandt Norris, E. J. King, F. J. Gould, John Jacob Astor, W. W. Sherman, Grant B. Schley, E. E. Lorrilard, G. G. McMetz and J. P. Kernochan.

PERMIT GRANTED FOR SUBWAY WORK.

At the meeting of the Public Service Commission on last Tuesday a communication was received from Engineer George S. Rice to the effect that he had granted a permit for the opening of Broadway, from 96th to 101st sts, to the Rapid Transit Construction Co.

The permit was granted to facilitate the work of changing the arrangement of the subway tracks at this point. It is understood that work will be commenced in about a month's time. When completed it is estimated, by people who have made the engineering problem a study, that about 30 per cent. more trains can be run per hour over this section.

Under the agreement between the construction company and the commission only one side of Broadway can be opened at a time. It is well remembered the inconvenience and hardships that property owners along this route suffered some years ago, and it is the desire of the commission to avoid a recurrence, if possible.

PROPER SUPPORT FOR PIPING.

Whether in making alterations in old buildings or erecting new ones close attention to details in plumbing will save property owners considerable future trouble and expense, besides rendering their holdings more salable. Do not, therefore, in installing rough piping resort to makeshift hangers for supporting either house drains, water or steam pipes, when at small expense suitable ones of the adjustable variety may be had. The most approved type of hanger is provided with a screw so that it can be sunk deep into wood joists or beams.

That part of the hanger which clamps around the pipe is made in two parts, so that it can be placed in position after the piping has been completed. Pipe supports of the hanger variety may be used in fastening pipes to side walls. To attach a support of this kind it will be necessary to drill a pitched hole the exact size of the hanger shank. The pitch should have a slight downward tendency so that when the hanger is subjected to heavy loads it will not pull out. As a support for drainage pipes the hangers should be placed in position first before making a test of the system.

BANK WILL RESUME SHORTLY.

Edward M. Grout stated recently that the Mechanics and Traders' Bank will shortly reopen their doors and resume business. The selection of the voting trustees for the new officers and directors will be made in the near future. Mr. Grout, in speaking of the affairs of this institution, said:

"Arrangements were recently completed for the opening of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank at an early date. The receivers now have in hand nearly $2,500,000, and by the day of opening will have close to $3,000,000, judging from the present rate of collections. Arrangements have been made with one of the large downtown trust companies to furnish the bank, if need be, with ample additional cash to insure its successful operation.

"Eighty-two per cent. of the $8,000,000 of deposits have signed the deferred payment agreement, and the arrangements for opening are conditioned upon additional consents being obtained to the extent of 90 per cent. in all, and also upon the stockholders depositing their stock under a voting trust agreement as required by the Superintendent of Banks. These additional consents must be obtained at once."

LARGE LONG ISLAND DEAL.

A large sale of Long Island acreage was consummated this week through the agency of Jeremiah Robbins, of Babylon, Long Island. William H. Moffitt bought 950 acres of land in Islip, northeast of the railroad station and east of the Islip highway, running toward Hauppauge. The tract lies between the South Shore Railroad and the Middle Line Railroad, and is about four and one-half miles long and about one-half mile wide. The property adjoins the Shepard Knapp and the Plumb estates on the north. The reported price is $150,000. Dr. Thomas Wilson purchased this property several years ago for $40,000. This holding is going to be cut up into one and two-acre garden and villa plots.

A PROMISING CONTRIVANCE.—An application for a patent on an arrangement for raising and lowering sash windows without weights or cords was recently made by E. W. Manton in Great Britain. The contrivance will fill a long-felt want. It consists of a double-pulley block fixed under the centre of window sill, worked by a small detachable handle on two spindles which raises and lowers four ½-in iron rods by means of a small chain worked through two double pulleys fixed at each side of window frame under sill, and attached to the bottom end of the four iron rods, the side of the window frame being carried down below the sill to half the depth of window. The iron rods are raised or lowered through four holes in the window sill directly under the sides of each sash, to which the iron rods are connected or disconnected by means of side slots in rods and four iron key-hole plates, the sashes being worked down with handle and regulated by self-acting clutch-brakes attached to spindles in centre pulley block. The brakes can easily be adjusted to weight of sash. The sash has four rollers, fixed two at each side, to prevent friction and to assist in raising and lowering sash frames.

LARGE CUT IN TAX VALUES.—During the week the revised tax books for the ensuing year were opened for public inspection, and as was expected the cut in tax values is considerable. The reductions bring the total figure down to something between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 less than the total on the tentative memoranda. Of this amount the exemptions equal about $19,000,000, including property acquired for the Delancey st widening, land acquired for the Manhattan Bridge approach, and land for dock improvement in South Brooklyn. Hotel properties benefit chiefly by the reductions. The assessed value of the Hotel Astor has been reduced from $4,750,000 to $4,000,000; Knickerbocker Hotel from $3,300,000 to $3,000,000; Waldorf-Astoria from $7,400,000 to $7,150,000, and the big Plaza Hotel from $7,600,000 to $7,000,000. Reductions in the smaller hotels are in proportion.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., October 9, 1907.

GENTLEMEN: We are in receipt of your favor of the 5th inst., and do not hesitate to tell you that we are very much pleased so far with the careful examinations you have made of the water meter and the water pipe system throughout our premises.

In our opinion such a regular examination will be for the benefit of the consumers of water, especially so in large plants with extended pipe system. Very truly yours,

THE BLOCK & HIRSCH FUR CO., Fritz Kahn, Treasurer.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to their having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

PORTLAND CEMENT MORTARS.

(Published by permission of George Otis Smith, Director of the United States Geological Survey.)

A BULLETIN issued by the Technologic Branch of the United States Geological Survey on "Portland Cement Mortars and their Constituent Materials," gives the result of 25,000 tests at the Structural Materials Laboratories of the Government at St. Louis, Mo.

The author of the bulletin is Richard L. Humphrey, engineer in charge of structural materials investigations. The following synopsis of the bulletin is by Joseph A. Holmes, expert in charge of the Technologic Branch.

The records reported are based on 25,000 tests extending over more than one year of active field and laboratory work. The report may be divided into two parts—the first, dealing with tensile, compressive and other tests, including chemical analyses of Portland cement of different brands donated for the purpose, and of the mortars mixed therewith in which a standard sand was used; the second, dealing with tests of mortars prepared by mixing typical Portland cement with 22 sands, 12 gravel screenings and 25 stone screenings, procured from different parts of the United States and mixed in different proportions.

In order that tests extending over a period of years might be made with a relatively uniform cement, a quantity of Portland cement of seven different brands was obtained by donation. An equal amount of each of these brands was mixed together to form a typical Portland cement, and the mixture was stored away in air-tight cans. Tests, made to determine the quality and variation of the typical Portland cement, were conducted in great detail both on the neat individual brands and the typical mix, and on 1:3 cement mortars made therefrom with standard sand.

The results of the tests showing variation in tensile strength with age of neat cement indicate clearly that the typical mix reached maximum tensile strength in 90 days, or at the same period at which this strength was reached by the separate brands; that it maintained the highest tensile strength for a period as long as that of the best on the individual brands, viz., to 180 days, and that the diminution in tensile strength thereafter to one year and beyond was less than for some brands and no greater than for the best.

The tests of the standard-sand mortars showed maximum strength of the mix at 90 days, or about the same as for the individual brands; more rapid falling off in tensile strength for the mix, up to 180 days than for the individual brands, but an actual gain in strength beyond the 180 days for the mix, as compared with a falling off of the separate brands.

In the compressive tests the typical mix showed a rapid rise in strength, as did the individual brands up to 90 days, and a less rapid but continual increase in compressive strength to the 360-day period for the mix as compared with some of the brands, four of which showed little or no gain in compressive strength after 180 days.

Compressive tests of the 1:3 standard-sand mortars showed a more rapid gain up to 180 days for the typical mix than for the separate cement brands, and continued increase in compressive strength beyond 180 days for the mix, as against a less ratio of increase for several of the individual brands tested.

The general indications of these tests are that a better cement—that is one exhibiting greater uniformity of behavior—is likely to be procured by making a typical mix of several brands than by the use of any one standard brand of cement.

It should be borne in mind, however, that this statement is applicable only to the typical mixes used in these tests, and that it is possible that other mixtures of Portland cement might not yield the same results but would show entirely different characteristics. Results of further investigations along these lines will be reported as soon as they become available.

A study of the percentage of gain in strength exhibited by the various cements and cement mortars tested shows the very important fact that though the cements may test low or high at 7 days, and though there may be varying percentages of increase during the four periods from 7 days to one year, yet after the 180-day and the 360-day tests the strengths of all the standard-sand mortars were reasonably close one to another. This indicates that early strengths may vary considerably without seriously affecting the later strength of the cement or mortar.

The purpose of the investigations of the constituent materials of mortar was to ascertain as far as possible the properties of such materials collected in different parts of the United States. It is believed that the results of these tests made on material obtained near the large commercial centres of the country will indicate clearly to users of cement and of concrete where they may most conveniently and cheaply procure the requisite sand, gravel, etc., and how these should be mixed to attain the best results in tensile or compressive strength for each group of constituent materials.

A study of the data in this part of the report should afford a means of determining the probable strength of mortar made from materials having similar properties, though gathered in different parts of the country, and should aid the constructor to decide which of three materials, sand, gravel, or broken stone screenings, will best serve his purpose.

The tests whose results are here presented were made on mortars using different proportions of the typical Portland cement and sands, gravel screenings and stone screenings collected in various parts of the country, the properties of which are discussed in the earlier part of the bulletin. The report described the material, the locality of its occurrence and the methods of screening, grading, etc., employed. The relative proportion of larger or smaller particles in the materials tested is not only described in detail and diagramatically, but is well illustrated by reproductions of photographs made to exact scale.

Considering these tests in respect to the percentage of voids it appears that the tensile strength decreases with the increase of void spaces. The strength of the mortars is invariably much greater when made from sands having a small percentage of voids than when made from sands having a large percentage. The strength of mortars of different proportions is also greater for those sands which have a small percentage of voids. This condition is the same in regard to both tensile strength and compressive strength, and indicates that the greatest strength can be obtained by the use of mortar in which the sand is uniformly graded. The same is true of tests of transverse strength, except that the difference is not so marked as in the tensile and compressive tests.

The tests show a greater uniformity in general when made at the end of 180 days than when made for shorter periods. The early strength appears to be easily affected by alteration in environment and the regularity in strength for the earlier periods appears to depend on the nature of the cement.

In tests of density of mortar, it appears that the density values are greatest for the least percentage of voids, and that the weight per cubic foot and the strength are greatest under the same conditions. In the tests of mortars made with gravel screenings only that material which passed a ¼-inch screen was used, and this amounted as a rule to less than 40 per cent. of the sample received at the laboratory. As in the description of tests of mortars made with sand, complete details are given of the diameter of the particles in inches, with number of sieves passed; of the place in which samples were taken; and of physical and chemical tests. In these tests there is apparently a greater lack of uniformity in the increase of strength, probably owing to physical differences in the gravel screenings. In general the tensile strength seems to increase with the decrease in percentage of voids. This is also true of the compressive strength. There was great irregularity in the results of tests on account of the difficulty in obtaining a thoroughly uniform mass, especially when the material was composed of coarse grains of approximately one size. In this case it invariably happened that the cement and gravel screenings occurred in many of the test pieces in streaks, the cement accumulating on one side of the neck of the test briquet, thus reducing the active section and possibly furnishing one element of weakness.

The tests of stone screenings collected in different parts of the country were made in the same manner as those described for sand and gravel screenings. Samples were also collected as described for the other tests. The results of these tests showed that in general the mortars made from screenings that are most nearly uniform in grading have greater strength than those made from the finer screenings, farthest removed from uniform grading. Also the strength of mortars made from the samples having a lower proportion of voids is greater than that of mortars made from screenings in which the voids are greater. This appears to be true also of the compressive tests, in which the strength of the mortar is greater for samples most uniform in grade. As shown by these tests the transverse strength does not vary much after 90 days. The tests indicate that no definite law can be given by means of which the strength of mortars made from stone screenings can be approximately foretold from the mechanical conditions, because the strength of the stone itself from which the screenings are derived has an important bearing on the strength of the resulting mortar. The same tendency was observed in the stone-screenings mortars as in the gravel-screenings mortars for the cement to concentrate at one or more parts of the test briquet sections.

This report is the second of a series now in process of publication by the Technologic Branch of the Geological Survey. It is preliminary to a group of reports which describe in detail the results of tests of various structural forms made of concrete and reinforced concrete at the structural-materials testing laboratories of the Survey at St. Louis. Bulletin No. 329, the first of this series, described in detail the organization, equipment and methods of test adopted at these laboratories. This second bulletin, as summarized above, describes the investigations leading to the adoption of a typical Portland cement for testing purposes and the tests of mortars made by mixing sand and its substitutes, gravel and broken stone screenings with such typical cement, as an experimental study in the progress of the Survey of the constituent materials of cement mortars and concrete in the United States.

A succeeding bulletin will describe tests of the solid stone from the same quarries as those from which were obtained the stone screenings on which the tests described in this report were made. These results may afford some basis for comparison of the relative values of mortars made from the stone screenings described in this bulletin.

LAST WEEK the Record and Guide called attention to the fact that when the new Blackwells Island Bridge is complete no arrangements will have been made to make it a really useful part of the transit system of New York. It should be added that any arrangements to make it a useful part of the street system of Manhattan are equally lacking. On the Manhattan side the bridge terminates in an extremely unfortunate manner. The street into which it will pour its traffic—Fifty-ninth Street—is too narrow for the traffic, which even at the present time demands its use; and after the new bridge is opened it will become still more overcrowded. Just how much surface traffic the opening of this bridge will create is doubtful, but from the beginning there will be a good many trucks and automobiles that will seek Long Island by this route, and the number will, of course, steadily increase. There is every reason, consequently, for the construction of a spacious and convenient approach to the new bridge. As long ago as the administration of ex-Mayor Low, various projects for the widening of Fifty-ninth Street were considered by the local improvement board, but nothing was ever done, partly because of the opposition of property owners on Fifty-ninth Street, and partly because of the expense. Eventually, however, something must be done, and the longer the improvement is delayed the more it will cost. It is very much to be hoped that in the new charter this whole business of street improvements will be better organized. At the present time such improvements are almost impossible, and yet the time is rapidly approaching when the lack of them will result in an intolerable amount of traffic congestion.

THE worst result of the passage of the anti-gambling bills may be that Governor Hughes will probably refuse a Republican nomination for another term. He has announced at different times that he did not desire to serve again, but that he would do so in case he was beaten on the race-track bills. Yet his continued presence at Albany is so necessary in the interest both of the city and the State that the utmost pressure should be brought to bear upon him to make him revise his decision. Mr. Hughes is not only the best Governor with "one exception which New York State has enjoyed during the life of the present generation," but he has altogether peculiar abilities as a constructive legislator. The legislation which has been passed at his instigation has been most wisely and cautiously drawn, and it would be a genuine misfortune for the State to lose so soon the services of a man who is probably the most able reform legislator now living in the United States. Moreover, the legislation with which he is particularly identified still remains, so far as its operation is concerned, in an experimental condition. The election next fall of an inferior Governor who did not sympathize with Mr. Hughes' work or understand its spirit, might undo all he has done. The Governor is in this respect in precisely the same situation as President Roosevelt, and he should be succeeded, if not by himself, at least by some one who understands and supports his program of reform. It should be added that New York City has a peculiar interest in this matter. At the initiative of Mr. Hughes a commission has been appointed that has outlined a new charter for this city, which promises to be one of the most liberal measures of home rule ever granted to an American city. This new charter will be submitted to the next Legislature. With Mr. Hughes' support it would have a fair chance of passage, whereas in case the new Governor was a man of less influence and standing it will probably be broken against the prejudices of rural Republican legislators. We hope, consequently, that Mr. Hughes will neither bury himself in the Vice-Presidential chair nor return to private practice. He is still needed at Albany.

THE Record and Guide trusts that the Public Service Commission will soon give some indication of an understanding of its immediate duty in respect to transit improvements. It is perfectly obvious that the duty of the commission at the present time does not consist in insisting on the construction of any particular improvement, such as the Fourth Avenue or the Broadway-Lexington Avenue subways. The veto by Governor Hughes of the Robinson bill has made any really important subway construction impossible, at least for the next two years. That veto was hurtful to the city's interests in most respects; but it may have one beneficial result. Provided the proposed amendment to the constitution in respect to expenditures on rapid transit is passed, the city of New York will for the first time be in a position to plan a comprehensive system of rapid transit; and such a plan can be adopted with every assurance that the means will not be lacking to carry it out. Obviously, then, the next eighteen months should be passed in the slow and careful preparation of such a plan. The engineer of the board should be commissioned to draw up a scheme, including subways, elevated roads and trolleys, which, when completed, would give the City of New York really adequate means of transit, and the different parts of this scheme should be marked with numerals, indicating the proper order of construction. The board should then consider the proposed plan in private session, and have it criticized by various transit experts. After such criticisms have been thoroughly considered, the proposed plan in all its details should be submitted to the public for further criticism. Hearings should be given in respect to the plan as a whole, its details and the proposed order of constructing its several parts. After everybody has been heard who has the right to be heard, the board should make its final decision, and declare what portions of the whole system is to be immediately constructed. Then, after the constitutional amendment has been passed, the preliminary work will be finished. The board will be free to go ahead and secure the consents of property-owners, the courts and the Board of Estimate. No time should be lost in beginning this task, for it cannot be perfectly completed in much less time than the interval actually available. It need scarcely be added that the serious preparation of a comprehensive plan of transit improvements would involve the abandonment of the proposed Broadway-Lexington Avenue route. There might have been some excuse for the construction of this subway, in case it were the only subway which could be built for a good many years; but under existing conditions there is no excuse. It could not in any case be commenced until after the passage of the constitutional amendment, and when that reform makes the laying out of a comprehensive system of rapid transit possible, the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route would merely be in the way. Its construction would prejudice the decision of the commission on many important points, and prevent its freedom of action. Its only reason for existence would be that as an independent line it would develop probably a heavier traffic than would any other single route; but it would develop such a traffic at the expense of other equally important lines. It should, consequently, be abandoned, and the engineering force of the commission should be put to work upon the much more important task of preparing a comprehensive plan.

IF COMPTROLLER METZ succeeds in preventing the immediate construction of the Fourth Avenue subway, he will deserve the hearty thanks of all but about one-twenty-fifth of the inhabitants of New York City. But whether he succeeds or fails, he will have made a plucky fight against heavy odds and at the risk of his popularity in his own Borough. It is extraordinary that he and the Mayor have not received more active and hearty support in their opposition to the proposed misappropriation of the city's funds. The interests of all the inhabitants of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens will be injured by the immediate construction of the proposed subway, and to these should be added also the interests of a large majority of the inhabitants of Brooklyn. The already difficult problem of financing the necessary municipal improvements during the next two years will be enormously increased by the diversion of $16,000,000; and many expenditures, essential to the interests of the whole city will have to be abandoned or postponed. It is this fact which makes the support that the Fourth Avenue subway has received from the Borough Presidents of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens so extraordinary. The opposition of these officials would have made the immediate construction of the proposed subway impossible. Yet they have been ranked among its supporters in opposition to the interest of their own constituents. It is stated that the support of the Borough President of Manhattan has been obtained by a promise of similar support from other Borough Presidents for the Broadway-Lexington Avenue subway. If so, the chief of the Borough of Manhattan has made a poor bargain, because the people with whom he has traded cannot deliver the goods. The early construction of the Fourth Avenue subway is financially possible without any infringement of the debt limit, but the Broadway-Lexington Avenue subway cannot possibly be commenced until the constitutional amendment in respect to rapid transit expenditures has been sanctioned by popular vote. The fact that the Fourth Avenue subway, if it is authorized at all, will be authorized by means of a bargain among the Borough Presidents is an additional argument against the retention of these officials on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. When they were first admitted to the board the arrangement was opposed on the ground that they might combine to authorize a number of different local improvements which in their aggregate would be hurtful to the interests of the whole city. Apparently this is precisely what is happening in the present instance, and the Charter Revision Commission should make a note of the fact.

STANDARDIZING APPRAISEMENTS.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

The question of a method of standardizing appraisements of real estate raised in the World, June 7, is one of interest to all real estate men. If an effective method can be devised its value to trustees, to lenders on bond and mortgage and to buyers and sellers of realty generally is obvious.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers has been engaged for some time in perfecting such a method which, in the opinion of the writer, is based on sound principles. This plan is an intelligent division of the city, for the purpose of appraisal, into small homogenous sections. For example, the Wall st district, west and east sides south of Chambers st; the dry goods district, the lower East Side tenement house district, etc., etc. These are natural subdivisions in which there are brokers who have the intimate knowledge which specializing in one district gives. The board's appraisal committee is made up of these specialists, two of whom are assigned to each district. Their combined opinion, checked by that of the chairman, or vice-chairman, or, if necessary, of the entire appraisal committee, constitutes an appraisal of the Real Estate Board of Brokers.

No one knows better than the experienced appraiser how utterly impossible it is for any individual, no matter how wide his knowledge and activity, to keep in touch with the constant subtle changes that affect values in the different parts of this city. No one but a specialist in each section can have the intimate knowledge necessary for giving a sound appraisal.

If this principle adopted by the board is correct, its value is still dependent upon the character and ability of the men who comprise its committee. A study of the board membership will reveal, I think, that with few exceptions every representative firm of known character has a member in the board. It has been and is the purpose of the governors to have the appraisal committee of the highest efficiency and character. With this combination of special knowledge and character expressed in its appraisals, the Real Estate Board may fairly be said, it seems to the writer, to have made a considerable step toward standardizing appraisals of real estate. Yours truly,

IRVING RULAND,
Chairman of Appraisal Com. Real Estate Board of Brokers.

DUE TO USE OF ELEVATORS.—In commenting on the use of elevators in up-to-date apartment houses in the Bronx an authority points out that their introduction has not only attracted a higher class of tenants to that field but is responsible for large increases in land values as well. This he illustrates by citing the sale of the plot 77x125 at the corner of Prospect av and 160th st for $1,000 a front foot. It is stated on good authority that lots on Prospect av in the neighborhood mentioned have reached a valuation of from $15,000 to $17,000 each. The first modern elevator apartment house built in the Bronx was the Manhanset at the southeast corner of Prospect and Longwood avs. It is affirmed that it has an annual income from rents equaling $27,000. Among other elevator apartments in that zone may be mentioned the St. Regis, the Knickerbocker, St. Cloud, Hoyle Hall and the Argyle.

CONTRACT NOT VOID FOR USING "OUTSIDE" TRIM.

A CONTRACTOR engaged on a municipal work may purchase material for use in that work from manufacturers who employ men working more than eight hours a day, or for less than the prevailing rate of wages in the locality, without forfeiting his contract and payments due him.

The Appellate Division, First Department, so decides in the test case of George J. Bohnen vs. Herman H. Metz, as Comptroller, the City of New York and Charles Wille. A notice of appeal is to be served by the plaintiff to-day.

The action was brought under the Labor Law to void the contract of defendant Charles Wille with the defendant the City of New York for the construction of a school house in the Borough of Queens. The controversy was submitted on admitted facts pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1279-81 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and it appears from the stipulated facts that Wille agreed, by the contract, that he would not permit or require any laborer, workman or mechanic in the employ of himself or sub-contractor, or other person, doing or contracting to do the whole or part of the work embraced in his contract more than eight hours in any day, except in cases of emergency, and that he would pay the rate of wages prevailing in the locality, and that the contract should be void unless he should comply with such provisions of the Labor Law.

In the course of the construction, doors, windows and other manufactured woodwork required for the building were manufactured for the special purpose at the request of Wille, by a manufacturer within the State of New York who employed workmen and mechanics more than eight hours a day, and paid them less than the prevailing rate of wages in the City of New York.

By the terms of the contract $1,000 is now due, and the plaintiff, as a citizen of the State, pursuant to the right given him by Section 4 of the Labor Law, challenges the right of the city and its fiscal officer to make such payment, on the ground that Wille, by purchasing doors, windows and woodwork for the building from a manufacturer who employed his men more than eight hours a day, and paid them less than the prevailing rate of wages, forfeited his contract and the right of any payment thereunder.

The city, through its officers, refused to declare the contract void and submitted to the court whether or not it was its duty to do so.

The opinion handed down by the Appellate Division reads:

"Whether Section 3 of the Labor Law, providing that every contract with the State or a municipal corporation involving the employment of laborers, workmen or mechanics, shall contain a stipulation that no laborer, workmen or mechanic in the employ of the contractor, sub-contractor or other person doing or contracting to do the whole or part of the work embraced in the contract, shall be permitted or required to work more than eight hours a day, or be paid less than the prevailing rate of wages of the locality in which the work is to be done, and shall be void unless such stipulation is observed, be deemed constitutional or unconstitutional, the stipulated facts do not bring the contractor, Wille, within its provisions.

"The manufacturer who worked his men more than eight hours, and who did not pay the prevailing rate of wages, was not a 'sub-contractor or other person doing or contracting to do the whole or a part of the work,' within the meaning of the statute. It was necessary that the windows and doors be made to measure, and therefore it was necessary that an order for their manufacture be given. The transaction amounted, however, to the mere purchase of material necessary for the building.

"The construction of the statute contended for by the plaintiff would follow the iron beams necessary for a building to the mines, the woodwork to the logging camp, and the stone to the quarry, and would put a contractor to the hazard of forfeiture of his contract and all payments due him in the purchase of any material for the construction of any municipal building.

"In 1905 the People adopted an amendment to Section 1 of Article XII of the Constitution providing that 'the Legislature may regulate and fix the wages or salaries, the hours of work or labor, and make provision for the protection, welfare and safety of persons employed by the State or by any county, city, town or village or other civil division of the State, or by any contractor or sub-contractor performing work, labor or services for the State, or for any county, city, town, village or other civil division thereof. By virtue of this constitutional power, the Legislature by Chapter 506 of the laws of 1906, reenacted Section 3 of the Labor Law, as it had been amended by Chapter 298 of the laws of 1900, adding thereto only the provision that it should not apply to the 'construction, maintenance and repair of highways outside of the limits of cities and villages.'

"Assuming that the present law is free from the vices of the former law pointed out in People ex rel Cosey vs. Grout (179 N. Y., 417) and People vs. Orange County Road Cons. Co. (175

An indication of what may be expected of the concrete block when handled by the artist.

DAWN OF THE AMERICAN ARCHITECTURE

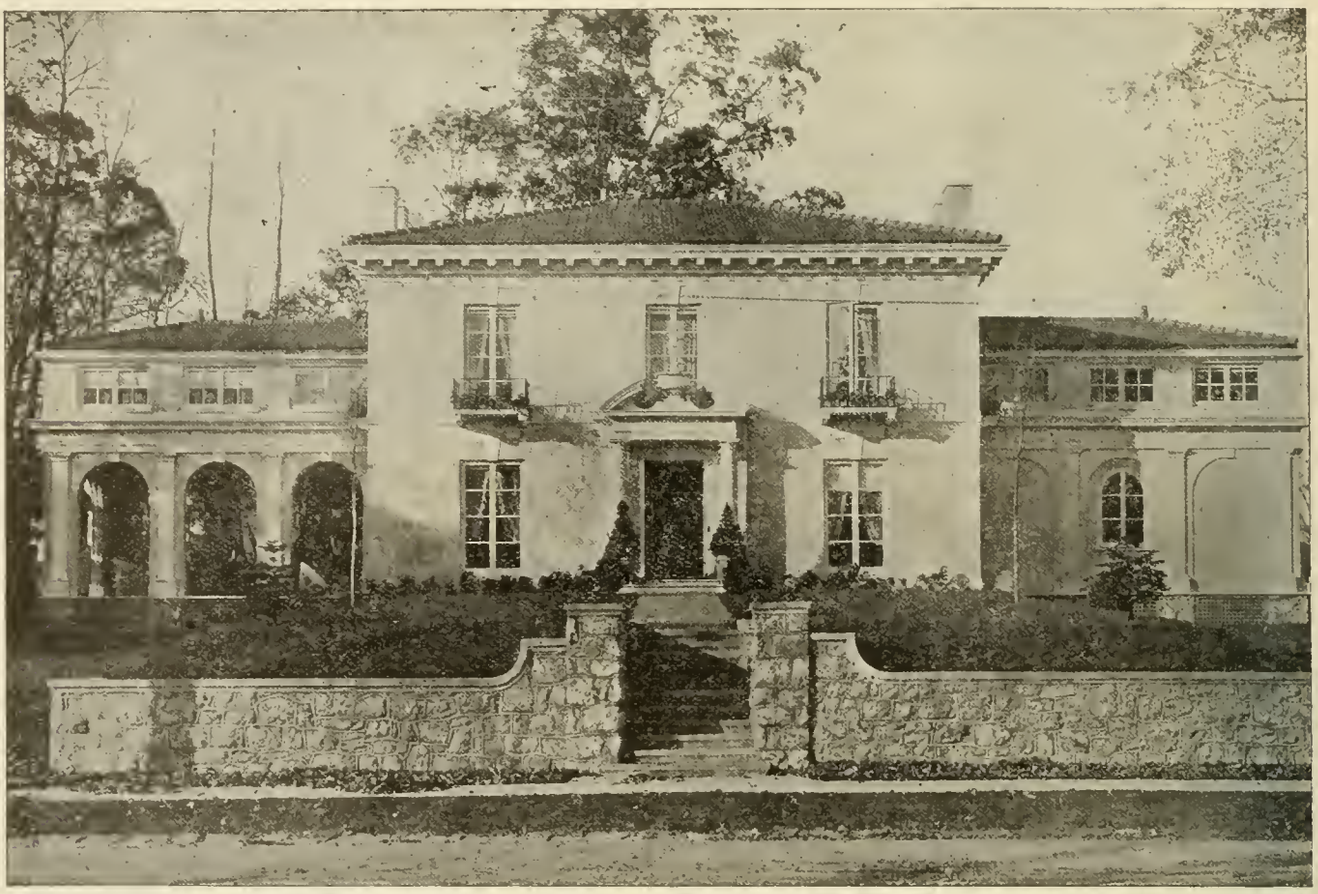
The Promise Vouchsafed by Stucco and Concrete—How These Mediums of Construction are Utilized.

THERE appears to be a growing demand for suburban and country houses designed by trained architects. The problems which the small country house present are many, and perplexing, and it is difficult for a conscientious architect to make a profit from houses costing under $10,000. Where he can obtain a half a dozen or more in one neighborhood, however, he can afford to give time and thought to such vital matters as the location of the house with reference to the sun and the prevailing winds, the placing of rooms with a view to the comfort and convenience of the occupants, as well as to charm the eye with a succession of interesting interior "views," and a hundred other attentions can be given, such as the location of windows and doors, lighting fixtures, and registers, to insure ample and proper wall space for furniture, etc., and the avoidance of any "waste space."

Finally a careful study of the exterior is made, the proportion of the house considered, inexpensive yet refined detail is introduced, and harmony with the landscape attained, and many other matters provided whose absence is glaringly noticeable in the usual suburban cottage. Proof of the success that has crowned such efforts to encourage good taste in suburban architecture is the final conversion of the speculative builder.

He is abandoning that carefully preserved plan drawn by the local "architect" and sold for anything from a cigar up to $50, and which has been used for the last decade with slight variations for thousands of structures. He actually brings one of these abortions to the architect's office and in his presence tramples it under foot, producing with a flourish the photograph of a good "Colonial" design, demanding something similar, and never flinching at the commission that goes with every plan. The public's appreciation of good domestic architecture dates further back, and houses well situated and well designed are invariably sold at good prices.

The house of Oswald C. Hering (No. 1 West 34th st, New York) at Portchester, N. Y., illustrated herein, was designed by the owner primarily to bring him local business. In this respect the venture has been successful, as a dozen houses in the neighborhood testify. Such houses are readily sold at a handsome profit.



Oswald C. Hering, Architect. (From Town and Country.)

A FIRE AND DAMP PROOF HOUSE, BUILT OF REINFORCED CONCRETE FROM CELLAR TO ROOF.

The residence of Daniel Bacon at Ardsley-on-Hudson. The partitions and furring are of hollow terra-cotta blocks. The outer walls are "pebble dashed," and the arches, consoles and panels are of cement cast in three colors.

The writer knows of several houses designed by Mr. Hering which have been sold, some before completion, at a handsome profit. All because care and attention had been given to make the plan simple, tasteful, comfortable and convenient, avoiding "nooks" and "bays" and "turrets," and the usual "features," appropriate, perhaps, in a house of twice or four times the size, but costly and ridiculous in a modest five to ten thousand dollar home. The architect's commission is small in view of the advantages derived and the enhanced value of the house.

HOUSE OF OSWALD C. HERING, ARCHITECT, AT PELHAM MANOR.

This is a frame house, with a light red tile roof and with outside walls covered with white marble-dust stucco, applied to a grooved stucco board which is nailed to the sheathing. The woodwork is white, except the lattice and the front door, which are painted a gray green.

In the course of a consideration in Town and Country of the aesthetic possibilities of concrete Mr. Hering says that the architect has joined hands with the owner in a common prejudice against structures of cold forbidding gray, which is the predominating color enforced by the use of Portland cement. To cloak its death-like aspect under a garb of white or colored stucco is now the prevailing custom. This method being obviously a sham, attempts have been made to give a pleasing yet truthful finish to a concrete wall by bush-hammering and other methods of dressing and tooling which give texture to the surface, and remove the markings of the forms.

The method of using a colored aggregate is commended by the architect as combining both truth and beauty, but if, as in a few instances, the aggregate is brought into relief by removing the superficial cement with a wire brush, leaving the interstices open to the action of atmospheric forces, the danger of damp walls becomes imminent, not to speak of a gradual disintegration of the wall. As presenting a promise of successful development, Mr. Hering favors a monolithic form of concrete, in which the aggregate is composed of various materials selected for color and texture and graded into not less than three sizes from which the superficial cement is washed after the forms have been removed while the walls are yet "green." It would seem that the use of polished steel plates, clamped to the inside of the wood form, if not indeed constituting in themselves the form, would insure damp-proof qualities in a wall of this character. Pouring in the mixture wet to the consistency of a jelly and working the mass with thin rods, the smooth surface of the steel enclosure would tend to close the pores and give a similarly polished surface to the concrete. On removing the forms before the concrete became too hard, and washing off the cement with water or acid, a smooth surface would be left resembling the familiar "terrazzo" floor, showing the colored aggregate but avoiding any interstices which would offer an entrance to moisture. Provision for polychromatic decoration could be made by leaving panels in the walls, if the decorative matter is not actually placed in position during the forming of the wall.

The nearest field for exploiting reinforced concrete would seem, in Mr. Hering's opinion, to be in domestic architecture, and in certain types of buildings of no great altitude. For residences, particularly in country and suburban localities, concrete has already become an active rival to wood and masonry, particularly where facilities for fighting fires are inadequate.

Granting the necessity of employing the gray cements in use at the present time, although there seems no reason, says Mr. Hering, why a white cement possessing the strength and efficiency of the best Portland cement cannot be made, this neutral field yet forms an excellent foil to a carefully proportioned allowance of color from the application of tiles, mosaics, terra-cotta, brick or sculptured stone, in the shape of panels, bands and friezes, as borders to the openings, and in all-over patterns on such surfaces as may occur between the main structural factors.

MORE WALL RADIATORS BEING USED.

"The increase in the number of small rooms in apartments has been accompanied by an increase in the number of wall radiators."

This statement, made by a local steam heating manufacturer, appears to be borne out by the number of wall radiators being placed in structures of this character that have been erected or are in course of construction. Inquiry at the office of the United States Radiator Company, Flat Iron Building, disclosed the fact that there is more of a tendency now to use radiators that can be put some other place than on the floor where they are exposed and require space that could be used to better advantage. Speaking of this, Mr. Francis A. Hadley, assistant manager of the New York branch of this company, said that this tendency was evident not only in small rooms, but in department stores. He called attention to many instances where, in department stores, the radiators are frequently not visible. They are placed under counters, under stationary tables, under window sills and covered up, or on shelves and hidden by boxes or otherwise. Where they are visible they are very often around a column near the ceiling or in some niche that is not valuable for space.

In the steam-heating department of the J. L. Mott Iron Works, 118 5th av, it was stated that it is more necessary now to use a wall radiator in the small rooms which are found in new apartments. Space has become so valuable that it is a case of using a pipe running through the room from floor to ceiling or resorting to wall radiators, of which there is a great variety. There are instances, of course, where the inclination of the owner is responsible for the wall radiator. It is more expensive than the regular system of radiation.

—True, there may be nothing in it, but we never can tell until we crack the shell. There is nothing in many things for many, but plenty for some.

THE KITCHEN AND ITS DEPENDENT SERVICES

Radiantly White with Its Porcelain Fittings, and Gleaming with the Nickel and Copper of Well Chosen Hardware and Utensils.

KITCHENS have not usually been the best arranged part of the house, for one reason because architects have not until recent years given much thought to the kitchen. But now the rightly planned kitchen is in the category of the handsome rooms in the dwelling or grand apartment. No kitchen can be successful unless the arrangement has been well thought out beforehand, says Katharine C. Budd, in the Architectural Record for June. Mechanics cannot do their work without these careful drawings and details, which should not be below the attention of the architect.

A kitchen should have a high wainscoting of white glazed tile (in fine houses the walls are faced with glazed brick). If a cheap substitute is desired, Keene's cement on wire lath may be used. It must be well laid, with a third coat of finest quality, troweled to a smooth finish, and divided to imitate tiles into six-inch squares with a light line made by a V jointer. Several coats of good enamel paint will be necessary after the cement is dry.

White glazed surfaces are best, they are easily kept in order and inspiringly clean. It is a pity that the price of glazed brick and tiles precludes their being employed for a wainscoting in the cheaper kitchens. We may hope for their more general use in a few years.

In specifying materials for the proper finish of a kitchen floor, one is again tempted to make demands on the purse of the owner; a good floor saves trouble later. A list of materials begins with the cheap North Carolina pine, includes hardwood, concrete, rubber tiles, cork, and tiles, but each has some defect: the finish of a wooden floor soon wears off under constant scrubbing, when the bare wood will absorb grease and show foot prints; the popular red tiles are very hard and cold under tired feet; ditto the attractive unglazed white tiles. Taylorite and similar compositions have been tried with success in kitchens, hospitals, etc. They are elastic, warm under foot, and not too expensive. Though these cannot be made in a very good white (as the basis is sawdust), a cheerful yellow looks invitingly clean. It is laid half an inch thick over an under flooring of wood (which may be an old flooring). Neat borders of stripes of the different colors can be added without greatly increasing the cost, and it may be turned up to form a neat base. This flooring needs an occasional bath of oil to keep it in order. In Italy a popular cheap floor is made of small bits of bright stones laid in cement and polished. Over there, weeks are devoted to the patient rubbing of marble or composition floors; here it is finished in a few hours by a time saving machine. Kitchen and laundry floors, as well as hearths, may be laid in carefully finished concrete.

If wood is used, "flat grain" should never be specified, as it soon splinters badly. The boards should be very narrow, of "comb grain," thoroughly seasoned, tightly driven together (in order that unsightly cracks do not appear later), and well blind nailed to the underflooring.

Floors of cork are excellent, being very soft and warm, cleanly and durable. But the color of cork is rather dark and the price high. Still more attractive is the pretty interlocked rubber tiling which also is expensive.

An old-fashioned iron sink has one advantage over its modern white rival; it cannot be chipped and marred by heavy pots clumsily handled by a careless servant; but it is liable to rust if not kept clean and oiled. A galvanized iron sink is very difficult to clean and generally looks grimy. In some sections of the country soapstone sinks are used. These are cheap, cleanly and practical, but ugly. A sink of the cream-colored pottery, though less expensive than white, is attractive and easy to clean. White sinks are well worth the difference in price, if they can be treated with reasonable care. High backs of porcelain or enamelled iron in which the faucets can be inserted should be specified to match the sinks.

Where space is at a premium and laundry work must be done in the kitchen, a cheap combination fixture may be had with movable white enamelled sink and drip board set over two white enamelled tubs. Galvanized iron wash tub covers can now be found to replace the unsanitary wooden covers. Covers for tubs should not have hinges. They should be taken off and set aside while washing is in progress.

Faucets are being constantly improved; that old-fashioned washer which suddenly melted away at unexpected moments, allowing an uninterrupted stream of boiling water to escape, is out of existence now.

Shelves should be carefully planned over the sink and elsewhere, to hold bottles, soap, etc.; hooks under hold mops and the various small cleaners. Shelves of convenient sizes are

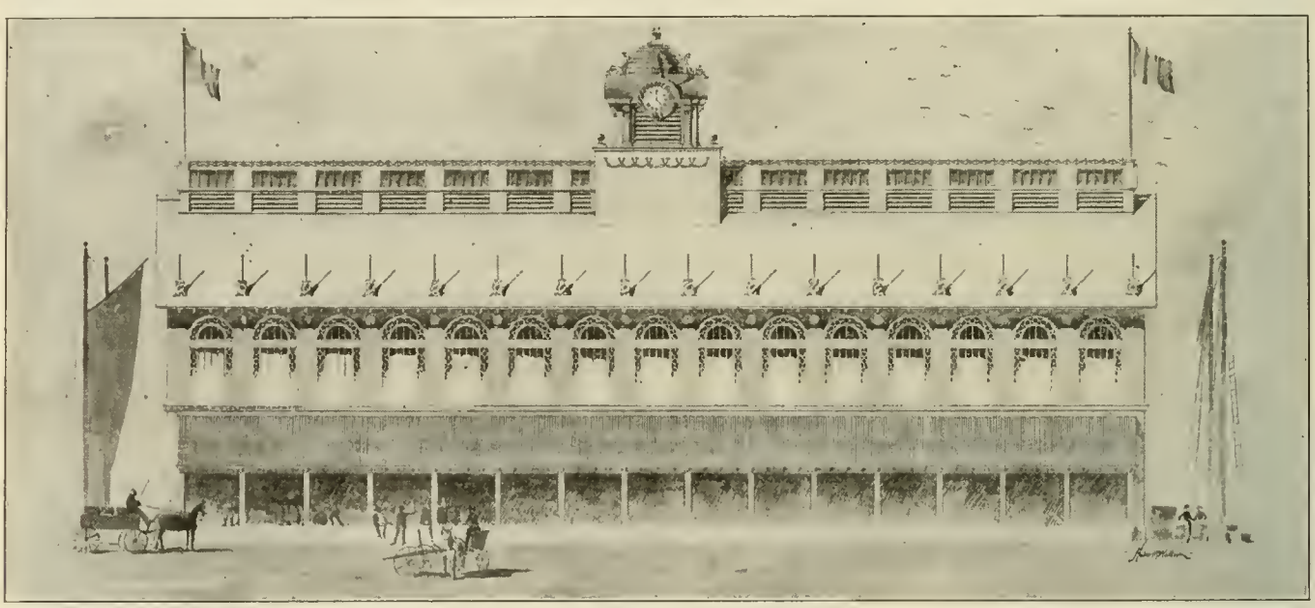
THE ARCHITECT
WHAT HE HAS DONE RECENTLY AND WHY HE DID IT.

AN INTERESTING STEEL-CONCRETE BUILDING.

THE new Wholesale Fish Market, which is now being erected at the foot of Beekman st, East River, is a very interesting example of modern steel concrete construction, a method of fireproof building that is attracting considerable attention, and which is becoming very popular. The problem confronting the architects, Walker & Hazzard, was the construction of a light building, extending out over the water, which should not only be absolutely fireproof, but one in which there should be no danger to the steel frame from rust, which has always been a menace to metal construction of any sort near salt water especially.

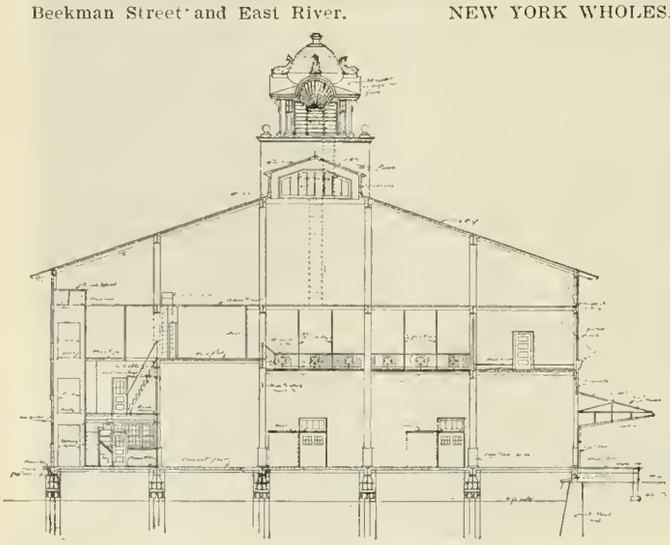
THE TOREDO EXTINCT.

The building rests upon piles that are cut off at the high-water mark. In this connection it is interesting to note that although the original intention was to creosote the piles, this idea was abandoned, with the sanction of the Dock Department, because the "toredo," a worm which formerly destroyed timber foundations under water is now practically extinct around the docks of lower New York. The groups of piles that support the steel columns are capped with yellow pine timbers, upon which is put five inches of concrete. Steel grillage beams are placed upon this concrete bed, and are entirely encased in concrete, the beams being separated about three inches in each case so as to give plenty of room for concrete filling.



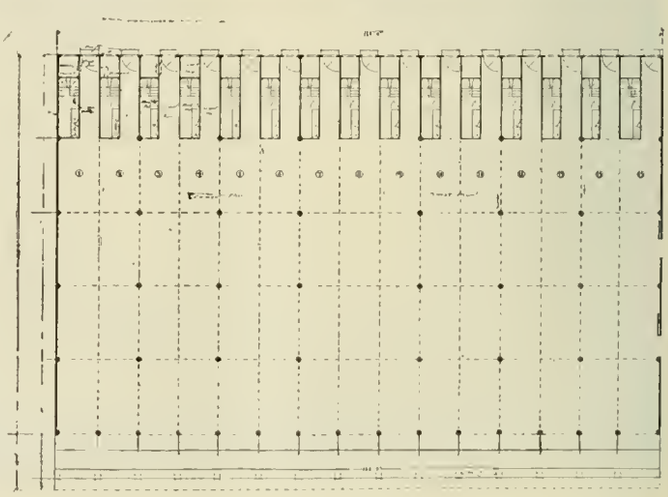
A STEEL FRAME ENCASED IN CONCRETE.

The framing of the building is of steel encased in concrete, and the floors and partitions are of reinforced concrete. The roof is of reinforced concrete with a slag finish. The ornamental exterior work is of copper.



The building is designed for the wholesale fish business, and is divided into fifteen equal divisions or "stands," each of which is leased to a different concern. Each stand has a gangway leading to the water on the first floor for convenience in receiving stock. Adjoining this rear entrance is an elevator leading to the second floor.

The small offices on the ground floor are for the use of bookkeepers and cashiers. The two mezzanine stories are devoted to private offices, toilets and lockers for employees. On the second floor there is a store room extending the entire length of the building lighted by central skylights and end windows. The tower is to have a handsome clock, which is the present of Mr. E. M. Dixon, the Treasurer of the Association. The President of the Association is Mr. C. M. Prankard.



The entire work is in charge of the Tidewater Building Company, as general contractors. The sub-contractors are: Piling, Barth S. Cronin; structural work, the Hedden Iron Construction Co.; concrete work, White Fireproof Construction Co.; plumbing, James Armstrong, and consulting engineer, Edward R. Knowles.

PAPERING OVER KALSOMINE.—The usual method employed in papering a whitewashed or kalsomined room is to size the walls with a sticky preparation of vinegar, molasses, or glue to kill the lime, so that the paper will hang firmly. An authority suggests another way which is said to be more satisfactory. Wet the usual paste with vinegar instead of water and add five cents' worth of glue for each ordinary-sized room to be papered.

NORTHWARD MARCH OF BUSINESS CONSTRUCTION.

THE erection of loft buildings has become a problem that necessitates not alone experience but good, sound, practical judgment. While the various details relative to the interior work are by no means as copious as that necessary in an apartment house, nevertheless the detail attached to a mercantile building has become a very important factor in the construction of loft buildings incident to making the premises generally adaptable to the tenant who is to occupy it.

EDWIN H. HESS.

It has been said, and as the years pass on it seems the saying will be carried out, that at some time in the future the whole Borough of Manhattan will be given over to business which, like Father Time, waits for no one, and in its path everything must give way.

Proof of the eventual consummation of this prognostication is seen today in the advance of business interests in the Borough of Manhattan, stretching as it does from the Battery to 59th street and from river to river and in some instances as far up as 72d street, and in other instances to 125th street, the zones in the intermediate sections being given over to residential purposes.

Business interests like bodies in organizations, figuratively speaking, have their own cliques, the cliques being various sections in which a certain business and its allied interests locate. To demonstrate this, a concise statement of existing conditions will not be amiss:

1. The territory below Canal street is tenanted by firms engaged in such business as hardware, printing and allied lines in which very heavy materials are used or stock carried, and loft buildings in this section must be of very great carrying capacity and must be of necessity of heavy construction. This section is also given over to office buildings. This latter class of building is a study by itself, but as the editor has restricted the writer to certain space, he will at this writing have to forego dwelling thereon, sufficing it to say that the advancement of office buildings is certainly well within the times if not beyond them.

2. The section between Canal and 14th sts is typically a commercial one, the buildings being tenanted by dry-goods firms, such as cotton goods, woolens, ribbons, silks and the like, and also by firms engaged in light manufacturing. The character of the structures in this section is by no means up-to-date, although the majority of them are well constructed.

3. The section between 14th and 26th sts, lying between Fourth and Sixth avs, which has been developing within the past few years, is very heavily populated by lace, embroidery and other importing houses who have followed the upward trend of business and also by the better class of light manufacturers.

4. The section between 26th and 34th sts, and more particularly within two or three blocks south of 34th st, between Fifth av and Broadway, is given over to that class of merchants who are engaged in high-class wholesale and retail business. This section has by no means found its level and it is hardly possible at this time to foretell its future.

5. The section between 14th and 34th sts and Sixth and Seventh avs, is rapidly building up with a fair class of mercantile buildings which are tenanted by various kinds of light manufacturing concerns who, while they are firms of good standing in every sense of the word, find it necessary to be within a "stone's throw" of the Fifth av section, but whose business will not permit of their paying Fifth av rents. A strange anomaly presents itself in the rental situation of this particular section and that is that modern buildings are few in number in face of the fact that there is a good demand for loft structures for manufacturing purposes. Manufacturers generally seek a section of a district where rentals are lower than in the main thoroughfare of that section, and in this section west of Sixth av, they appear to find their "happy hunting ground." The principal cause for the shortage of loft buildings west of Sixth av is that it appears to be difficult to procure loans for building operations in that territory. Owing to not being able to finance their undertakings, builders who would have revolutionized the structural status of the blocks in this immediate section have had to confine their operations to other territories and this of necessity has retarded the development of this section.

6. Fourth av is a typical example of what individuals can do to prevent the development of properties. Estates and church corporations are amongst the largest holders. With probably one or two exceptions they will not sell or improve their properties, being content with the incomes now derived therefrom. When these rather ultra-conservative owners, that are now in command of this thoroughfare, see fit to show some "go aheadedness," this avenue will no doubt obtain the business prestige it should have long ere this enjoyed.

Ever since the development of the territory above 14th st for mercantile purposes, the builders who have operated therein have aimed at a very high standard in the construction of their buildings and this standard has ever been kept up and is being improved upon with each new structure that is built. This has resulted in the construction of a building that will answer almost every line of business, thereby causing it to be well rented and earn a fair income on the investment.

At this writing there exists a temporary "stand-still" in the way of negotiating leases on new quarters on the part of the New York merchant, but it will not be far distant when the general business prosperity of the country will right itself, whereupon negotiations for leases will again be taken up and will no doubt result in leaving but little space for rent when the season is over.

The enormous demand for land above 14th st, which has been created by the upward trend of business, has practically eliminated dwellings in this zone, and there are but a few here and there left to show that this section at one time was given over to a high-class residential territory.

Owing to the high class of improved properties that has been erected above 14th st, together with the fact of the excellent class of tenants housed therein, these properties have readily found purchasers during the past year. At the present time, in the very face of unstable conditions due to causes which it is not necessary for the writer to dwell on at this time, investors are more than eager to purchase these properties on a fair basis. There is also a strong inclination on the part of merchants to purchase land and erect buildings for their own use. Others are leasing the finished product, occupying part of the premises themselves and sub-leasing the balance of the building.

On Fifth av, above 34th st, there appears to be considerable difficulty in renting lofts. They are generally speaking suitable for wholesale business, but one of the causes of the vacancies has been found in the fact that buyers who visit this immediate vicinity, appear to find the side streets below 34th st more accessible.

The Pennsylvania Railroad and McAdoo terminal tunnels in the neighborhood of 32d st and 6th av and prospective 22-sty office building on the site of the McAdoo terminal tunnel at 32d st and Sixth av, will make this section the centre of an enormous transient shopping population that will patronize both wholesale and retail business. It would seem that theatres and restaurants would still find attractive profits in this section even though they are centered in the Long Acre Square District.

ADVANTAGES OF BUILDING MATERIAL DISPLAYED.

MEMBERS OF BUILDING TRADES EMPLOYERS' VISIT EXHIBITION OF CONCRETE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA.

MANY officers and members of the Building Trades Employers' Association took advantage of the invitation of the Concrete Association of America to visit its exhibition room on the eleventh floor of the Brunswick Building, 25th st and 5th av, last Wednesday afternoon. The regular meeting of the Board of Governors of the association was called earlier than usual the same day to enable the members of the board to accept the invitation. They went in a body, nearly one hundred strong, from the association quarters in the Builders' Exchange Building to the Brunswick Building, and found the exhibition rooms already thronged with members. Exhibitors or their representatives were present to explain the object of the different displays. In addition to these the guests were piloted around by such leading supporters of the exhibition as Ross F. Tucker, who took such a prominent part in engineering the big concrete exhibition; F. G. Webber, president of the Webber Construction Company, and president of the Masters' League of Cement Workers; G. E. Escher, treasurer of the league; Ronald Taylor, Davis Carpenter, and Ralph C. Davison, secretary of the Concrete Association of America.

The visitors spent about four hours inspecting the exhibits. The following day Secretary Wm. J. Holmes, of the Building Trades Employers' Association, stated that the members of this organization had been greatly impressed by the splendid showing of the possibilities of cement and also by the apparent advantages to be found in displaying building material in this manner. An immediate result of the visit ought to be an increased interest in the exhibition department started last spring by the Building Trades Employers' Association on the second floor of the Builders' Exchange Building, West 33d st. Such men as Isaac A. Hopper, president of the Employers' Association, and Ross F. Tucker, chairman of the Board of Governors, believe that the success of the exhibition of the Concrete Association ought to spell equal, if not more, success for the Building Trades' exhibition, especially as it is more comprehensive and affords more room.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

CONTRAST BETWEEN EARLY AND MODERN TYPES, AS INSTANCED BY THE CHANGES ON THE FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL SITE.

THE remarkable improvements made in vertical transportation in fifty years are indicated strongly by the demolition of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel and the designing of the great office building to be erected on the same site by the Fifth Avenue Building Company. The contrast between the old steam-driven elevator installed in the hotel over half a century ago and the modern, high-speed ones manufactured by the Otis Company, which has the contract to place nineteen traction elevators of the overhead type in the proposed building, is striking.

The old car was a huge, heavy affair, built on the lines of the massive mahogany cars of that time. It ascended and descended on a strong, steel screw, which rested on the first floor and extended to the roof. The car was really supported on a nut, in which the screw revolved. The speed limit was probably 50 feet per minute. The car was operated by the attendant pulling the hand rope running vertically through it. The type was that produced then by Otis, Tufts & Co., of Boston. The estimated cost of installing this one elevator in the hotel was about $40,000.

The Otis Company could put a modern, high-speed elevator in a 5-sty building, such as the original Fifth Avenue Hotel was, for not more than $5,000, just one-eighth of the cost of one of the first elevators in New York. Its speed capacity would be from 300 to 400 feet per minute, while the speed of the cars to be installed in the new building will be from 500 to 600 feet per minute. The increased speed is due to the fact that there is more rise, or, as a layman would say, the proposed structure is much higher than the old one and gives more opportunity for a higher speed. An elevator adapted for a 20-sty building would just about reach full speed when it had reached the top floor of a 5-sty building.

THE NEW MACHINES.

Each of the passenger elevators to be installed in the new building will have a capacity of 2,500 pounds, at 600 feet per minute speed. The designs call for cars with an area of 35 square feet. They will be equipped with heavy locking devices for holding them immovable at any landing. The machines, which are driven by 40-horsepower, 240 volt direct-current motors, will be located directly over their respective hoistways, thereby giving maximum efficiency and requiring minimum space.

Security, that feature in elevator service for which the passenger is most desirous, is provided in the Otis Oil Cushion Buffers. These are placed in the hoistway in such a way that the buffers have proven capable of bringing a loaded car safely to rest from full speed. In addition to this protection double acting wedge clamp car safeties of Otis construction bring the car to a safe stop in case, for any reason, the speed of the latter exceeds that for which the apparatus was installed.

The elevator facilities and protection afforded for vertical transportation have undergone a great transformation within the past half century.

It has been said of the modern car that the size which has been fixed at 42 square feet interior area of the cab, is found to carry a maximum of 3,150 pounds, and at 40 per cent. of that load it is carrying an amount of 1,260 pounds, equal to 7.4 passengers and an operator, which is near the average of a 19-floor service. At 22 floors the rated service affords 8.8 passengers and an operator, or 1,740 pounds, which provides a load of 46½ per cent. of the maximum capacity each trip, and inversely, if it be serving less than 19 floors, less than 40 per cent. would be utilized per average trip. Its maximum capacity, however, being 3,150 pounds, it would carry a maximum traffic of that weight, which, deducting the operator, is 3,000 pounds, or twice the rated load of a 24-floor service. Beyond this it could not handle further travel, so that its extreme effective travel capacity is at a 24-floor service. Such a car, therefore, would be adaptable to floor services of 19 floors up to 24 floors, and might serve 23 or 24 floors, were such a number desirable.

A car of 32.5 square feet area, having a maximum load of 2,437 pounds, reaches a similar limitation at a 19-floor service, and would be carrying 40 per cent. of its full load, with the rated service of 14 floors, while the range of a car of 26 square feet is 15 floors and 11 floors, and that of a car 21 square feet, 11 floors and 7, respectively.

The elevator for carrying passengers was not used until a decade after the Fifth Avenue Hotel was erected, coming into regular service about 1870. The action was very noisy with the old cable system and the direct driven screw passing through the centre of the car was adopted to eliminate this feature. By 1880 the 14 and 15-sty buildings brought in a new style of service, namely, a water balance elevator. This was substantially the filling and emptying of a huge bucket of water to balance the weight of the car. When water was admitted to the bucket the elevator rose, the bucket descending, being attached to the car by a cable over the sheave. When the water was emptied the weight of the car allowed it to descend.

SELECT COMMON BRICK FOR FACING.

A STRONG TENDENCY TO REVERT TO PLAIN FRONTS REPORED BY DEALERS.

"There appears to be a tendency to use more select common brick for exteriors," remarked Mr. John P. Kane, of the John P. Kane Company, masons' supplies, Terminal Building, 41st st and Park av, commenting upon recent orders. When queried regarding the class of structures to which he referred, Mr. Kane cited as one example the large piano factory that is being erected at the corner of 136th st and Locust av, Bronx, by John H. Deeves & Bro., and for which Mr. Kane's company is supplying one and a half million of brick and 5,000 barrels of cement.

"More factories are going up with the best quality of common brick for facing," he continued. "It is not a new thing to use this kind of brick for exteriors of such structures as factories, but the tendency is so strong now that select common brick are called for sometimes in the specifications for buildings of architectural beauty. A church to be erected in the Bronx is to have a 'select common' front."

Mr. Wm. F. Edsall, treasurer of the Empire Brick & Supply Company, Terminal Building, was asked what experience his company had had along this line.

"The increasing use of select common brick for exteriors, if such is the case, could be explained by the fact that the selection of brick is very often a fad," said Mr. Edsall. "Such a front would be cheaper than one of expensive face brick, but when common brick is used for facing a high-class structure it is largely the result of a desire not to imitate, to have something different. There is one instance not far from New York where the outside walls of a residence built for a man of some means were constructed of broken bottles and brick. The fashions in brick change like the fashions of dress or headgear."

"We advocate the use of a good quality of common brick for factories and such buildings," said Mr. D. K. Robinson, of the Andrew J. Robinson Company, general contractors, 123 West 23d st. When asked about the reported tendency to use more of such brick for a higher class of building he added, with a twinkle in his eye:

"There is so little work in progress now it is pretty difficult to speak of tendencies of any kind."

N. Y., 84) and kindred cases, it cannot be held that the Legislature intended to include labor employed in the production of raw material necessary for municipal buildings and works.

"Presumably the Legislature enacts labor laws to benefit and aid labor. If the law be held to embrace purchased manufactured material and to work a forfeiture of the contract on all payments earned, if in its manufacture and preparation for use the eight-hour law is not observed and the prevailing rate of wages in the locality is not paid, its presumed beneficent objects will be defeated, for no municipal work will be done, for no contractor will be fool-hardy enough to enter into any contract liable to be annulled in such a manner. Labor laws, like any other law which the Legislature sees fit to enact, should be upheld by the Courts where no constitutional violation exists, and no absurd interpretation which defeats their object should be permitted.

"The situation is not changed because the defendant Wille contracted that he would forfeit payments if he violated the law. The material which he purchased did not come within the law as we view it, because the persons employed in the manufacture of the doors, windows and woodwork ultimately used in the building were not employed 'on, about, or upon such public work,' within the meaning of the statute, and hence it was unimportant whether they were employed more than eight hours a day, or were not paid the prevailing rate of wages.

"Our conclusion is that the defendant Wille did not forfeit his contract and that he is entitled to the payment due under it. Judgment is directed for defendant Wille with costs. All concur."

to be found in porcelain and glass at plumbers' supply houses. A cheap substitute is a wooden shelf with a covering of plate glass, which may be cut by any glazier from scrap glass.

A rubber tube with shampoo sprinkler to attach to the hot water faucet is excellent for rinsing dishes left on the drain board. Dish-washing machines are now in general use in hotels and other large establishments; a small size has recently been supplied for family use. This consists of a large galvanized pail to be filled with boiling suds, into which a perforated basket of dishes can be plunged; by turning a crank attached to the handle of this basket, a current of water is forced through, cleansing the contents thoroughly.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT.

Heavy Reduction in Western Cement.

INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION THE CAUSE OF THIS ACTION IN MIDDLE WEST.

The reduction of prices by some of the cement manufacturers in the Middle West was one of the questions brought up for consideration at the quarterly meeting of the American Portland Cement Manufacturers at Atlantic City last week, according to one who was present. The Industrial depression has affected this business so much in the region east and west of the Mississippi and has caused such a surplus to be on hand that some of the concerns are reported to be selling at prices approaching the abnormal. It was stated by one of the representatives at the reunion that there were instances of contracts being signed in the West for delivery, f. o. b., at as low as 60 cents per barrel. What this means may be inferred when it is stated that cement has held its price of $1.48 per barrel in the East for the past five or six months, according to a local dealer.

Regarding the difference in prices and the possibility of a recovery to more stable conditions a big cement manufacturer, who attended the meetings at Atlantic City, said:

"There is no doubt that cement prices have been very uncertain in the Middle West and that some of the manufacturers have reduced them to dispose of surplus stock. This condition has not lasted long, in fact it could not, despite the high transportation rates between Eastern points and the Mississippi. It is largely the outcome of the dull season through which we have just passed, and the decrease in the number and size of orders has left considerable quantities of cement in stock.

"Meanwhile, some of the mills have been piling up the surplus. Added to this is the output of the slag cement plant started recently by the United States Steel Corporation. The capacity of this plant is beyond the needs of the Steel Corporation at present, owing to the industrial depression, and this concern is also in the market.

"It is true that there are but a few concerns in the Middle West cited as selling as low as 60 cents per barrel, but it is indicative of the fact that prices are being reduced very materially, and that anything between this price and the $1.48 maintained in the East may be accepted. One Eastern manufacturer told me at Atlantic City that hitherto about one quarter of his business was done in the section of which Toledo was the center, and that he is now turning to New England for most of his orders. The discrimination in prices has been so marked that he was compelled to abandon the field where he had been doing the best business. The same story was told by others in a milder way. I believe that the capacity of the Steel Corporation's mill is about 2,000,000 barrels per year."

Although the conference at Atlantic City was attended by representatives of cement manufacturers from all over the country it was stated that the question of discrimination in prices did not come to a head and that no official action was taken. It is believed by some of the manufacturers that the discussion of the matter by the representatives at the quarterly meeting will be enough to bring the undersellers to a realization of the ultimate effect which their policy will have on the cement industry and that no action by the organization will be required to restore normal conditions in the way of prices in the region affected.

Excavated Rock for Facing.

UNIQUE AND ECONOMICAL IDEA TO BE FOLLOWED IN ERECTION OF UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

The erection of the group of buildings to be known as the Union Theological Seminary, at 120th St. and Broadway, by the A. J. Robinson Coo., 123 W 23d st., will be characterized by a unique feature. Those in charge of the designing and construction of the buildings have decided to use the rock excavated from the site for facing all three structures. The site comprises two complete city blocks, fronting on Broadway from 120th to 122d St. and extending back to Claremont Ave. The street that would ordinarily intervene, 121st St., does not extend west of Broadway. This property is solid rock, to blast which and prepare for the foundations will cost about $65,000. Masons will be employed to shape the rough rock for the walls. It is estimated that the use of this material on the four sides will be about $15,000 cheaper than if face brick were selected. The fronts on the four streets will be dark gray. The excavations are to be completed September 15 next, leaving about one year for the Robinson Company to complete the erection of the buildings.

The use of excavated rock or granite for the exterior walls of buildings erected on the same property is cheaper in several ways, particularly in the cost of the material This also eliminates the hauling both ways of much of the material involved. An offset to this is the labor of the masons employed to shape the rough material from its excavated condition. The architects for the Seminary are Allen and Collens, of Boston, Mass., and Louis E. Jallade, 1170 Broadway.

Pine Used Over Fifty Years Sound.

BEAMS SUPPORTING FRAMEWORK OF OLD FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL TO SEE SERVICE AGAIN.

White pine beams in use for over half a century in the old Fifth Avenue Hotel will be requisitioned to support the frame work of a large barn to be erected at Hartsdale, Westchester County, for Mr. W. G. Hitchcock, a close relative of one of the former proprietors bearing the same name. Mr. Hitchcock, who is president of the John Ruszits Fur Company, has a big crop of hay on his farm and contemplates putting up a structure that will hold it all and provide ample room for the ingress and egress of teams. He stopped at the old hostelry many a time, even as far back as in the sixties. When he learned that the historic structure was to be demolished, sentiment got tangled up with his agricultural affairs. He thought that it would be a fine thing to use some of the supports in the hotel for the same service in the barn he had in view.

A visit to the storage yards of the Rheinfrank House Wrecking Company, 620 E. 14th st, which has the contract to raze the buildings on the site of the proposed Fifth Avenue Office Building, showed him that the white pine trimmers, headers, etc., were as sound as when they were set in place in the fifties of the last century. Some of them had been milled to prove that their fine surface appearance continued throughout the lumber. Most of them are 27 feet long, which would give Mr. Hitchcock a barn with a beam of 57 feet if he wants it that wide.

Several carloads of lumber from the old hotel have been purchased by Mr. Jacob Rothschild, proprietor of the Majestic Hotel, to be used in the frame work of a large and handsome dwelling being erected at Elberon, Long Branch. Each of the floors will contain at least 4,000 square feet.

Capacity of Building Brick Plants Doubled.

"Business has been so good that the plants of our concern manufacturing building brick have been increased this year until their capacity has been doubled. Orders have not been as numerous as we would have liked, as this year has been unusual, but, taking all circumstances into consideration, there is little reason to complain. From the New York office alone this year three orders have called for a total of 10,000,000 of brick.

This cheery statement was given out by Mr. C. J. Henderson, manager of the New York office of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company, 1133 Broadway.

To Pave With Vitrified Brick.

Main st in Poughkeepsie is going to be paved with Metropolitan vitrified brick, laid in cement, at a cost of $1.20 per square yard. The Metropolitan is a shale brick.

Granite Quarrying.

By T. NELSON DALE.

Extract from Bulletin No. 313, United States Geological Survey.

The problems that confront the granite quarrymen are numerous. Their solution requires not only capital, but practical experience, judgment, a little geological knowledge and some mathematics. It is, first of all, assumed that suitably prepared specimens of the fresh rock have been scientifically determined as to quality.

The next step is careful exploration of the granite surface, if necessary, by stripping in trenches, with a view to determine the areal extent of the quality of stone tested, the character of the jointing, the presence of headings, dikes, and veins, and the frequency of knots.

Stripping.—The thickness of soil or till upon the granite surface and that of the decomposed surface rock should be estimated. In some places the removal of this covering involves large expenditures; in others the expense is so small as to be negligible.

Sheets, Rift and Grain.—A sufficient amount of vertical exploration should be made, possibly by core drilling, in order to determine the thickness of the sheets, the width of the sap, the direction and amount of rift and grain.

Quarry Site.—With these preliminaries a quarry site should be selected. In this selection the inclination of the sheets and the location of headings and dikes should be considered, as well as the amount of stripping, the location of dumps, the drainage, and the facilities for transportation. The location of a quarry on a level tract, away from streams or shore, may entail insurmountable drainage difficulties.

Transportation.—The cost of transporting the product is obviously one of the great factors in granite quarrying. The basis of the Maine granite industry is the location of its quarries at tidewater. At many quarries schooners of 175 registered tonnage—that is, carrying from 300 to 350 long tons—are laden within 500 ft. and some within 125 ft. of the point where the stone is quarried. Notwithstanding the greater cost of transportation by rail and the necessity, in many places, of a second handling, Maine gran-

BRICK.—Hudson River commons are in large supply, with quotations still nominal, but characterized by a slightly hardening tendency under somewhat larger requirement. But as that requirement is still below par, and far from being equal to the possible shipments, its fluctuations are not particularly important.

The story is partly told by the record of plans filed for new buildings—in round figures, $31,000,000 for this year so far, in Manhattan and the Bronx, against $51,000,000 for last year; and in Brooklyn, $11,000,000 for this year, against $34,000,000 for the corresponding part of last year.

Conditions are really worse than this record, because of the large amount of work being held back after the approval of the plans. But other circumstances that usually have a strong bearing on the amount of building are distinctly improving,—as the available supply of money.

Money has been flowing, like water in a Western irrigating ditch, into the next best thing, for several months, and is getting abundant for loans in large bunches, in building and real estate circles. In other lines of business it has become superabundant. But the building loan houses that builders have been accustomed to patronize seem to have turned bears. They are not helping the situation for builders, who, somehow, are not getting all the money they wish for new operations, or to clear themselves from old ones, in cases where they have not yet settled with sub-contractors.

Certain reports coming to this office are to the effect that some builders and financial backers have received intimations that they would have trouble if they started any new work before settling up on old operations. The head of a large and reputable firm of operators, to whom this fact was mentioned, said that the instances to which the foregoing applied were too few to affect the general situation.

As front brick has a wider market than common brick, a somewhat different state of affairs is reported, especially by first hands. In recent years front brick has had a larger vogue in small cities. Formerly good selected red common brick, laid up in white mortar, was esteemed fine enough for anything. Later came a fashion for red mortar and dipped brick, and when this work becomes weather-stained the paint brush comes into play.

In the Hudson River cities, where they make good brick, there are numerous old-fashioned fronts of common brick that, being well laid in the first instance, are handsome still, after standing many years unpainted. But in most interior towns the agreeable later-day styles of "fancy" brick are acquiring a large vogue for fronts and courts and are superseding the local product to this extent. Hence there is a large "outside" trade usually quite independent of metropolitan circumstances.

CEMENT.—When the leading Portland cement manufacturers gathered at the quarterly reunion in Atlantic City last week the prospects for this year and next were discussed on all sides. Every one present was exceedingly interested in the outlook after the blow sustained by the cement industry last winter and spring. The prevailing sentiment appears to be that 1909 will prove a good year.

"I talked with big manufacturers from all over the country," said Mr. W. P. Corbett, of the Alsen Company, "and, optimistic as I am, I was astonished at the unanimity displayed in the feeling that business will be good next year. Many of those with whom I spoke expressed the belief that there would be a greater demand than their plants would be able to meet. Among those with whom I spoke there was not a dissenting voice to this optimism.

"The basis of the opinion heard on all sides is largely that the railroads cannot hold off their contemplated improvements any longer. Railread contracts for cement take a large part of the total output of all the plants. Other big undertakings are expected to start or be resumed. The reports from Kansas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and the West all indicate that 1909 will be a good year. It cannot be said now what effect this will have on prices. The losses this year to manufacturers have been very heavy. None of them is making any profit now, the general confidence in the immediate future buoying all up. If I had met one or two pessimists at Atlantic City it would not have surprised me, but the astonishing feature of it was that everyone appeared to be sanguine."

Mr. Corbett was asked if the reports regarding reduction of prices in the Middle West are true.

"I have heard that some very low prices have been quoted, but that cannot continue long."

No consequences have yet been felt in the East from the price-cutting in the Middle West. Here the rate of $1.48 per barrel to dealers is being rigidly maintained. In the Metropolitan section the requirement continues much below normal. Only about 60 per cent. of the Eastern mill capacity is reported to be engaged.

IRON, STEEL, ETC.—The daily press notes the death of Peter H. Jackson, one of the founders of the Jackson Architectural Iron Works, which was the first foundry in New York to make a specialty of castings for buildings. This foundry was established in the year 1840, James L. Jackson being the head of the firm. Its original business was to cast grates and fenders. Columns, lintels, beams and girders were cast as orders were received.

The use of one-story iron fronts with rolling iron shutters for the doors and windows met in time the requirements of a large trade, and entire fronts of cast iron were the sequence. The first complete iron front ever erected in the world was put into a 5-sty building at the corner of Centre and Duane sts, in the year 1848, by James Bogardus, a civil and mechanical engineer.

Peter H. Jackson's father was Hugh Jackson, a pioneer in the fireplace business. Peter H. died at Oakland, Cal., aged 69. One of his sons, Francis D., is vice-president of the Hecla Iron Works, of Brooklyn.

New York for a long time supplied the demand for iron fronts throughout the country, but after a time other cities engaged in the business also. One of the earliest cast-iron fronts in the city was for the Harper publishing house on Franklin sq. One of the largest of the kind was erected by the Cornell Iron Works for A. T. Stewart's store (now John Wanamaker's) in 1859. The list of important buildings having iron fronts would be a long one.

The first solid wrought iron beams ever used for floors in this country were rolled at Peter Cooper's Trenton mills in the year 1854. The first beams made were used in the U. S. Assay office in Wall st. It was in 1860 that the first "I" beams were rolled in America.

Expecting further reductions in structural shapes, contractors are still withholding orders. The fact stands out that the cut called for by the buying trade has not been made. Where a $4 cut was demanded, and it is said, promised, there came a cut of but $2. The buying public figured that it could not come in now on less than a $4 cut, and it still believes this. Not until consumers are convinced that the market is on a firm basis will there be any large volume of business.

The steel work for the new pier for the Holland-America Line in Hoboken, amounting to 1,800 tons, has gone to the McClintic-Marshall Construction Co. of Pittsburgh.

Concessions in prices on iron bars, which have been brought about by the reduction in the price of steel bars, have caused a little better buying movement. Orders, however, are not for large tonnages, but the indications are for a material improvement.

The tin plate trade continues to be the most active of the finished lines. The American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. is operating its tin plate mills to about 90 per cent. of capacity.

Mr. Andrew N. Peterson, president of the Whale Creek Iron Works, thinks there is a good outlook for ornamental iron and bronze work in Brooklyn. New ideas and a new spirit are having their effect. Many inquiries are coming from Manhattan and elsewhere, which show that important work is contemplated.

Mr. Petersen notices on his business trips that iron construction is increasing throughout the country. A few days ago in Toronto he noticed several steel-skeleton skyscrapers going up. All the iron work used in Canadian towns is of American manufacture, and this bodes well for American iron works. In the South steel-ribbed buildings are going up right now on all sides.

The Whale Creek Iron Works are well under way with the ornamental iron and bronze for the courthouse at Memphis, Tenn., a $25,000 contract. They are also just erecting the elevater enclosures in the new Singer extension, in Manhattan, a $40,000 job. A late contract is for the ornamental iron work and elevator enclosures for the new Lotus Club. The large urn and bronze work for the Martyrs' monument in Fort Greene Park, have been completed at these works. The urn is 22.6 ft. high, by 12 ft. in diameter. The urn alone weighs 7½ tons.

LATH AND LIME.—Arrivals of spruce lath have not been large of late, but still sufficient to keep the market at a moderate level. It is generally understood that the yards are selling only about one-third of the usual quantity, and are in a position as regards their supplies to buy only when the price is much in their favor.

Lath is a highly fluctuating commodity at best. Sales of the past month have been on a basis as low as $2.90 per thousand for the roundwood lath, and as high as $3.40 per thousand for the slab lath shipped in by car. The market for cargoes should be quoted to-day at about $3.15 to $3.25, and this price can be maintained, if receipts continue light, during the next few weeks.

Lime has a fluctuating demand in the present market, but the average business is still less than half of normal, with prices maintained in about the same degree as during the whole season thus far. Anything short of present quotations for standard brands would be a needless sacrifice, in the opinion of manufacturers. The mental attitude in the trade is simply patience.

LUMBER.—Are we still hopeful of a revival of trade? Yes, but a little fagged over having to say it so often. One hears the roar of the coming train when he puts his ear to the rail, but the train hasn't crossed the bridge yet.

In some of the suburbs there is a good business in frame building, but that benefits Manhattan only indirectly. Here the hardwood market is taking its turn at being crumpled after standing up stiffly thus far. Prices on random cargoes of spruce range all the way from $16.50 to $21. Hemlock holds up well with stocks heavy at mill points. For North Carolina pine a pleasant breeze is springing, but long leaf yellow pine shows little improvement.

A cargo of yellow pine is coming to this port from Fernandina at a rate $3 less per M. than was paid just one year ago for the same service. This is only one firm's experience with ocean freight rates, but it shows the general drift. Nominally the going rates are two dollars lower than a year ago, from Atlantic coast ports to New York. This taken in connection with the low selling price of yellow pine should make it an advantageous proposition to lay in all the material one can sell in a year's time—if he can afford the money.

The reports to the Lumberman's Review speak particularly of the fact that while white pine on the whole is sluggish, uppers selects and the fine common grades are in as strong price position as at any time in the past five years. Where there is any weakness in values it is confined to the intermediate grades between box and fine common, including cutting up stock and barn boards.

Advices from London say that the British market will require this season much less than a normal amount of American lumber.

C. E. Kennedy, long associated with the Shepard & Morse Co., as New York representative, at 18 Broadway, will engage in business on his own account in the same building after July 1. Charles R. Partridge, for many years conducting a retail hardwood yard at the foot of East 99th st., Manhattan, is moving his business to Jersey City, where he has purchased a block front in Van Horn st, between Grant st. and Johnson av.

The eleventh annual convention of the National Hardwood Lumber Association met at Milwaukee June 11-12. A long report submitted by the committee on inspection rules was finally adopted, after debate, the recommendations to take effect August 1. A memorial on the subject from the Eastern organizations had been referred to the committee, and a large part of the recommendations contained therein were embodied in the report. Oliver O. Agler, of Chicago, was elected president; F. F. Fish was re-elected secretary.

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

More Improvements at Arverne, L. I.

ARVERNE, L. I.—Messrs. Shampan & Shampan, 772 Broadway, Brooklyn, are preparing plans for two country residences, to be situated on the east side of Remington av., 180 ft. north of Amstel Boulevard, Arverne, Long Island, and the west side of Clarence av., 180 ft. north of Amstel, Boulevard, for Mr. Max Germansky, builder, care of the architects. The buildings will be designed in the colonial style of architecture, 40x100 ft., having a hard wood interior, steam heat, gas and electric fixtures, two stories basement and attic in height, consisting of twelve rooms. The Leonard Moody Real Estate Co., of 189 Montague st., Brooklyn, sold this plot for the Somerville Realty Co., of Brooklyn. Ground has been broken and the buildings are expected to be completed by October 1st. Architects are taking all bids. It is believed that the above proposed improvements will result in the development of the entire track now vacant, lying between the tracks of the Long Island Railroad and the Jamaica Bay at Arverne.

Plans for Everett House Site Improvement.

4TH AV.—The Century Realty Co., No. 111 Broadway, now the owner of the old Everett House property at 4th av and 17th st. northwest corner, facing Union Square, it is said will start immediate operations carrying out the plans for replacing the old hotel with a 20-sty office building. The site has a frontage of 142 ft. on 4th av., and about 128 ft. in Union Square, in all about 16,500 square feet. Its proximity to the 14th st., express station of the subway, the 18th st. local station, the Broadway surface lines and the 18th st. station of the "L", renders the location most accessible for a modern office building. The Everett House was erected in the year 1853 and is one of the old land marks of the city. So far as could be learned this week no architect has yet been commissioned to make the proposed plans. On Thursday the Record & Guide was informed that it was quite probable the present building would not be razed but simply remodeled. (See also issue of Feb. 19, 1907.)

Contract for New Building on Sinclair Site.

BROADWAY.—General contract was placed this week with the William L. Crow Construction Co., 289 4th av., for the erection of the new 16-sty office building, which is to replace the old Sinclair House at the Southeast corner of Broadway and 8th st., covering a plot 50x116, with a 39 foot L on Astor pl. Plans have been prepared by architect William H. Gompert, of No. 2102 Broadway, to cost in the neighborhood of $400,000, the Sinclair Realty Co., of No. 31 Nassau st., being the owners.

With the disappearance of the Sinclair House, the "Fifth Avenue" and the Everett House, at 4th av and 17th st., which it is proposed will be replaced with a 20-sty office building, the old Astor House is left as the single relic of an age when New York's famous hostelries were far downtown. Work of tearing down the Sinclair began on May 1. The materials for the exterior will be light brick, terra cotta, and limestone, with a granite base.

Particulars of East 27th St. Office Building.

27TH ST.—The Brunswick Realty Company will immediately erect a 10-sty fireproof office building to cost in the neighborhood of $300,000, at Nos. 121-123 East 27th st. and 118 East 28th st. A feature of this building will be an arcade running through from street to street. The building is to be equipped with a complete high power steam plant, and electric power plant to supply light for all the offices, and power for four high speed elevators. The courts will be faced with white enamel brick, and the halls will have marble wainscot. Birch or maple trim will be used throughout; reinforced concrete floor construction, yellow pine finished floors, and terra cotta partitions. The frame of the building will be riveted steel. Frederick C. Zobel, of No. 114 East 28th st. is the architect.

Bids Wanted for Hebrew Sheltering Society Buildings.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y.—Messrs. Jacob & Heidelberg, Associated Architects, 322 Fifth av., Manhattan, will be ready to receive proposals for the general construction work for the group of buildings to be erected by the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society at Pleasantville, N. Y., on about June 25. The group comprises an Administration building, Girls Technical building, Boys Technical building, Power House, Laundry building, Storage building, thirteen Cottages of two types, Superintendent's house, Hospital, Contagious Hospital, Cow and Horse Barn, Dairy building and Farmer's House. Brief and Personal.

Money is superabundant in some channels, and comparatively easy in all.

Mr. Pfotenhauer, of Pfotenhauer-Nesbit Company, 1133 Broadway, is in Europe. It is expected that he will return about October.

The Lumber Trade Review's counsel to lumber shippers: "If you must give your lumber away, consign it to the poor, not to New York or London."

Architects Carpenter & Blair, No. 475 Fifth av., Manhattan, have completed plans for a bank and office building to be erected at Pensacola, Fla. Bids will be taken about June 25.

American farmers expect to reap eight billion dollars' worth of crops this year. The farmers have had eight successive good harvests; this will be the ninth. This ought to spell Good Times Again.

Plans by Messrs. York & Sawyer, 156 5th av, Manhattan, have been accepted for a new S-sty fireproof building to be erected at Washington and Genesee sts, Buffalo, N. Y., for the Buffalo General Electric Co.

G. W. Brown, with headquarters at Merchantville, N. J., will hereafter represent the Stevens-Eaton Company in the lumber trade of Pennsylvania and lower New Jersey. The firm has recently enlarged its suite of offices in the Metroplitan Building.

Work has begun on the new tenement house to be erected, at Nos. 196 - 198 Spring st., for Benjamin V. R. Winterbottom, of 620 Sixth av. E. G. W. Dietrich, and Arthur H. Smith, are the architects. John Rennie, 3032 east 20th st., is general contractor.

Peter H. Jackson, father of Francis D. Jackson, of the Hecla Iron Works, died this week at Oakland, Cal., aged 69. He was born in this city, the son of Hugh Jackson, and belonging to a family prominent in the foundry business of this city. Peter H. was one of the founders of the Jackson Architectural Iron Works.

Charles A. Geoghegan, of Gillis & Geoghegan, 537 West Broadway, a member of the B. T. E. A., was elected president of the New York State Association of Master Steam and Hot Water Fitters at the annual convention in Syracuse, May 12. Charles N. Brizse, president of the New York City Association, was elected a member of the Board of Directors.

The New York State Civil Service Commission will hold examinations on June 27, for positions in the engineering department of the Public Service Commission. Architectural draftsman, $1,200 to $1,800; engineering draftsman (railroad and concrete work), $1,200 to $1,800, structural draftsman, $1,200 to $1,800, and junior draftsman (engineering and structural), $720 to $1,200.

Mr. John P. Kane, Jr., of the John P. Kane Company, Terminal Building, was married last Wednesday evening to Miss Margaret A. Yauch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Yauch. The wedding reception took place at the St. Regis, and was one of the social events of the week. Mr. Edward V. Kane, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Kane are now on their honeymoon trip and will return late in the summer.

J. C. Robinson & Brother, 1 Madison av, are building the mammoth cathedral, the Archiepiscopal See, at St. Louis, for which Barnett, Haynes & Barnett, St. Louis, are the architects. The construction will extend over an indefinite period, being similar to that of the new edifice being erected in Harlem for the Church of St. John the Divine. The total cost of the cathedral in the West will approach $5,000,000 before it is completed.

The E. H. Ogden Lumber Company, which for many years has operated a yard at the foot of West 4th st, sells out this interest to two of its former employees, and the business will be continued under the title of the Jantzen & Overbaugh Company, while the members of the old E. H. Ogden Lumber Company, who were proprietors of the East River Mill & Lumber Company, will now turn their attention entirely to this latter interest.

Why speculative building is dead in towns on the middle Hudson is apparent from the following quotations, taken from a real estate firm's announcement in one of the daily papers: "Two thousand dollars will buy a good 3-sty brick house; 10 rooms, $500 down, balance on mortgage five years; $1,600 will buy two flat house in West Newburgh, 11 rooms; $2,000, fine country house on the trolley line; $2,500, new cottage house on top the hill, lot 60x120, 6 rooms and bath; many fine homes on the best streets at less than the original cost."

The temporary elevators of the Metropolitan Life Tower have been extended from the thirty-fourth to the fortieth floor, which is as far as these will run. Thursday was remarkable for its clearness, and the distant points as Staten Island and the Third Mountain in New Jersey were quite plain to the eye. It was a great opportunity for photographic work. The "cupola," if it may so be called, is now under erection, and the architectural skeleton has now taken practically the definite shape for the finished structure.

Metropolitan Life Tower.

Thursday saw the beginning of the removal of the protective staging of the 17th floor level of the Metropolitan Life tower. This was the first one erected above the overhead sidewalk bridge. The work was begun on the park side, and the planking removed about half the distance along the front, leaving only the steel lookouts projecting from the windows. Consequently the west face of the corner pier is exposed to the height of the second staging erected at the level of the 29th story. The removal of this horizontal line tends to increase the apparent height of the tower. It has been a splendid protection and has formed a great aid in construction, setting, etc.

Operations in 24th St.

The block on 24th st, between 6th av and Broadway, is now a scene of great activity. Coming from the west, an addition to the Masonic Home is going along very well, in view of the fact that there is much rock in the excavation. They have begun to set steel on the east side which is up about one story above the sidewalk. Almost across the street is another operation where they have, fortunately, not struck such an outcropping of rock, and the bottom seems to be a fair quality of sand. Up at the Fifth Avenue Hotel site the steel drills are busily at work, in the hard mica shist. The drillings have been of necessity quite close together in places, the marks on the rocks showing about nine inches on centres. Dirt excavation is removed by teams, up a long incline plane, and rock is being taken out by derricks.

Brady Co. Makes Assignment.

The Thomas J. Brady Co., 1123 Broadway, has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to J. P. Butler, of the John T. Brady Co. The principal cause of this proceeding is stated to have been the vacating of the contract for the Bronx Courthouse by Borough President Haffen. The net liabilities are given as $50,000. There was inability to realize on the assets, which appear to be ample. Mr. Brady, who was former Superintendent of Public Buildings in Manhattan, has claims against the city for amounts aggregating $127,000. The firm has contracts on the New York Public Library, and the Astor, Lenox and Tilden foundation at 742 and 744 Tenth av. Mechanics' liens for $34,500 have been filed against the company in favor of building material dealers.

The Brady company was incorporated three years ago with a capital stock of $100,000. The officers are Thos. J. Brady, president, and Jules A. Coelos, treasurer.

This is Going Some.

"We have placed more orders so far this month than in the entire month of May. The business for May was more than double that for April, and for April more than double for that of March. Our opinion as to what the summer will bring forth can be inferred."

This was the response of a representative of the Stanley Hod Elevator Company, 620 W. 25th St., to a query concerning the outlook.

Bungalows Cause Demand for Used Lumber.

UNUSUAL EFFECT ON BUSINESS OF WRECKERS.

The increase in the number of bungalows going up in the suburbs of New York has so affected the business of B. W. Greene Jr. Company, wreckers and building material supplies, 18th St. and Ave. B, that the concern has installed a rip saw equipment and a seventeen horsepower gas engine to mill the lumber as ordered for these structurues. A swing cross-cut saw is to be added shortly.

The popularity of the bungalow appears to be gaining steadily. In real estate circles it is said that the adaptability of a lot on Long Island or in New Jersey as a site for such a home frequently enhances its value. As the framework of the structure is covered entirely in some unique manner, such as with shingles or stucco, it is immaterial how rough the supports and girders are, provided that they are sound.

House wreckers have all sorts of building material on hand, and the stock of lumber is generally large and varied owing to the number of buildings of frame or slow-burning construction being demolished to give way to fireproof structures. At the office of the Greene Company it was stated that inquiries for old lumber cut to order were received from all neighboring sections. Pine is most in demand. Its durability is given as the cause of this. Orders filled recently for bungalows went to Babylon, Nyack, the Catskills, Lake Hopatcong and along the Hudson River.

Steel Reduction Affects Wreckers.

"The reduction in price of finished steel will mean that we will have to cut prices on the used steel that we carry in stock," said a representative of a large wrecking concern early in the week. "In fact, it has affected us already. Speaking of our own business we have a large supply of beams and girders on hand and buyers are already demanding a lower figure than we usually quote. It will be a case of coming down or a decrease in our sales.

"I was told the other day that it would be a good time to buy up a lot of finished steel, store it in some lot and keep it until prices go up again. There is not much to such a proposition, as the amount of such steel used without being made to order is comparatively little. In all of the modern structures every piece of iron work is made after the plans of the architects, the entire order for the building being given at once.

"The price of finished steel will go up again as soon as building activity picks up."

Representatives of several large iron concerns stated this week that the reduction had not affected their business appreciably. Contractors say that building activity has not been noticeably revived.

Progress on Riverside Drive Retarded.

"The injunction has so handicapped operations on Riverside Drive that I could do about as much in two months as I have been able to do in two years," was the answer of Mr. John C. Rodgers to a question as to what progress was being made along the north end of the Drive.

Mr. Rodgers is getting ready for the construction of the Manhattan Bridge. The preliminary tearing down to make way for the approach is under way.

Dust Laying.

At a special meeting of the Street Committee of Caldwell, N. J., held to decide on a system of dust-prevention this summer, the committee appointed to investigate the economy and effectiveness of asphalt oils and other dust-layers recommended the use of Dustoline, the new odorless dust-preventive, as used on the streets of Summit and Morristown, N. J. The New Jersey Dustoline Company of Morristown, was awarded the contract for laying the dust at Caldwell for the season of 1908.

THE WEEK.

A YEAR ago at this time the market was on the downward path from the standpoint of the number of sales reported. During the month of May there was a total of 555 private sales put through, in June 540, notwithstanding the fact that there were five Saturdays in that month, and in July the grand total slumped to 246. The low point was reached last November, when only 175 deals were consummated by private contract, though there were also five Saturdays in that month.

Recently the market has shown some improvement, not of the flash in the pan variety, but rather of the nature of a slow, healthy increase of business. Investors are taking notice of prevailing conditions. They fully realize that the worst is over, that the realty market has weathered the storm. One of the questions in their minds is, how long will the stagnation last? They do not care to assume many large contracts and hold them for an indefinite period before being able to realize on them.

Many people hold to the opinion that the rentals in numerous apartment houses are too high, and there will have to be an adjustment of rents before any great activity will take place. From a broker's standpoint this would be a desirable thing, because if prices of property were lower, customers would be more readily obtainable. Then again, were the rents cheaper, there would not be as many vacancies, and the buildings would return a larger net income to the owners. With few unoccupied apartments a readier sale for the property would be the natural outcome.

The sale of a perpetual lease of the property 18 and 20 East 50th st was the cause of considerable comment. The plot involved has a frontage of 56.2 and a depth of 100.5 and is located 293.10 east of 5th av. This property has been sublet back by the lessees for the term of two years, after which period high-class private dwellings will be erected. This lease began on May 1, 1894, and ran for the term of 21 years at a yearly rental of $8,500 and taxes. The lessors, however, contracted to pay $1,160 a year towards the latter expense. The option of renewal rests entirely with the lessee. The amount of rent at the expiration of the term will be the same as the present rental. The T. W. Evans Museum and Institute Society of Philadelphia sold the square block bounded by Broadway, West End av, 89th and 90th sts. The society acquired this holding by will of W. T. Evans in December last. Several other parcels were bequeathed to the society by him at the same time.

Another sale worthy of notice was that of the 12-sty mercantile buildings Nos. 22 to 28 West 21st st. The reported price was $750,000. An investor is the purchaser. The handsome dwelling house 37 West 72d st also changed hands. This property is on a lot 22x102.2, and has been held at $100,000. A trade of considerable importance was brought to a successful termination. The properties involved were the southeast corner of 5th av and 108th st, two 6-sty apartment houses, which were given in exchange for the three 5-sty flats Nos. 265 to 269 West 153d st and the three 6-sty flats 330 to 334 East 108th st, each on a plot 37.6x100.11.

A mortgage of importance recorded during the week was on the property at the northeast corner of Chambers st and Broadway, known as the Stewart Building. Title was taken by Felix Isman, the grantors being Judge Horace Russell and Edward Harris, trustees for the Hilton estate. The amount of the mortgage is $3,700,000 and it is due in four years, carrying 5 per cent. interest. The closing of this title caused considerable comment. The property has been under contract for over two years, and from time to time rumors were afloat that Mr. Isman had abandoned his purchase. Rumors of a similar character were circulated around the first of the year concerning the property at the southeast corner of 5th av and 42d st. The original day for closing was at that time, but an extension of six months was granted, and the deal is expected to be consummated on the first of July.

The V. Cerabone Construction Co. gave a mortgage to the City Mortgage Co. for $150,000 at 6 per cent. This is a demand mortgage in the form of a building loan. It is on the property on the south side of 113th st, about 117.6 east of Riverside Drive, 77x100.11. The present owners bought this property in the middle of May from Bing & Bing, who acquired it from William Waldorf Astor the month before. The City Mortgage Co. loaned Paterno Brothers, a corporation, $120,000 on the plot, 50x100.11, in the south side on 116th st, about 175 ft. west of Broadway. This is a demand mortgage and carries interest at 6 per cent. The borrowers are going to erect a high-class apartment house on the plot, which was acquired on Nov. 25, 1907, from John D. Crimmins. Mary D. Gerard loaned the Bretagne Co. $175,000 for three years at 5 per cent. on the property, 25x100, located on the north side of 58th st, 125 ft. east of 5th av.

THE AUCTION MARKET

THERE was a long list of offerings this week, but in the majority of cases the properties put up were the results of foreclosure suits. Without doubt many bargains have been procured during the past few months in the salesroom, but people perfectly familiar with the auction mart were the purchasers. There is a dearth of outside bidding at these sales by the outside public. In fact it is the exception rather than the rule to have a single bid from anyone not directly interested in the property.

The trouble lies in the fact that the general investment public does not understand this class of buying. Generally speaking, a man with some money to invest in realty wishes to take his time, to look around at length, and see just what can be had for his price. That is all very well, in fact it is just what he should do. He does not look, however, at those properties advertised for sale at auction. He has plenty of opportunity, but does not avail himself of it. In the minds of most men, it is a foregone conclusion that there is something the matter with the property in question, or it would not be advertised for sale.

This judgment is, in the majority of cases, all wrong. There is nothing the matter with the property itself, but with the persons who are the owners. The trouble is almost invariably that the interest on the mortgage is not paid, and the people who hold the mortgage naturally want either their interest or, failing to get that, demand the principal.

A large number of the foreclosure suits have been due to the fact that the holding was burdened with too large a loan. The purchasers did not put up enough money to secure their ownings. This is all very fine in times of prosperity, but let a little depression set in, and storm signals are immediately flying. The large percentage on the money invested is the bait that catches the unwary investor. If a prospective purchaser would use the same good judgment in buying realty that he does in his own business, the market would be far more settled.

Anyone buying real estate, whether at auction or private sale, should have sufficient "margin" up to protect himself. He must have sufficient equity in the property so that the mortgage on maturity can be renewed or replaced without trouble. Much of the recent inactivity is blamed on the so-called hard times. Well and good, but the fact must not be overlooked that the violent speculation that occurred during the few preceding years is largely responsible for the present state of affairs.

BUY COAL NOW.

From time to time the Record and Guide has drawn the attention of real estate brokers and property owners that during the summer months the coal bins in their apartment houses should be filled.

There are several reasons for this. In the first place the price of coal is cheaper. In the second place the coal firms can handle the orders quicker and better satisfaction is given. In the third place there is a decided relief in knowing that coal is on hand and that everything is in readiness for lighting the furnace on the first cold day.

In speaking of this situation, John Gordon, of Robert Gordon & Son, coal dealers, said: "Unquestionably during the late spring and summer months is the time to purchase coal. The price of stove, nut, egg and furnace to apartment houses is $5.95 at the present time, while after the first of September $6.25 will be the price. This means a considerable amount of saving to the landlord. Besides, we can handle orders better in the summer months. We are not so rushed, because not so much coal is burned, and our capacity is increased because a team can deliver more tons per day, on account of the condition of the streets. Certainly the present is the time to buy coal."

Mr. Burns, of Burns Brothers, 26 Cortlandt st, said: "From every standpoint the summer months is the time to buy coal. Sometimes it is difficult to make the owners of property realize this, but it is a fact nevertheless. Not only is there a concession in price, but also the quality of coal is superior. Orders can be delivered more promptly not only on account of the condition of the streets, but there are not as liable to be strikes at this season of the year. As a general thing strikes are declared in the busy season. From our standpoint we like to have our business distributed throughout the year as much as possible, instead of crowding the major portion into a few months. We are willing to pay for this accommodation. We make concession in the price. Stove, nut, egg and furnace coal is quoted at $5.95 a ton, while in September $6.25 will be the price. Pea coal is $4.25. In this particular grade of coal there is no change in price."

DENIES REPORTED SALE.

There was a report current during the week that the block front on the east side of 5th av, between 37th and 38th sts, as well as some adjoining property on 37th and 38th sts, had been sold to a prominent dry goods firm. The property in question is on the crest of Murray Hill, on the block above Tiffany's, and across the avenue from the Brick Church.

The truth of the matter is that negotiations have been pending for some time past, but the options were taken up before the date of the expiration, which was March 1, and the deal temporarily fell through.

Elizabeth M. Anderson is the largest individual owner on this block, having title to Nos. 415, 417, 421 5th av, 2 and 4 East 38th st, and 3, 5 and 9 East 37th st. The corner of 37th st is owned by Mary Lewis, together with the adjoining property. John Wendel owns No. 8 East 38th st, as well as 7 East 37th st. The other owners include Elizabeth P. Robbins, J. Milbank, Henry Steers and George Bliss. Newbold T. Lawrence, of 84 William st, who was mentioned as the broker, said: "The story recently published in relation to the sale of the 5th av block front, from 37th to 38th sts, is unfounded. There was last autumn an attempt made to gather together these properties under a single ownership, and with that in view a corporation was formed which held an option on some of the properties. This option, however, expired March 1, 1908, and has not been renewed."

ANOTHER CHANGE IN SUBWAY ROUTE.

The Public Service Commission at its regular meeting this week decided on a change of route on the Jerome av branch of the Broadway-Lexington av subway. The change stipulates that River av, between 157th and 169th sts, shall be used, and that the road be an elevated structure north of 157th st to its terminus, instead of being underground.

Gerard av was designated as the original route, and was approved by the Board of Estimate. On looking into the matter, however, it was found that this avenue is incumbered by important gas and water mains, besides being more populated.

On the other hand there is only one house on River av between these streets and has neither as many nor as important pipe lines beneath the surface.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will have to approve this change, before it can become operative. An order was issued to the street railway officials instructing them to present a memorandum and general drawings showing the type of all new rolling stock contracted for. It is believed that the city will save about $1,000,000 if this new route is adopted.

—A representative of the firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach applied to Justice Kelly, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, for an order to close five of the seven ferries of the Brooklyn Ferry Co. The firm is counsel for Joseph J. O'Donohue, Jr., the receiver of the company.

LAW DEPARTMENT

MECHANICS' LIENS.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

"A" makes a contract with "B" to grade, macadam and curb a stretch of road that has not as yet been accepted by the city. "A" pays "B" the amount due on the completion of the work. After a lapse of about two months "A" finds out that "B" has not paid the men employed by him to do the work. Can these men file a lien or any other document against the property which must be satisfied before a prospective purchaser would take title? Is "A" liable to the workmen for the labor done on his property, or must they recover from "B"? Thanking you for the courtesy of a reply, I am,

Yours truly,

PROPERTY OWNER.

Answer.—Unless payment by the owner to the contractor was made before such payment became due, and for the purpose of avoiding any obligation he might have to the workmen, no valid lien could be filed, and no lien enforced against the property; the workmen must look to the contractor and not to the owner for their pay. (See chapter 418 laws of 1897, sections 3, 4 and 7.)

PAYMENT OF COMMISSION.

A broker under protest and in order to see a certain real estate deal go through, verbally agrees to wait until the time of taking title for his commission. He signs no written agreement. The seller has placed in the contracts the clause, substantially as follows: "It is agreed that Mr. —— is the broker in this deal and the seller agrees to pay him his commission after the closing of this contract." Is the broker legally entitled to his commission in case the title is found to be defective by the buyer, and he refuses to purchase? SUBSCRIBER.

Answer.—An agreement to postpone payment of commission until time of closing title is not a subjecting of the "right" to the commission to the fact that the title shall be accepted and passed, unless so understood and intended between the parties to it.

COMMISSION NOT EARNED.

If a broker brings together buyer and owner of a parcel, purchaser agrees to buy, terms, etc., all satisfactory to both parties, when it comes to signing contract, purchaser for no reason at all simply refuses to purchase (just changed his mind). Can a broker collect commission from the purchaser? What is the law on this? By answering the above questions you will greatly oblige. BROKER.

Answer.—It does not appear to us at all that you fulfilled the requirement of the law in the production of a purchaser able and willing to complete, in order to be entitled to claim a commission from the seller. As to claiming it from the purchaser, you simply lost a fish before getting him to the landing net.

REGISTRATION OF LAND TITLES.

POPULARITY.

We have got the new system of registering titles, and it has come to stay; it will forever henceforward be an influence in our real estate world, "rough hew it as we may!" From and after February 1 next it will be a part of our Statute Law, and a thing to be reckoned with!

The position of the Record and Guide on the subject has been inquired as to, and we would say frankly that we are agreed with the principle but not as yet satisfied that that principle has been put into the most effective shape, or should have been attempted until further discussion from all sides could have been brought to bear, than has been the case.

Perhaps this could not have been done any more fully than has been sought to be, but all the same it is one great fault of our people—the rushing into untried fields of legislation without due consideration before we leap—the weighing of desirability to the price of cost—and having to rebuild or remodel our craft after they are afloat—to get the desired results.

That we have obtained such a law off-hand, and perfect, in the act that has been just signed by the Governor, we seriously doubt.

That such varied classes of real estate as have been constituted by it, as land left under the old regime—land that has been registered, but without guaranty from the fund, and land that has that guaranty—land that is subject to every lien or notice filed as of old in a County Clerk's or Register's office, and land that is no longer so subject, until the filing of such lien or transfer in the special Registrar's office. Land that is registered by certification where certified to by a title company that is two years of age at the passage of the act, and land that cannot be so registered if so certified to by a title company but one year and eleven months of age at that date, we doubt will be entirely satisfactory without further legislation; or that a registration certificate which shall for any cause leave the title open to attack even for the space of six months, and be always voidable as to judgments rendered in the United States Courts, or as to easements and servitudes arising between initial registration and subsequent re-issues of certificates will surely and fully be the accomplishment of the expectation and desire of the real estate world.

Irrespective of the particular merits or defects of the law that we have in fact shaped and adopted, and while considering the subject of these Torrens systems in general, the general subject of what has been sought to be obtained through them, and the actual popularity which has been attained by those already in operation in other States, may be of interest, before descending from the hill-top into the valley of detail.

REGISTERING UNDER OLD SYSTEM.

Years ago under the old system of registering names of grantors, mortgagees, lien holders, etc., in the public records under the old recording acts, in the larger cities, the true entry in alphabetical indexes, rapidly brought up the number of volumes devoted in some of the more popular initial letters to large numbers, and the running through them as a mere key to the recording volumes, or libers as they were called, became a great labor. Then the device of ruling the pages of these index volumes by the vowel system was introduced, a slight relief; but shortly giving way to, in New York County and some of the other counties containing the larger cities of the State, the Block Index system, which, too, in turn is now at least in New York County again rolling up its vast silent majority into the thousands of volumes—and these but index volumes!

SIMPLIFICATION NEEDED.

So the cry has risen for simplification and certainty! The title companies came into the field, and for a while the idea of having a quick and guaranteed transfer of title was thought to be had. How well or how ill these have effected the desideratum, the cry at all events has continued for some method even quicker than through a title company policy, of borrowing on or transferring by certificate, like corporate stock, in real estate dealing. Just here we have our own doubts of the value of this flexibility in real estate shifting; but, however that may be, the desire for it exists, and even the stock of realty incorporations, "the shadow cast by an uncertain substance," had a rising tide, by reason of that very desire for something handy of transfer.

For the last few years real estate people of reflective mind have cast an eye towards the Torrens systems, and with a feeling that therein might lie the solution of flexibility and certainty, allied in the one certificate of registration backed in some undefined way by the great seal of the State and the resources of the public treasury.

That this would be in some degree a form of socialism there is no denying, but it had its attractions; and that some form of operation on these lines of celerity and certainly had been had by other States and was now actually in operation elsewhere to the great and endless comfort of the happy denizens thereof, became a quite general feeling. The idea is certainly Utopian as well as Socialistic, and if possible to be had along constitutional lines, most alluring. To hold the certificate of the title to your land, free and clear, or with every lien or estate defined and fixed upon its face, was worth the having if it could be obtained through these Torrens laws.

This, then, speaks for the desire that would ensure popularity; and the measure which our new law will enjoy, or which has attached to other laws of the kind already in force in States embracing other great cities like Chicago and Boston, will be limited only to the measure to which such laws attain these desiderata, or fail therein from constitutional necessity or otherwise.

If after a year of operation our law shall have covered only 40 cases of mortgage registration in New York City as in Boston, or but 2,000 in 10 years as in Chicago, or proportionately even, we cannot but feel that somewhere a cog has been slipped or a gearing misplaced in the mechanism; for the want is there, and the wish for its attainment, if possible, strong behind that want!

MANHATTAN BRIDGE CABLE PLACED.

Manhattan and Long Island were joined together in another place this week, when the first wire strand of the new Manhattan Bridge was swung between the Manhattan and Brooklyn towers.

This strand is the first of sixteen which will reach across the river, but they will be only temporary. When these wire ropes are in place a footpath will be built, from which the large cables will be made.

These strands are first laid along the river bed and then hoisted into position. It is expected that one every day will be put into proper place. It was a rather difficult problem to get the first one properly adjusted and two hours of time was consumed.

Mayor McClellan, many city officials and several hundreds of workmen watched the placing of the first cable in position.

FAVORS WEST SIDE SUBWAY.

WEST SIDE TAXPAYERS' ASSOCIATION STRONGLY ADVOCATES WEST SIDE ROUTE TO RELIEVE CONGESTION.

The following communication, addressed to the Public Service Commission, embodies the views of the Special Rapid Transit Committee appointed by this association to look into the transit condition throughout the city.

The members of this association are deeply interested in this problem, and have done everything in their power to improve transit conditions in Manhattan.

Gentlemen: At a recent meeting of this association, the question of West Side rapid transit was thoroughly exploited, with the results, that we, a special committee of such association, desire to hereby set forth potent reasons why underground transit facilities for the West Side of Manhattan Borough should be immediately taken under consideration by your body, and acted upon.

The West Side of this borough at the present day is supplied with transit facilities absolutely inadequate to its needs, as will be readily appreciated by considering that west of 5th av there exists the 6th av surface line which is practically cut off at 59th st, preventing it from running northward; the 7th av surface line, which operates from 6th and Greenwich avs to 7th av and 59th st. The 8th av surface line, the only line running the full length of the borough on this side of Manhattan; the 9th av surface line, which operates to 65th st from Christopher and Cortlandt st ferries; the 10th av line, practically obsolete by reason of its horse motive power and the interference it suffers by reason of the freight traffic of the Hudson River R. R. below 30th st. There are also to be mentioned the 6th and 9th av elevated railways, which merge at 53d st and 9th av. From 14th st northward the 9th av elevated is available for express purposes. From 53d st and 9th av north, only, is the 6th av available for express service. These various routes are at the present time urged to their full carrying and running capacity, except the 7th av, which by reason of the congestion of cars east and west of 59th st finds no outlet northward and at its terminus at 6th and Greenwich avs for like reasons finds no outlet southward. Considerable of the sub-surface of 6th av has been given over the Hudson (McAdoo) underground railway which renders this avenue undesirable for another and new underground system. Ninth av has both an elevated and surface railway, but to construct a sub-surface railway there would require considerable more time and expense than the routes suggested herein. Tenth av, we believe practically unavailable by reason of the freight traffic below 30th st, and also its proximity to the water front. There remains, therefore, but two avenues suitable for underground traffic construction, i. e., 7th and 8th avs.

Within a comparatively short time there will be in completion the Pennsylvania tunnel and the terminal station thereof, covering a plot from 31st and 33d sts, from 7th to 9th avs. It is calculated that about 300,000 people will be carried by said road from east and west and discharged at said station daily. The greatest number of these people will emerge from said station at both 7th and 8th avs. What facilities for transporting these people to their various destinations exist or will exist considering the present facilities as set forth above? Those emerging upon 7th av will do so upon an avenue most poorly fitted for surface traffic existing on the West Side.

It must readily become apparent, therefore, that underground facilities to meet these demands for travel north and south is urgent, and this association, after mature deliberations, coosiders the route for such underground traffic along 7th and 8th avs upon lines as laid down and mapped by the recently existing rapid transit commission to be the most available, satisfactory, feasible and beneficial for such purpose. Such routes will insure a momentary return which will warrant the expenditure for such construction, and such return will result immediately upon the operation of cars through said tunnels. All conditions will be ripe for immediate use for such railways and are not dependent upon futurities.

This municipality in the construction improvements must and should consider the financial benefits resulting to itself and not the mere matter of construction, as any other business corporation would do, and it is due to the taxpayers that financial results commensurate with the outlay of capital should follow. That such returns would follow the construction of underground railways suggested herein, there can be no doubt. We may truly ask, "Where is there a locality within the Greater New York which will be so urgently in need of transit facilities as herein suggested and which would yield an immediate substantial profit upon its operation?"

Contrasting these facts with those confronting us relative to the proposed 4th av subway of the Borough of Brooklyn. There we find no such densely populated districts demanding transportation; on the contrary, there exist miles of territory through which it is proposed to run this subway which is practically uninhabited or poorly inhabited, where lands exist unfenced. From such a locality revenues are expected to be drawn to pay operating expenses (and dividend). Is there a demand here for a subway such as will eventuate upon the completion of the Pennsylvania Terminal Station? If the financial returns are not sufficiently promising and adequate, where exists a lessee who will take over such a subway and be willing to assume a risk almost dead at its very inception? As a business proposition has this city a right to incur a financial loss to please a number of land speculators who rely upon and urge the building of such a subway to selfishly boom their realty holdings?

Such a venture as the proposed 4th av Brooklyn subway would not yield a dividend in twenty years, and would likely not pay expenses of operation for years to come. This would eventuate in the city being compelled to take over such an enterprise and to conduct it, to be followed by a repetition of affairs as characterize the Staten Island Ferry system, where taxpayers have to delve in their pockets yearly to make up the deficiency of operative expenses.

We, therefore, earnestly urge upon your honorable body to give full consideration to the suggestions herein contained and to direct the building of the 7th and 8th av routes as laid out and mapped by said Rapid Transit Committee, which said maps, we believe, are in your possession, and to discontinue any proceedings instituted looking to the building of the said 4th av Borough of Brooklyn subway until at least the 7th and 8th av subways have been provided for.

Respectfully yours,

PHIL. G. BECKER, M.D., Chairman.
CHAS. A. SCHRAG,
GEORGE WENNER, M.D.,
JOHN J. PHEELAN,
JOHN WM. JONES, Secretary.

LAW COMMITTEE REPORTS.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED DURING THE YEAR BY THE PROPERTY OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE House and Real Estate Owners' Association has certainly been actively engaged during the past year, taking care of the interests of its members and fellow property owners. The following open letter, written by Charles H. Schnelle, the financial secretary and chairman of the Committee on Law and Legislation, to the members of the association, reviews the work accomplished:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Law and Legislation beg to submit the report of their work done in connection with the Legislature which adjourned April 23:

There were 2,308 bills introduced in the Assembly, and there were 1,393 bills introduced in the Senate, of which about one-third pertained to New York. Many of these never came to a vote. Nevertheless, your committee met weekly, examining these bills, the Chairman being requested to write to the various committees to either favor or oppose the bills, as circumstances required, in the interests of our Association. Hearings were arranged for, delegations from the Committee and the Locals attended these hearings at Albany, and are now continuing to do so before Mayor McClellan, as several bills are now awaiting his approval or rejection.

Following is a brief synopsis of the bills most interesting to our members:

The Senator Grady Fire Escape Bill. A hearing was granted us, and nine of our delegates attended and presented arguments which impressed the Senate Committee so that the bill was killed in the Senate.

The Senator Saxe Bill, introduced through Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy, which required the true consideration at which real estate was sold to be inserted in the deed, was carefully watched by our Committee. Thirteen of our delegates attended the hearing on this bill, and although Tax Commissioner Purdy and one of his experts appeared in favor of this bill, the arguments from our Association, assisted by Mr. Allan Robinson, of the Allied Interests, were so strong that this bill was killed in the Senate, as was also killed in the Assembly the similar bill introduced there by Assemblyman Bennett.

One of the most important bills to our members was the Licensed Engineers' Bill, introduced both in the Senate and Assembly. This bill was the same which was passed by both houses last year, but which was finally vetoed by Mayor McClellan. Your Committee labored diligently, by correspondence and personal work at Albany, to oppose this bill, and although the bill was amended several times we had the pleasure of hearing that it was killed in the Senate by a vote of 22 to 11.

We were not so fortunate with the Commission on Appeal Bill, as this died in the Senate. This was mostly on account of our delegates not being unanimous in what they really wanted, so that there was a certain lack of enthusiasm. Our Committee would recommend that the Tenement House Committee take this matter under careful consideration for the next Legislature.

Another bill which our Committee opposed, but which passed both houses, is the Senator Saxe Bill, which relates to the sale of real estate for taxes.

Another matter which will benefit us is the Senator Grady Tenement House Bill, which recently passed both houses. We had a delegation of six at Albany on this bill. It has resulted in several modifications in our favor.

Although our work with the Legislature is at an end, we have still work on hand before the Governor and the Mayor.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES H. SCHNELLE,
Chairman of Committee.

OLD BUILDING BEING RAZED.

The C. H. Southard Co. is wrecking the old Fleischmann bakery building on the northeast corner of Broadway and 10th st. Permit for the demolition of this structure was granted by the Bureau of Buildings the other day. It is an old-fashioned 4-sty building and was purchased by Grace Church. The plot is going to be planted with grass and left vacant until the congregation raises a sufficient fund to erect an office building. Part of this plot is Sailors' Snug Harbor leasehold, while the balance is owned in fee by the church. This holding, some years ago, was the property of the church.

According to tradition an old apple tree stood just to the north of this plot on the property now owned by the church, and when the owner saw the city surveyors coming up Broadway he stood with a gun and threatened to shoot the first man who trespassed on his land. This accounts for the bend in Broadway at this point. There is an apple tree on the lot at the present time, though not the original one. When the old one died the present one was planted to commemorate the spot.

AUDITING FIRM INCORPORATES.—Real estate as well as construction firms find it advisable every so often to have their books audited, and are, at times, at a loss to know what firm to employ. Naturally this is a very important step, because the majority of real estate concerns are handling the money belonging to their clients, and their accounts must be accurate. On this one point hinges all their collection business. The J. M. Adams Audit Co., of 1133 Broadway, formerly J. M. Adams & Co., established in 1898, do general accounting work, but make a specialty of auditing and systematizing books of real estate, building, engineering and machinery firms. Their aim has been to retain their clients, which they have succeeded in doing by their moderate charges, quick work and practical systems. The officers of the company are: J. M. Adams, president; Clark A. Nichols, vice-president, and F. R. Nichols, treasurer and secretary.

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

BARROW ST.—N. Brigham Hall & Son sold for the Barr estate 9 Barrow st, a 3-sty private dwelling, 19x49.6, to Frank Reynolds. Lashman & Goldsmith, 40 Wall st, were the attorneys.

Building Sold by Receiver.

PRINCE ST.—Carney M. Marro sold 21 Prince st, a 4-sty building with store, 20x73, for Achille Starace, receiver for P. Pati & Son, to Frank Verrastro.

Mercantile Structure Changes Hands.

21ST ST.—Tucker, Speyers & Co. sold for Henry Corn to an investor 22, 24, 26 and 28 West 21st st, a 12-sty mercantile building, 100x92. The reported price was $750,000. Title will be taken in about 90 days. The gross rental of the building is $77,000. The property will be mortgaged for $400,000. In May, 1907, the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. made a building loan of $475,000 at 6%. According to the plans filed the estimated cost of the structure was $300,000. Maynicke & Franke were the architects.

28TH ST.—Henry R. Dwight sold for William F. Havemeyer to John E. Olson 37 and 39 East 28th st, two 3-sty dwellings, 41.8x98.9. Mr. Olson will erect a 9-sty office building on the site from plans by F. C. Zobel. Arthur W. Saunders, representing the present seller, bought No. 39 in April, 1905, for $35,000, and in the following June acquired No. 37 for $40,000.

30TH ST.—Richard Collins sold for Robert B. Barnett the 3-sty dwelling at 323 East 30th st, 19.5x98.9.

34TH ST.—The estate of Paul Westphal sold its interest in the property at 320 and 322 West 34th st, a 4-sty and basement flat, 50x118.9, to a Mr. Brennan. This property was reported sold some time ago to C. J. Schehan as a site for a 12-sty bachelor apartment house, but Mr. Schehan never took title.

Perpetual Lease Sold.

50TH ST.—W. W. & T. M. Hall bought from Dr. Arthur Cutler the lease of the premises 18 and 20 East 50th st. This parcel is owned by the estate of Andrew J. Garven. There are several unique features in this sale. In the latter part of 1893 a lease for 21 years was recorded to start May 1, 1894. The terms included that taxes and other charges and $8,500 was to be paid by Dr. Cutler and Mr. Garven was to pay about $1,160 annually toward the taxes. The lease has an indefinite number of renewals on the same terms, making it virtually a perpetual lease. This property is located 293.10 feet east of 5th av, and is on a plot 56.2x100.5. The new lessees have again sublet the premises to Dr. Cutler for two years. At the expiration of that time the Messrs. Hall contemplate improving the property in the substantial manner that characterizes all their operations. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the lease.

9TH AV.—Bertha Hoefer, of Darien, Conn., sold 475 9th av, a 5-sty tenement with stores, 25x100. This holding was mortgaged on Dec. 20, 1907, to Louisa Kissling for $20,000 for 2 years at 6 per cent.

10TH AV.—Christ Schierloh sold for the Gallagher estate to Leopold Schlett the northeast cor of 10th av and 54th st, being a 6-sty building, 25x100. This is the first buyer of the building since it was built. Title will be taken July 2.

NORTH OF 59TH STREET.

MANHATTAN ST.—Charles M. Rosenthal bought from John Liddle the plot 41x150 on the south side of Manhattan st, 334.4 feet west of Broadway.

Estate Disposes of Dwelling.

61ST ST.—F. Zittel sold for the Ketterer estate 224 East 61st st, a 3-sty and basement dwelling, 20x50x100.5. The adjoining house, No. 226, sold in July, 1906, for $18,000. Title will be taken July 2.

West 72d Street Sale.

72D ST.—Pease & Elliman sold for the estate of Emma B. Hendricks 37 West 72d st, a 5-sty American basement dwelling, 22x102.2. The asking price was $100,000. Chas. A. Miller is the buyer. Title will be taken in about two months. Samuel Riker, Jr., was the attorney. This property was put up at auction by the executors in May, 1907, but was bid in for $71,500.

82D ST.—The Greene & Taylor Co. sold for Charles I. Berg 315 West 82d st, a 4-sty dwelling, 20x102.2. The buyer will occupy the house.

89TH ST.—Leon S. Altmayer sold for Herman Scheuer to a client 22 West 89th st, a modern 4-sty and basement brownstone private dwelling, 20x100.8. The purchaser will extensively alter the building and use the same for his own occupancy in the fall. The house is built to a depth of 58 feet. There are two vacant lots on the east of the premises just sold. On the southwest cor of Central Park West is the St. Urban, a 12-sty fireproof apartment house, 125.11x150.

97TH ST.—In part payment for the southeast cor of Madison av and 96th st, Joseph Ravitch gives 137.6x100, on the north side of 97th st, 156 ft. east of Madison av, upon which two 6-sty elevator apartment houses will be built.

108TH ST.—In part payment for the southeast cor of 5th av and 108th st, Cohen & Brandt give to Mr. Weinstein 330 to 334 East 108th st, three 6-sty flats, each on plot 37.6x100.11.

112TH ST.—Barnett & Co. sold for Charles Rabb to Dr. T. Riggio the 5-sty flat 304 West 112th st, 25x100.

133D ST.—George F. Picken sold for a Mr. McCormack the 3-sty dwelling 251 West 133d st, 16.8x100.

118TH ST.—Harry L. Rosen sold 64 West 118th st, a 5-sty double flat, 25x100. The seller acquired this property from Anton Antosch May 5, 1908, subject to a mortgage of $24,000. It was assessed at $26,000.

122D ST.—H. L. Sonand sold 508 and 510 West 122d st, a 6-sty elevator apartment house, 50x100.

153D ST.—In part payment for the southeast cor of 5th av and 108th st, Cohen & Brandt give to Mr. Weinstein 265 to 269 West 153d st, three 5-sty flats, each on plot 37.6x99.11.

AMSTERDAM AV.—Ferdinand Nagel sold for Henry Doscher 1773 Amsterdam av, a 5-sty 6-room double flat to a Mr. Henry Keithan.

BROADWAY.—Sheriff Thomas F. Foley bought from Charles M. Rosenthal the two 6-sty apartment houses 3145 and 3149 Broadway, 45x41.7x100, respectively, between 125th and 127th sts.

Philadelphia Society Sells.

BROADWAY.—T. W. Evans Museum and Institute Society, of Philadelphia, sold the block bounded by Broadway, West End av, 89th and 90th sts, with frontages of 201.5 ft. on Broadway and West End av, and 325 ft. on each st. The property, together with several other valuable parcels in Manhattan, was left to the museum by the will of W. T. Evans, in December last.

COLUMBUS AV.—M. H. Meyers and Gilbert Robbins sold for Josephine Sussman to the N. & Z. Realty Co., the 5-sty flat 926 Columbus av, 25x75, between 105th and 106th sts.

LEXINGTON AV.—Montgomery & Seitz sold for Mrs. Effie Nathan 816 Lexington av, a 3-sty dwelling, 19.6x80, to Miss Kutnow. The house is mortgaged for $14,500. Title will be taken July 2.

PARK AV.—Pease & Elliman sold for John M. Carrere, of the well known firm of architects, Carrere & Hastings, who are building the New York Public Library, the modern 5-sty American basement at the northeast cor of Park av and 65th st, 20x80, to a client for occupancy.

Purchases Handsome Residence.

5TH AV.—William Cruikshank's Sons sold for Joseph Hamershlag to William Sittenham the 6-sty dwelling at the southeast cor of 5th av and 88th st, 27x102.2. This house, which has been held at $450,000, was built by Hamilton M. Weed and was bought by Mr. Hamershlag under foreclosure several months ago for $347,478. The amount due on the judgment was $34,067.16, subject to taxes and five other mortgages aggregating $314,128.32. On the 87th st cor of the same block is the Henry Phipps mansion.

5TH AV.—Chas. I. Weinstein sold to Samuel Cohen and Julius W. Brandt the southeast cor of 5th av and 108th st, two 6-sty apartment houses, 100.11x84. The seller bought these houses in May, 1907, paying $90,000 for them.

7TH AV.—James K. Holly sold for a client to S. L. Pakas 2297 7th av, a 3-sty dwelling, adjoining the southeast cor of 135th st.

8TH AV.—Nathan & Zimmerman sold the two 5-sty flats, 2442 and 2444 8th av, southeast cor of 131st st, and 272 West 131st st, adjoining a 4-sty flat. The houses occupy a plot 49.11x100. The avenue houses were sold at voluntary auction to Samuel Block in December, 1906, for $97,600.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS.

150TH ST.—Henry Powell sold 473 West 150th st, a 2-sty dwelling, lot 25x98. Mr. Powell bought the parcel at a foreclosure sale last week and now sells it to the plaintiffs in the action, Thomas F. McAvoy and others, who secured the adjoining parcels, Nos. 465 to 471, the same day. The amount due on the judgment was $18,429.90; taxes, etc., $307.36. The known-down price was $25,500.

The same brokers have resold the property for Mr. Mahoney to a manufacturing concern, which will erect a 6-sty and basement factory building from plans by Thomas Lamb. The transaction involves over $300,000.

TAYLOR AV.—Henry A. Stadler, Jr., sold two 2-family houses on Taylor av, Westchester, to Henry Dennerly and Mrs. Catherine Frieba.

STOP LAND GRABBING.

An important work is now being carried on under the direction of Comptroller Metz which will effectually put a stop to land grabbing within the limits of the city. It consists of tracing down to date the history of old colonial roads and highways to regain much valuable property which has been seized and sold by land sharks.

The Court of Appeals has held that the fee to a road rests in the city if the road was used during the Dutch period, which ended in 1664. "We need only prove that a road was established during the period of Dutch occupation and that no legal waiver of the city's right was ever made," argued Robert Jordan, the Comptroller's investigator, "to regain many feet of valuable property which has been seized and fenced in by abutting real estate owners. In Brooklyn alone, there are more than a score of these roads which have been 'jumped' in different sections by suburbanites eager to extend their estates."

Comptroller Metz said on Tuesday that Mr. Jordan had already accomplished much in his work and would render part of his report within a week. "I regard this investigation an important one," observed the Comptroller, "since it will be the means of saving the city many thousands of dollars."

REAL ESTATE NOTES

The Brokers' Investing Co. loaned John E. Olson $65,000 on the property 37 and 39 East 28th st. This is in the form of a building loan.

The City of New York took title from John Robinson to the property 30 Chrystie st, a 6-sty tenement and store, 25x99.9, located 151 ft. south of Canal st. The consideration was $55,500.

I. T. Flato was appointed by Judge Charles L. Guy, of the Supreme Court, receiver of rents of the property 112 and 114 East 114th st, pending proceedings for the foreclosure of mortgages.

The Fluri Construction Co. secured a building loan of $100,000 from the Owners' Syndicate Co. on the property, 96.11x147.4x irregular, on the west side of Broadway, 133.3 ft. south of 181st st.

Adrian Iselin, Jr., and others, as executors, conveyed title to 17 West 38th st to Mary L. Barbey, for $170,000, the buyer giving back a purchase money mortgage for $145,000 for 5 years at 4½ per cent.

Alderman Samuel Marx was elected a member of the Auctioneers' Association last week. The membership of this association is limited. Mr. Marx, therefore, purchased the seat formerly owned by J. Barry Lounsberry, of the firm of Lounsberry & O'Connor.

The East Side office of Frederick Zittel, one of the oldest of the Manhattan real estate brokers, has been moved from 1026 3d av to 111 East 59th st, near Lexington av. Mr. Zittel's main office is at 266 Columbus av, above 72d st. The Washington Heights branch is located at 2453 Broadway, near 141st st.

Robert C. Ten Eyck has been appointed receiver of rents by Judge Guy, of the Supreme Court, of the property 313 and 315 Crimmins av, two 5-sty flats. This appointment is pending a suit brought by Louis Zuckerkandel against Max Helfstein and others to foreclose a third mortgage of $1,800. The prior mortgages amount to $31,000.

T. Emory Clocke, as attorney, loaned Amelia Steinmetz $4,000 on the property on the west side of Parker av, 118 feet west of Westchester av, 25x130, and Abe G. Michaels loaned Sadie Aaron $15,000 on the property known as lot 435, map of section A, Vyse estate, Bronx. Both these are building loans, and the properties are going to be improved.

The J. C. Lyons Building and Operating Co. are rapidly straightening out their recent difficulties. A judgment in foreclosure obtained against the 11-sty building, 236 and 238 5th av, owned by them had been vacated, the matter having been settled out of court. This building was only recently completed, but has never been tenanted.

It was stated that Bloomingdale Brothers, department store owners, purchased from the Lawyers Title Insurance Co. a mortgage for $100,000 on the Engineering Building, 114 to 118 Liberty st, extending through to 45 and 47 Cedar st, an 11-sty office structure. This is simply another evidence of the more liberal supply of mortgage money in the real estate field.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO USE BRAINS?—Do you know how to make your brains save your legs? Records are the seven-league boots of the intelligent real estate man, and a hundred possible transactions lurk in every copy of the Record and Guide. The number of contracts sold is enormous, and the wide-awake broker will follow up all property reported to be under contract. This the Record and Guide gives weekly.

REGISTER TITLES UNDER LITIGATION.

When Governor Hughes signed the Land Title Registration Bill on May 20, and it became Chapter 444 of the Laws of 1908, the question that was uppermost in the minds of those interested was: "How soon after Feb. 1, 1909, when the law becomes operative, will it be used by the investor, speculator and land owner?"

The secretary of the Legislation Committee of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, Mr. A. N. Gitterman, has suggested that the city register its titles to all property which is not in litigation or under condemnation. This would be the simplest method of clearing the side line disputes and other questions of difference which have caused the city a needless amount of unnecessary cost, labor and annoyance.

Senator John F. Cohalan, the original introducer of this bill in the Senate, and the ONE man who fought for its passage, valiantly defeating its opponents, when the passage of the bill seemed doubtful, is heartily in favor of this measure. He said: "This would be one of the best methods of introducing the system to the people in the cities who should be among the first to inaugurate and use a law that will be of benefit to the State as well as each individual citizen."

The necessary machinery to operate this law would then become adjusted through use on account of the great number of titles that would be handled in this connection, while the city would not put any of the departments to any additional expense. This movement should have the hearty co-operation of every public-spirited citizen, and should be brought to the attention of the future Aldermen in all cities of the first and second class where the greatest good would accrue to the municipality and its citizens. It is fortunate that a matter of this kind can be taken up by all political parties because no interests—moneyed or otherwise—would be harmed, but the city and its component parts benefited.

TENEMENT HOUSE ACT RETROACTIVE.

It has generally been assumed that the tenement house law passed in 1903 did not refer to alterations in tenements which were standing prior to that date. That this interpretation of the act is not in accordance with the views held by Justice Gerard in the Supreme Court is evidenced by his denial of an application made on Wednesday by Thomas Krekeler for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel Tenement House Commissioner Butler to approve of certain alterations in the 4-sty flat building at 523 East 15th st which would reduce the floor area in two bedrooms in each of the apartments in the building.

Counsel for Mr. Krekeler contended that the passage of the act referred to did not allude to alterations in existing tenements, but only to those constructed subsequent to its enactment. The Court ruled, however, that the law applies to old as well as to new tenements, and that "any other construction will permit the building of a room hardly large enough for the cage of a wild beast."

The ruling is important, and if sustained is likely to be far reaching in its effect.

CONDITION OF JEROME AVENUE.

The condition of Jerome av, between 163 and 193d sts, is arousing the indignation of residents and property owners in that vicinity. Recently the subject was discussed at a largely attended mass meeting held in the Masonic Temple on Washington av, near Tremont av, on which occasion ex-Assemblyman William Niles was the speaker. He pointed out that the avenue is in a condition so dangerous that travel is practically barred between the streets mentioned. Captain Baxter also emphatically denounced the imposition upon the community which he deems inexcusable. In part he said:

"Conditions along Jerome av are uncomfortable, and I don't think any city but New York would tolerate its condition. To see pipes bought two years ago lying in the street and as yet not in use is disgusting. Evidently they were purchased with a view to aid the iron manufacturers."

An effort is now being made to enlist the assistance of the authorities in expediting the work of improvement along that thoroughfare.

DON'T RUN THE RISK.

It is not an uncommon occurrence for property owners and speculators to act as their own conveyancers in realty transactions. In fact this practice even appears to be more general now than it was a dozen or more years ago, and while it may be attributed in the main to the inherent desire to save expense in matters which appear so simple, it is due no doubt as well to the aversion of the average buyer and seller toward the tiresome ordeal of a title closing.

However this may be, the person of limited legal experience who attempts to be his own lawyer in dealings of this nature runs great risk, and is sooner or later brought face to face with the result of his folly.

Most of the difficulties which arise through amateur conveyancing can be traced directly to the phraseology of the contract, therefore it is imperative that the real intent of the contracting parties be clearly and specifically stated therein.

If you are not an expert in such matters preclude the possibility of complications and financial loss by engaging the services of competent counsel.

MAKE YOUR BACK YARD ATTRACTIVE.—Nothing detracts more from the good appearance of a city dwelling property than an unkempt back yard, and although much has been done of late toward improving the areas and rear spaces in the tenement sections of New York, little attention seems to have been given to beautifying the spare land surrounding the homes of the people of means. In many instances the back yard is utilized purely and simply as a service yard and little thought is given to screening from view the ugly features that ash barrels, clothes lines, garbage boxes and similar receptacles present. Such unsightliness is unnecessary, moreover it is likely to interfere with the sale of your property, if not your neighbors.

WANT WOODEN PAVEMENT ON HOE AVENUE.—Many matters of importance were acted upon at the regular monthly meeting of the Vyse Estate Property Owners' Association held recently, chief among them being the matter of paving Hoe av. In this instance it was decided to request the Local Board to pave that thoroughfare with wooden blocks instead of asphalt. A recommendation was submitted by Chairman Harry Robitzek, of the Legislative Committee, approving Senate Bill No. 1131, which amends the Rapid Transit Act and makes it possible for the municipality to grant contracts for the construction and operation of underground roads for a period of 50 years. Before adjourning the association appointed a special committee to inquire into the reason for the heavy assessment for receiving basins at 172d st and West Farms road.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller make no expressed covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., October 9, 1907

GENTLEMEN: We are in receipt of your favor of the 5th inst., and do not hesitate to tell you that we are very much pleased so far with the careful examinations you have made of the water meter and the water pipe system throughout our premises.

In our opinion such a regular examination will be for the benefit of the consumers of water, especially so in large plants with extended pipe system. Very truly yours,

THE BLOCK & HIRSCH FUR CO., Fritz Kahn, Treasurer.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of Judgments the names alphabetically arranged and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summooed. (†) Signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column, but in list of Satisfied Judgments.
The Judgments filed against corporations, etc., will be found at the end of the list.

THE process of business recovery is slow, as it should be; but accounts agree that it is making steady progress. Manufacturing establishments all over the country are cautiously adding to their employees or increasing the number of days in which the machinery is operated. The resumption is most marked in those industries, the prices of whose product have been most sharply cut; and the consequence is that the resumption does not mean an immediate revival of prosperity.

Economy remains the order of the day all over the United States. There has been no general reduction of wages; but the business organization of the country has been tested and every possible source of waste and loss has been removed. Incompetent employes have been discharged, machinery has been overhauled and the general effectiveness of labor very much increased. All this will in the course of time improve the health of the business community; but while the process is going on it is useless to expect a sudden or considerable revival of activity. When manufacturing plants add to their forces and return to work on full time it means simply that an average demand for staple products is expected in the fall, and that is what will take place. If the existing crop outlook is fulfilled the farmers will be well off, without being plethoric, and their influence also will operate in favor of a slow well-founded recovery of business rather than in favor of a quick and unstable one. It really ought to take the business of the country several years to return to the volume of trade transacted during the early months of 1907. Only in this way can the capital be saved and the economies effected, which alone can justify a still greater expansion of industrial and commercial activity.

ONE of the title companies reports a gratifying development in the business of lending money on real estate. There is now more money being offered, particularly in small amounts, than there is demand for the money; and the consequences of this condition may be noticed in the weekly totals of recorded mortgages published by the Record and Guide. Ever since the panic the total amount of money loaned on real estate each week in 1908 has been smaller than in 1907, and in the aggregate this falling off has amounted to about 25 per cent. Last week, however, the total for 1908 showed an increase over the corresponding total for 1907. It is true that the increase in question must be traced largely to the recording of one large mortgage on the building at Broadway and Chambers street. With real estate as inactive as it is, and with the total number of weekly transactions smaller than the small totals of last year, it is not to be expected that throughout the summer as much money will be loaned on real estate as was loaned during the corresponding weeks of 1907 or 1906. But there is every prospect that during the fall and winter a substantial revival in the borrowing demand and an increase in the amount of money loaned will be observed. The Record and Guide has already ventured the prediction that during the real estate season of 1908-1909 a renewed speculative demand would set in for real estate in certain parts of Manhattan, and such a speculation could hardly be financed without liberal supplies of money. As a matter of fact, however, the increase in the amount of money loaned will probably be larger than any increase in the number of transactions recorded, because there is every prospect that money will be borrowed cheaper and more easily next winter than for several years past. Ever since the fall of 1905 the demand on the part of borrowers has been more insistent than the offerings made by lenders, the consequence being, of course that a great deal of money has been loaned at comparatively high rates of interest. When the situation is reversed, and when money becomes relatively plentiful, many borrowers will be able to renew their loans on better terms. This process has not begun as yet, partly because the loans in question will not begin to expire until next fall, and partly because money, although more plentiful, is still loaned at comparatively high rates of interest. A loan for which four per cent. would have been paid in the fall of 1904 or the spring of 1905 now brings 4½ per cent. and a loan for which 4½ per cent. would then have been paid now brings five per cent. Lenders will have to accept lower rates of interest before borrowers will be tempted freely into the market. But if, as the title company asserts, there is already a greater pressure to lend money than there is to borrow it, the result will inevitably be during the next few months a lowering of the average rate of interest

THE Everett House, on Union Square, will in the near future be overtaken by the same fate as the Fifth Avenue Hotel; when that hotel ceases to exist, there will remain only two or three important hotels south of Madison Square. The inability of these older establishments, both because of their locations and their equipment, to compete with the newer buildings further north has long been apparent; and the only question at the present time is the extent to which the process of replacement will be carried. Not so many years ago Madison Square was the centre of the hotel district. There fronted on the Square the Fifth Avenue, the St. James, the Albemarle, the Brunswick, the Hoffman House and the Bartholdi. All these establishments have gone out of business, except the last two, and it is probable that one of these will soon follow suit. Madison Square will be bounded by office and loft buildings, and will compete with Greeley Square for the distinction of being the most important uptown business centre. All this is obvious, but what is not so obvious is the fate of Broadway, and of the side streets near Broadway, between 26th and 34th streets. Only five years ago an important new hotel was constructed on this part of Broadway and one already in existence was greatly enlarged. About the same time many smaller residence hotels were built on the side streets in this neighborhood. But still later a totally different tendency has supervened. The still newer buildings, both on Broadway and on the side streets, are all of them planned for business purposes, and it is a well known fact that the older hotels in this region are obliged to struggle for continued existence. It would appear consequently that the whole neighborhood as far north as 34th street would soon be overrun by the northward march of the wholesale business, and that consequently it would not continue to be a good location either for theatres or hotels. But in this case appearances may be deceptive. One cannot predict with any confidence what the result will be of the establishment in this neighborhood of the Pennsylvania, Long Island and New Jersey trolley terminals; but it is a fair presumption that they will increase the patronage of the hotels, theatres and retail stores now situated south of 34th street. If such is the case the displacement of buildings devoted to the foregoing purposes will be checked and the wholesale trade instead of overrunning the whole region will be split by this wedge of shops, hotels, theatres and restaurants, and pushed both further east and further west. The wholesale trade cannot afford to pay such high rentals as can the better class of hotels, theatres and restaurants, and it can only take possession when the hotelkeepers and theatre managers have a good reason for getting out.

LAST WEEK the Record and Guide published an appeal of the West Side Taxpayers' Association to the Public Service Commission on behalf of improved means of transit for the West Side of the city. The Record and Guide fully sympathizes with the purpose of this appeal. The claims of this section for new subways are, in our opinion, second only to those of the upper East Side of Manhattan. It is scarcely worth while, however, to urge upon the Public Service Commission at the present time the claims of any one section. If the Commission in response to the appeal should revive the old Seventh and Eighth avenue route of the earlier Board, the construction of that route would be open to objections similar to those which we have been urging recently against the Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn or the Broadway-Lexington avenue subway in Manhattan. The city is not financially in a position to make any sufficient appropriations for subway construction. It was all very well to plan the immediate construction of new routes when it looked as if the Robinson bill would become a law, but the veto of that bill, together with the small borrowing power of the city, has effected a radical change in the situation. As long as the city cannot afford to spend more than a few millions on subways, the only thing to do is to postpone all subway construction until the Constitution is amended and the city is in a position to begin the construction of an adequate subway system. The one object connected with rapid transit which demands and justifies an immediate appropriation is that of the purchase of the Belmont tunnel to Long Island City, because by this means a great many people could be benefited within a few months by the appropriation of a sum which the city can afford. For the rest the only way to treat fairly the clashing interests of the various sections of the city is to treat them all alike. Fourth avenue in Brooklyn should not be favored at the expense of Manhattan, and arrangements should not be made for an East Side route in Manhattan which will interfere with the development of a comprehensive transit system. All these separate projects should be for the time being laid on the table, and the Commission should begin to prepare plans for a comprehensive subway system. The time for the hasty construction of any one route is passed, because such a policy interferes with the effectiveness of a comprehensive plan and because the time is not so very remote when such a comprehensive plan will, for the first time in the history of the city, become practicable. A year from next fall the Constitution will be amended so as to give the city a free hand in subway construction, and in the meantime the Commission should have enough to do in formulating plans for future subway construction adequate enough for the whole city.

HOW WAGES ARE BEING CUT.

Sir: Will you allow me to comment on the first two editorials in to-day's Record and Guide?

Your remark that wages have not been reduced reminds one of an ingenious discussion which appeared in a New York evening paper not long ago of the sign "No dogs allowed in the park." The writer was a logician of the deepest dye, and expressed curiosity as to what is the essence of this thing—whether animal, vegetable or mineral—"no dog," which was allowed in the park.

And so one wonders in talking about wages that are not earned, and, therefore, not paid, what basis you have for your statements that they are not reduced.

But we are living in a real world and not an imaginary one, and there are a few hard, cold facts that some of us bump up against that remind us how futile word-juggling is.

Wages in New York and all over the country are reduced. They are reduced, first, by increased output so that, under management, 50 cents an hour now is equivalent to 25 cents an hour two years ago, and, second, they are reduced in dollars and cents by certain employers,—generally new hands, small fry and unknown to fame—whom the unions haven't time to chase up,—perhaps they are only too glad to wink at them.

Nature has a way of curing every disease, and the "sick man," to use the apt phrase of a prominent building contractor in an interview on another page of the same number of your paper, is going to get his, though perhaps not in the way that the "System" thinks or hopes.

The "System" in the building trades, meaning that body of employers and workmen who, to foster the industry (heaven pity them!) on the one hand insist on paying the union scale, and on the other hand insist on receiving it, is like leaves in autumn or the bark of the Eucalyptus tree;—it is passing.

And that brings one to another symptom of the disorder, which is worth very careful consideration. You say:

"Still more important, however, than the ability of the workingman to refuse to make concessions has been the indisposition of capitalists to insist on concessions. The railroad companies and other large employing agencies have made no concerted and vigorous attempt to force on their employees a lower scale of wages. They have threatened to do so, and they have grumbled because they were unable to do so."

They have, indeed, been "afraid to raise the issue" for political reasons. They have been afraid of the "Big Stick." But what makes them afraid of the "Big Stick"? It is their conscience—not the conscience of morality but the conscience of expediency. The saying "Honesty is the best policy" is the truest thing you know, and the big corporations are in such a state of fear of the public on account of the pounding that is due them for their past sins, as for instance the way they have loaded the American nation with green goods in the shape of watered stock, that they don't dare make the move which is logical and demanded by Nature itself, viz.: to call for a sweeping reduction of wages.

And this makes the chance for the little fellow. He doesn't belong to any "System"—he hasn't sold any watered stock—he isn't afraid of the "Big Stick"—and he rushes out to the plum tree and plucks a few nice ripe juicy ones while the guilty trust tears its locks in impotent despair.

One wonders if the trust, too, is like the autumn leaves—doomed to wither and die!

It almost looks like it.

Wages are being cut in this town and all over the country in both of the ways described above—first, by an output astonishingly increased, and, second, in actual dollars and cents, as they should be.

But it is not the big boss that is doing it—not the trust; it is the fellow outside the "System."

Just one example is a certain trade in another city whose wage scale calls for 60 cents an hour, but whose members are working, for new bosses, on a sliding scale of 30 cents to 40 cents an hour according to the skill of the men. The officers of the union know about it full well, but they don't dare say a word, for, after all, a walking delegate is only one man. All the officers of the union together are not enough to cope physically with the gang on any sizable job, and when it comes to union politics in these days the many control rather than the few, and if the union authorities would kick up too much of a rumpus the body politic in that particular union would formally change the scale from 60 cents to the graduated scale of 30 to 40 cents, and then where would be your statement that wages are not reduced?

Mr. Editor: Nature still rules and Nature works for good, always. These things would not be if it were not that they ought to be and they must be, and "good times" will not come again until Nature has finished this job. Some of the present leaves may remain like the mummified plants in the hotel palm room, but they will be "counterfeit presentments" after all.

OLD BUILDER.

New York, June 13, 1908.

FOURTH AVENUE SUBWAY WOULD BE A FINANCIAL EMBARRASSMENT.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Dear Sir—As the owner of considerable suburban property, especially in the direction that would be enhanced by the building of the Fourth Avenue Subway through Brooklyn, I would be personally greatly benefited by the construction of such a line.

I want it thoroughly understood that I am in favor of the improvement of transit facilities in all the boroughs of the greater city, especially to the relief of congested districts, but the 4th av line as laid out is ahead of needs, and a road of the future.

Immediate relief is wanted on the East Side of Manhattan and in the Borough of the Bronx. If construction is started upon the 4th av route it will delay the work of progress in far more important directions for possibly a decade to come, and in the meantime would become a financial embarrassment, for it should be understood that the Greater New York has a multitude of needs and its resources should not be extravagantly used, for its bonded indebtedness has been not alone growing prodigiously but has been growing alarmingly, until now we are at the debt limit.

The immediate point of issue is—shall a subway be run to develop a new territory which is at the present time sparsely settled and would not pay operating expenses for a number of years, let alone the interest upon the cost of construction, or the building of an immediate, much needed relief line through the congested East Side of New York, affording needed facilities of relief to an already congested traffic in that section and in the Bronx? There are ample lines of traffic to Coney Island pleasure grounds which are to be served by the Fourth Avenue Subway.

There is another feature that should be taken into consideration. The cost of a subway through the proposed 4th av section would be very costly. It would incidentally benefit the owners of the farm lands along a considerable portion of the line, but an elevated structure representing only a small fraction of the outlay would really better serve the country traversed.

A careful study of the city's needs will unquestionably show that a line from the East Side through the Bronx would afford more relief, prove of more value to the city than the much-espoused Coney Island route. If the city had a large available balance to draw upon the latter route might also be considered, but with many more essential needs to be provided for in the future, our citizens should take great care about entering into extended and not immediately necessary contracts.

I doubt if the Public Service Commission has personal knowledge of the insuperable conditions prevailing on the great East Side of Manhattan and the Bronx. If they familiarized themselves with the brutal congestion and inhuman treatment accorded the public on those lines of transit, they would have given preference over all other routes to the prompt construction of a subway in that section. Suffering humanity demands instant relief from those brutal and immoral conditions.

The Commissioners' Lexington av proposed subway cannot afford relief and will not be built for many years; physical obstacles and legal entanglements prevent its speedy construction. Yours truly,

L. NAPOLEON LEVY.

United Real Estate Owners Answer Adverse Criticism — The Decision of Justice Gerard.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Dear Sir—Mr. Justice Gerard, of the Supreme Court, rendered a decision a few days ago, construing certain sections of the Tenement House Law, which must be of vital importance to thousands of real estate owners in our city, and which will be far-reaching in its consequences if the Tenement House Commissioner applies the interpretation adopted by the Court to other cases of a similar nature.

The decision was rendered in connection with an application made by Thomas Krekeler, for a peremptory writ of mandamus, to compel the Tenement House Commissioner to approve certain plans now on file in his office, providing for certain alterations to be made in a tenement house owned by the petitioner and erected prior to April 10, 1901. The newspapers have given some prominence to the decision under headings such as: "Tenement rooms not animal cages," and have laid particular stress upon the sentence in the opinion of Mr. Justice Gerard, which reads: "Any other construction will permit the building of a room hardly large enough for the cage of a wild beast."

In view of the fact that I, as one of the members of the Board of Counsel of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations of the City of New York, had the honor to appear in Court as counsel for the petitioner, and because our associations consist of several thousand taxpayers, who take a pride in keeping their houses in the best sanitary condition, and who truly believe in true tenement house reform, I believe it my duty to say a few words in reference to said decision, so that any false impressions that may have been created may be removed.

It is true that the plans on file propose to slightly diminish the floor area of the two rooms on each floor wherein the alterations are to be made; but the fact still remains that each room as proposed to be altered would contain at least 400 cubic feet of air space, as provided for by Section 112 of the Tenement House Act. It was my contention upon the argument that this section is the only one in the law which could properly be invoked by the Tenement House Commissioner, and that neither the Tenement House Commissioner nor the Court should interfere with the standard established by the Legislature.

Justice Gerard distinctly states in his opinion that the alterations proposed would undoubtedly increase the light and ventilation of the two rooms, and further: "In this case the increase of light and ventilation by the proposed alteration is so apparent, that a refusal to approve would almost amount to an abuse of discretion." The learned Justice, however, decides that Section 5, of the Tenement House Law, which is found in Chapter 179 of the Laws of 1903, makes Section 70 of the law applicable to the building in question, and that therefore under Section 70 every room in an existing tenement house where alterations are made must have at least 70 square feet of floor area.

Section 5 says: "No tenement house shall at any time be altered so as to be in violation of any provision of this Act." My contention upon the argument was that this section meant not that all provisions of the Tenement House Law must be complied with where alterations are being made in an existing tenement house, but that all those provisions of the law are applicable which refer to the particular house in question; namely, if a building was erected prior to April 10, 1901, the day the Tenement House Law went into effect, the provisions in reference to existing tenement houses apply. If the building in question was erected after April 10, 1901, the provisions referring specifically to "houses hereafter erected" must be complied with.

Section 70 of the law states specifically that its provisions apply only to houses hereafter erected.

Because of a decision in a similar case made by Mr. Justice Greenbaum in 1905, sustaining the Tenement House Commissioner, I took the liberty to address a letter to Mr. Lawrence Veiller, who might be called "The Father of the Tenement House Law," and who was the Deputy Tenement House Commissioner under Mr. De Forest at the time the law went into effect and for a number of years thereafter, and whom, I think we will all agree, has a more profound knowledge of the Tenement House Law, and is more conversant with tenement house conditions in the City of New York, than any other man. Mr. Veiller was the gentleman who drafted this very section in question.

In my letter to Mr. Veiller I requested an expression of opinion as to the intention of Mr. De Forest and himself in presenting this very section to the Legislature for enactment. Mr. Veiller, in a lengthy communication, and giving his reasons in most elaborate detail, specifically stated that it was never his intention in preparing Section 5 to make Section 70 and all the sections in the same chapter as Section 70 applicable to cases where alterations were being made in an existing tenement house. He says: "Such a contention does violence to the law itself, and to the intent of those framing it. If sustained, it would work irreparable injury to property owners, and would act as a complete estoppel to the improvement of the thousands of old tenement houses in this city whose improvement is so greatly needed. There is nothing in the language of Section 5 of the act to warrant such a construction. * * * It bears every evidence of having been drawn carefully and with precision and exactitude. Where the framers of it have meant to say a thing they have said it in plain and unmistakable language," and further: "Had the framers of the Tenement House Act intended by the provisions of Section 5 to make all the provisions of the act applicable to any house that might have been altered, it would not have been necessary to have gone to the trouble of so carefully classifying the various provisions of the act, and erecting the separate titles under each of the important chapters." He further says that a consideration of the act in detail, reveals the fact that careful provision is made in the law in numerous places for the contingency of an existing building being altered at some subsequent time, and providing in close detail for the conditions under which said alterations shall be made, and he then cites numerous sections to sustain his contention.

This letter of Mr. Veiller was submitted to Mr. Justice Gerard for his consideration in connection with my brief on behalf of the petitioner.

To give only one illustration, and show the peculiar results that must follow if the decision of Mr. Justice Gerard is sustained by the higher Courts: Section 18 of the law provides that in houses hereafter erected the stairs in the public halls must be constructed of iron or stone with iron or stone treads, etc. Suppose a fire occurs in a tenement house erected prior to April 10, 1901, which has wooden stairs, wooden floors in the public halls, common lath and plaster partitions enclosing said halls on each story, and the stairs leading from the fourth to the fifth story are so burned that new stairs have to be constructed. Under the decision of Mr. Justice Gerard, and the former decision of Mr. Justice Greenbaum, the owner would not be allowed to restore the wooden stairs between the fourth and fifth stories, but would be compelled to construct one flight of iron or stone stairs with iron or stone treads with the beams on one floor of iron with fireproof filling, and to surround these stairs on the fourth and fifth floors with brick walls separating the public halls from the apartments. On all of the stories below the original wooden stairs, wooden floors and stud partitions of lath and plaster would still remain. Mr. Veiller says in his letter that "such a situation would, of course, be ridiculous and unwarranted, but the owner would be compelled to do this, or have his house remain unoccupied, if the opinion of Judge Greenbaum were to be followed."

There is no question but that if Section 5 makes Section 70 applicable, Section 5 makes Section 18 applicable.

I think that a calm and dispassionate reading of the facts which I have enumerated briefly will convince the readers of your newspaper that the United Real Estate Owners' Associations were fully justified in desiring to obtain from the Supreme Court a correct interpretation of Section 5, and that it never was and never has been their desire to provide for the thousands of tenants in our city, whose well being means the well being of the property owners, rooms in tenement houses which could be called "animal cages."

Mr. Justice Bronson in Waller vs. Harris, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 555 at page 561 says that, under our system of government, the Courts cannot "correct what they may deem either excesses or omissions in Legislation," and the Court of Appeals, the highest Court of our State, has in numerous instances said that the Courts cannot correct supposed defects in the law.

From time immemorial, the Courts, under our system of government, have said that it is their peculiar function to interpret the laws as made by the Legislature, but not to make them; and they refuse to assume Legislative powers unto themselves, which in fact are denied to them by the constitutions under which we live.

If the Legislature thinks that 400 cubic feet of air space in a room is not sufficient for every adult, then the Legislature might amend the law; but our contention is that the Legislature has fixed the standard at 400 cubic feet, and that the Legislature alone can change that standard; and that the power to change the law should not be exercised by the Tenement House Commissioner.

The Tenement House Law is mandatory in its provisions, and this is its distinctive feature, and I respectfully submit that the Tenement House Commissioner is bound by the mandate of the Legislature in the same way as the individual property owner.

With deference to the opinion of the learned Court, and expressing a high personal esteem for the Justices who rendered the two aforesaid opinions, I cannot help but express my firm belief that Section 5 should have been judicially interpreted differently. Respectfully yours,

IRA J. ETTINGER.

OBSERVATIONS IN MANY CITIES.

NEW YORK CONTRACTORS VISIT WEST AND SOUTH, AND COMMENT UPON CONDITIONS FROM CONSTRUCTION STANDPOINT.

CONSTRUCTION WORK is at a low ebb in San Francisco, according to a representative of the Whitney-Steen Company, 135 Broadway, who returned recently after visiting twenty-two States in the Middle West and on the Pacific slope. Already the new office buildings provide more space than the demand warrants, and the outlook is discouraging for big contractors.

"I noted several instances where work had been suspended on large structures," said the representative of the company. "The framework was up in most of them, but there was no apparent effort being made to complete them. As far as I could learn in the time I spent in San Francisco, there was but one general contract of any importance that was on the market for estimates. Real estate conditions appear to be unsettled. The decision of many wealthy residents to rebuild their homes in other sections than at Nob Hill and the exodus of many people to other cities have been largely responsible for this. Moreover, the new structures completed provide more floor space than there was before the fire. Many new offices are to let, with the demand inactive. Representatives of a number of big outside concerns requiring office space informed me that the San Francisco force was being reduced. Contracts have been accepted at an extremely low profit. There had been a boom in business after the destruction of the city owing to the heavy payments of insurance money. Most of this has been spent and the securing of loans is not easy.

ACTIVITY IN SEATTLE.

"In Seattle conditions are much more encouraging and building operations are quite active, probably more so than in any other city that I visited. Tacoma presents the opposite state, contractors having poor prospects there. The use of reinforced concrete is decreasing in Seattle. On the other hand, reinforced concrete construction is favored in Los Angeles, where there are fine opportunities for construction work, but where there are few loans available for large undertakings."

BUILDING MATERIAL PRICES.

When asked about the prices of building material in the Pacific States, he said:

"It is safe to say that cement is about fifty per cent. higher. Practically all of the cement for high class work is imported from Germany and Japan. A great deal of Japanese is used, the selling price being from $2.50 to $3 per barrel. For the average work the product of cement plants in the West is used. The Germans and Japanese can compete successfully against the Eastern manufacturers of the best cement, the cheapness of transportation by water making the transportation of cement across the continent practically prohibitive. Nearly all kinds of building material are higher. Prices are not as steady as in the East. This is also true of the Middle West, where, in such cities as Denver, cement has been sold as low as 90 cents per barrel."

The Whitney-Steen Company sends a representative through the sections of the country referred to every year to attend to work in progress and look over the field. The cities visited this year were Cincinnati, Chicago and Kansas City, where conditions were not very encouraging; Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake, Butte, Helena, Spokane and Seattle and the coast cities, Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles and San Diego.

MR. TURNER FINDS SOUTH BUSY.

Mr. H. C. Turner, president of the Turner Construction Co., 11 Broadway, has returned after a trip to Jacksonville, Fla., where the company is erecting several large warehouses. Mr. Turner stopped at Atlanta, Ga., and other cities in the South. He reports that prospects for next year are bright and that building operations are active in many places. Jacksonville is a particularly busy centre.

—The Bronx Church House, at Fulton av and 171st st, during the months it has been in service, has well fulfilled the builders' anticipations, benevolent and architectural. It represents the activities of various churches and societies. Small churches are thus enabled to have the use of one of the finest houses of the sort in the city for the meetings of the societies which they foster. In the basement are bowling alleys, on the main floor an auditorium, and the five upper floors have club and class rooms, a gymnasium and a library. One of the features of the building is the electrically operated ventilating system which forces fresh air into the rooms and removes the vitiated air.

FORMER LIEUT-GOVERNOR WOODRUFF'S HOUSE.

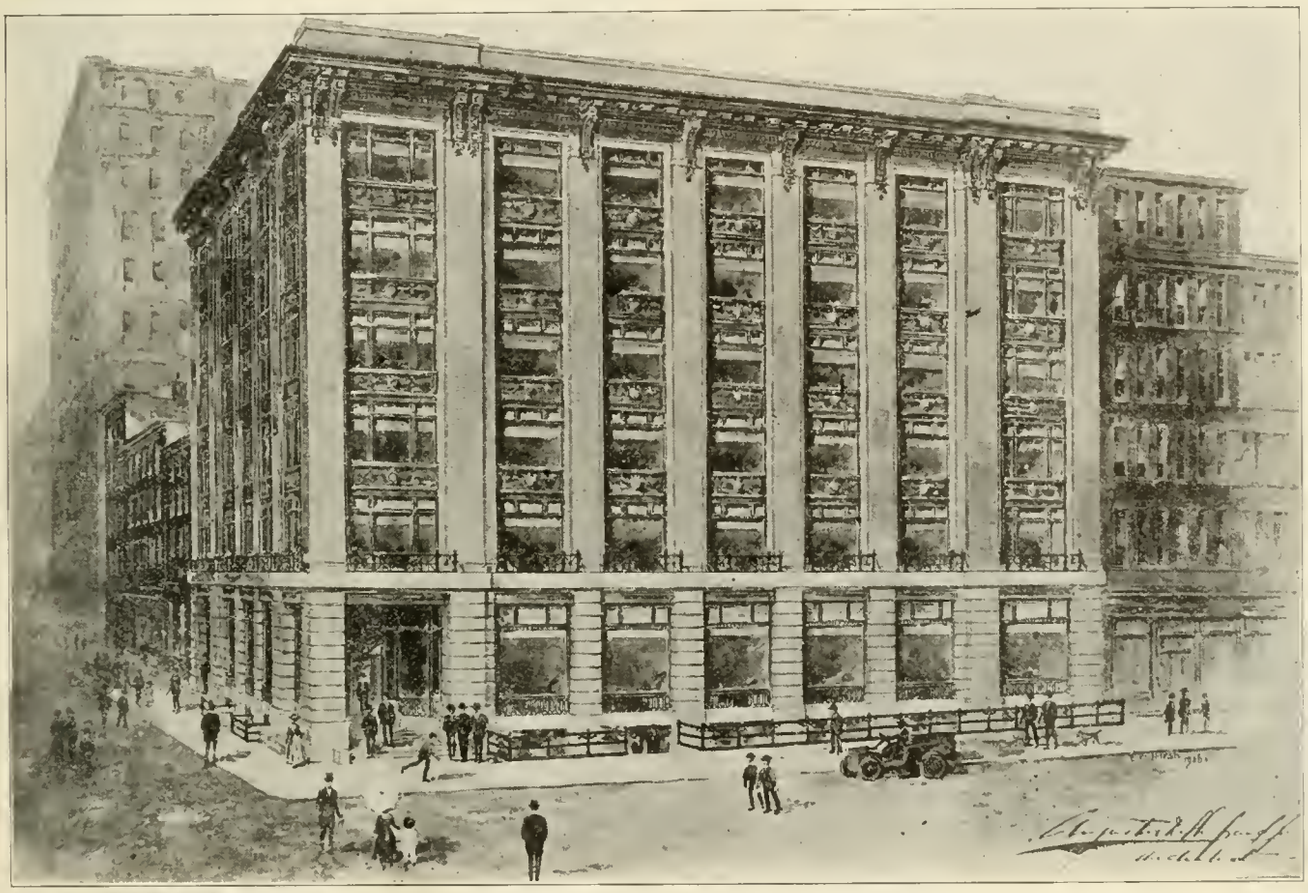
Contracts have been awarded and work will be started at once on the new $30,000 residence of Hon. Timothy L. Woodruff at Garden City Estates, L. I. It is a 3-sty house, 50x120 ft., with shingle exterior, Grecian Doric columns and gambrel roof give it a low effect. Augustus N. Allen, of 567 5th av, Manhattan, is the architect.

The first floor is laid out with a large living-room and sun parlor as the main feature. The wainscoting and ceiling are beaded. There are also on this floor an entrance hall, dining-room, kitchen, butler's pantry, etc. The second floor is arranged with a sitting-room, four bedrooms and four baths. On the third floor are two guest rooms and five servants' rooms.

The house will stand on a plot 200x800 ft., which will be laid out with a formal garden, pergolas, tennis courts, etc. Albert Hughes, 7 Pine st, Manhattan, has the general contract. Hot water heating system and plumbing will be done by Jos. F. Gross & Co., of 151 West 31st st, Manhattan, and the electric wiring by Hatzel & Buehler, 571 5th av, Manhattan.

DESIGN FOR FORMER LIEUT.-GOVERNOR WOODRUFF'S HOUSE AT GARDEN CITY ESTATES.
Augustus N. Allen, Architect.

THE ARCHITECT
WHAT HE HAS DONE RECENTLY AND WHY HE DID IT.



THE LATEST DOWNTOWN IMPROVEMENT.

OPERATIONS have been commenced by the Golden Hill Building Company (Henry S. Thompson, president, No. 76 William st) for the new 6-sty fireproof office building, 90x123 ft., to be situated at the northwest corner of William and John sts, the cost of which is estimated in the neighborhood of $250,000. There will be a corner entrance at both John and William sts, and a large main entrance to the upper offices of the building in John st.

THE MATERIALS.

The materials to be employed in the exterior, as taken from the architects' drawings, will embrace a base and belt course of Indiana limestone, light buff brick, with ornamental iron finished in green, and a deep copper cornice. The frame of the building will be of steel construction,—steel girders, beams and columns, with floors of hollow tile. The heating will be by steam and electricity, which will be taken from the street supply. There will be three electric elevators. Toilet rooms on each floor. The first story will have a 17-foot ceiling in the clear, the second story 12 feet, and the four upper floors 11-foot ceilings. The first story, which has already been leased to the Globe & Rutgers, American and Spring Garden Ins. Co's., will contain 8,580 square feet of office space, and each of the upper five floors will contain 8,900 square feet, or a total of 53,080 square-feet. The basement will also contain 4,500 square feet of rentable space.

There will be but little excavating necessary to be done. The work is to be entirely completed by May 1, 1909. The Whitney-Steen Co., of No. 135 Broadway, has the general contract. A. D. Shepard, Jr., No. 36 East 23d st, is the architect.

"SKYSCRAPER SINKING IN SAND."

Mr. T. Kennard Thomson, M. Am. Soc. C. E., consulting engineer at 50 Church st, said, in reference to the above-quoted headline in a daily journal, that it alluded to the new 20-sty Silversmith Building at 15-19 Maiden lane:

"It is well known that a building founded on sand, or almost any material other than good hardpan or bed rock, will settle more or less according to the nature of the material.

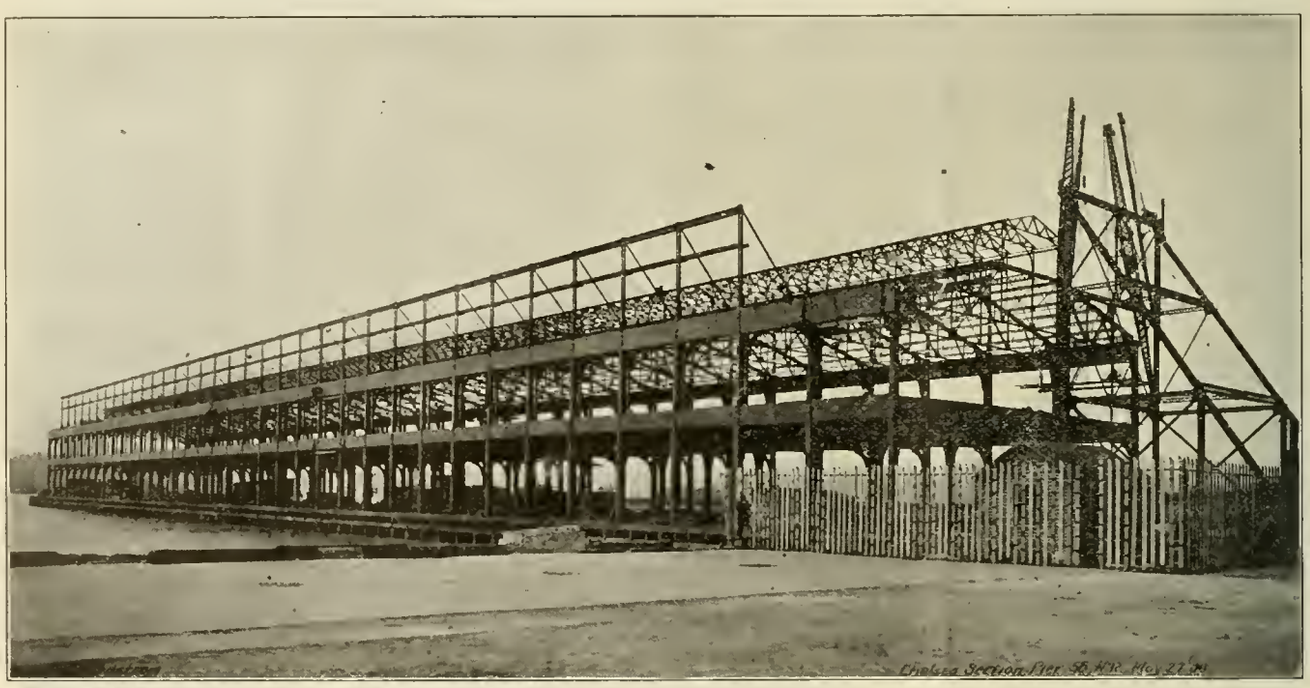
"When these buildings are not carried down by means of pneumatic caissons to a good hard base they are generally carried down to water-line, it not being safe to make an open excavation below the water-line. This being the case, the foundation is more or less stirred up before the concrete is placed and is therefore not in so good condition by any means as if the excavation had simply been a pit in dry compressed sand.

"Again, all the material in lower New York is what is called 'New York Quicksand,' that is, everything above the hardpan. If these buildings founded on this material were in the open country, or had a vacant lot on each side, they might possibly settle uniformly without doing any damage, but as every inch in New York is valuable the new buildings are usually built right against the adjoining buildings and of course every inch of settlement causes more and more damage.

"So far the result has only been that the owners of the new building have been obliged to patch up the old ones. It is however, only a question of time before a tunnel under or near one of these buildings will draw a considerable quantity of the quicksand before the leak is noticed and then a disastrous collapse will occur. At present our subways are near the surface, but sooner or later the principal railways will have tunnels from Jersey City to Brooklyn which will have to be at a lower level than the uptown subways, and as both may be double deck they will be far below the water-line, and any serious leak during the construction at such a great depth would be a very dangerous matter."

As Mr. Thomson stated in an interview he gave us several weeks ago, wooden piles would also be unsafe on account of the inevitable lowering of the water level. In fact he cited a case in point where the water level around the piles was reduced about 30 feet by tunnel construction, leaving piles in a good position to rot rapidly.

If the owners would consider these matters and also consider the cost of repairs to the adjoining property they would be more apt to allow the engineers and architects to insist upon good foundation in the first place.



Mr. Francis H. Kimball was the first architect to insist upon pneumatic caissons for skyscrapers in New York when he built the Manhattan Life Building, and though he was much ridiculed at the time for spending so much money to secure the only safe foundation, his foresight and wisdom has since been pretty generally conceded.

RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE BUILDER.

FIRST NEW PIER SHED WITH CHELSEA SECTION.

The illustration below shows the framework of the superstructure of pier No. 56, of the municipal improvements in progress below 23d st, North River, which will be the first pier of the seven to be completed. Snare & Triest have the contract for the superstructures to be erected on Nos. 54, 56, 60, 61 and 62, and R. & H. Staats are building the superstructures on Nos. 58 and 59. As the latter concern is using a method of construction quite different to that adopted by the former, the progress of the operations of both companies is being watched with interest.

The illustration shows the number of bays, the character of roof, and the huge traveling crane at the shore-end of the pier. This crane, provided with two booms, has a lifting capacity of about 25 tons, although the heaviest pieces of the structural work, the girders, are only 12 tons. The heaviest columns are 10 tons. The material, which was supplied for Pier No. 56 by the Hay Foundry & Iron Works, of Newark, N. J., is shipped alongside of the scene of operations on lighters. The pier which is almost completed is 825 feet long, with a shed 785 feet long. The width is 100 feet and the shed about 95 feet, leaving several feet on either side for moorings, etc. A bulkhead 760 feet long and 55 feet wide will connect the two piers, Nos. 54 and 56, and will have an ornamental front on the street side. In the pier shown in the illustration there are 39 20-foot bays on each side. The superstructure required about 2,800 tons of structural material. The bulkhead at this place will require about 1,400 tons. The floor is of concrete and the second deck will have a covering of asphalt one-half an inch thick over five and a half inches of concrete.

SUPERSTRUCTURE OF NEW PIER NO. 56. Snare & Triest, Builders.

The traveling crane used by Snare & Triest is now in operation on Pier No. 60, on which about one-third of the structural material is in place. The sheds on piers 60 and 61 will be 760 feet long and the width of the piers 125 feet. Each will have 38 20-foot bays. No. 62 will be 730 feet long, but only 60 feet wide. It will have 37 bays, the distance between the columns varying from 17 to 21.6 feet. The bulkhead along the shore ends of these three piers will be about 876 feet long and 60 feet wide. About 11,000 tons of material will be required for the superstructures of the three piers and the bulkhead. For these piers Snare & Triest are sub-contractors. As Pier No. 56 was needed as soon as possible for one of the big ocean lines, work was rushed on it and operations have not been started yet on No. 54.

AN ASCENT INTO THE UPPER.

By TWO CONSTRUCTORS.

FORTY-SEVEN stories above the street is easily written and, with the elevator running to the fortieth story, easily reached, even for two-hundred-pounders. True, one has to keep his nerves steady and his grasp firm on the sides of the ladder wh nethey run up the outside of the steelwork or up above, but Hikus and Scribus went up Saturday personally conducted by their friend, Big Mike Briordy, the erecting foreman for Post & McCord.

Mike is a six-footer, and built like the tower he has almost finished, but H. and S. are of aldermanic form, though used to climbing around buildings. They chose a day when the workers were to quit at noon, so as not to occupy the entire floor space, and just about that time they ascended. The tower did not tip.

Scribus had been up before to the 34th story or so, but had ambitions, and Hikus, who walks like a sailor, but commands like a captain of an ocean liner, thought it unwise to let him go around alone. Big Mike kept close tabs on them both, lest they might pinch a forge, a keg of rivets or a box of tools.

Down below in the street it was hotter than the hinges of a furnace, but above it was blowing hard enough to make caution essential. Before going aloft, they stopped on the last concrete filled floor to look around; away down to Rockaway, away up to Yonkers, across the Jersey hills, over the lots of Astoria and out on to receding Long Island, in the far perspective. A monotonous mass of roofs below, spots of green in the parks, the Singer tower downtown, the Times uptown. Below them skyscrapers like the Flatiron, the Waldorf and the Belmont were as huts. The dome of Dr. Parkhurst's Church looked like a variegated floor-mat. Diana of the Tower had lost her shape. The Mauretania seemed a toy boat moored to her dock, yet she would have towered above us had she been on end.

Scribus had his little photo box along, and we snapped each other at close range, and bluffs were interchanged as we whetted up our courage. When we ascended we met some of the erector boys, a little belated, coming down, and Blondy the Brave was caught (and snapped) black handed, on a ladder midway between floors lugging down a pneumatic riveter almost as long as himself.

Up where the rafters sloped inward, the structural work became more concentrated and more intensely interesting. The "lantern" above began to show in its roundness. Scribus balked here for lack of breath and nerve. Hikus and Mike considerately left him to warm his chilled feet at a forge still hot enough to bring him back to activity and went farther aloft in the interest of a higher state of mental development.

We did not want to tax too far the patience of our accommodating friend who ran the elevator, and so soon descended, stopping to just see and snap the big trusses on the observatory floor. These are monstrous and their setting was a work of great skill. There are eight, two to each side. A fierce wind blew up while they were setting one section, and Mike said it was a perilous time for a while, and that some of the boys had close calls.

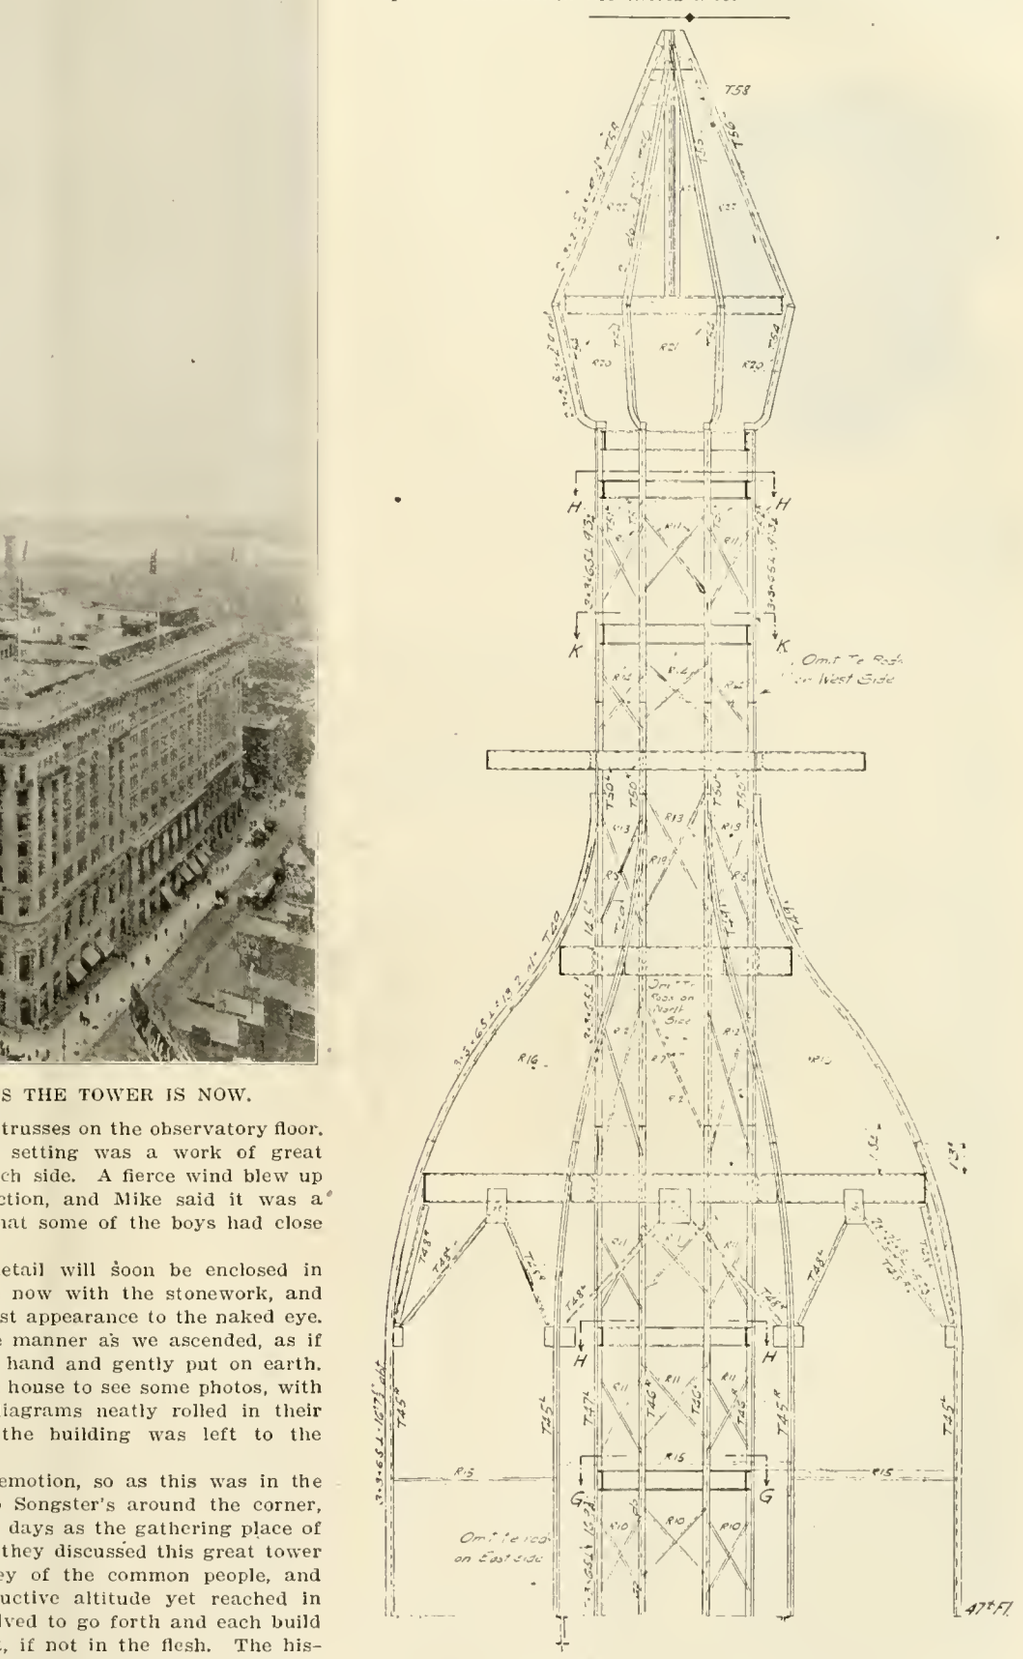
It's too bad this particular detail will soon be enclosed in masonry, but they are up there now with the stonework, and we were just in time to see its last appearance to the naked eye.

So down we came in the same manner as we ascended, as if we were being taken by a giant hand and gently put on earth. We stopped a moment in the tool house to see some photos, with all around us the voluminous diagrams neatly rolled in their racks, and then good-by and the building was left to the watchman.



Hikus seemed overcome with emotion, so as this was in the zone of Scribus, he took him to Songster's around the corner, famed in old Academy of Design days as the gathering place of artists and architects, and there they discussed this great tower built incidentally with the money of the common people, and representing the greatest constructive altitude yet reached in the country, and each of us resolved to go forth and each build to a higher altitude in the spirit, if not in the flesh. The historical accuracy of this visit of these two constructors is hereby vouched for and is passed on for the benefit of future generations of such.

THE FIRE HAZARD IN A CLOTHING FACTORY.

The inspection of a 7-sty and basement clothing factory in this city, of fire-resisting construction, and equipped with sprinklers, resulted in criticisms and recommendations to the Board of Underwriters that are important to those who contemplate erecting factories or warehouses.

Flat hoops on gravity tank rusted; fire shutters not standard; automatic sprinklers obstructed by shelves and tables. The gravity tank, constituting a very important water supply, care should be taken to keep same in perfect condition. Flat hoops are subject to corrosion and therefore should be replaced by ones of round iron, as the small contact point and large painted surface make them more desirable. The recent examples of improperly protected windows sufficiently explain the necessity of the standard shutter. Sprinkler equipments cannot be expected to do their best under unfavorable conditions; the obstruction of the distribution of water means poor protection and in many cases it has been this fault that has permitted a fire to get beyond the control of the equipment.

Sprinklers seem to need more room for their spray than business can afford to give in some cases. Where tables obstruct ceiling sprinklers, the underwriters recommend that sprinklers be placed underneath the tables also.

Post & McCord, Contractors for Steel Erection.

The structural steelwork of a building is its skeleton, and erecting diagrams are valuable, since they eliminate the pictorial and give facts only. The illustration accompanying is from "Sheet of E 32," made by Messrs Post & McCord and reproduced through the courtesy of Mr. Andrew Post, of the upper portion of the Metropolitan Life Tower, as extended to a greater heighth than originally designed. Though our reproduction has reduced figured dimensions somewhat, the general construction, bracing and levels are shown. The fabricated section used for a lantern, and running somewhat fifteen feet above the point of the last rafters, will form an efficient distributor for any static electrical currents which might otherwise cause trouble up in the clouds.

BUILDING LOANS AND HOW TO GET THEM

By G. RICHARD DAVIS

A GENERAL definition of a building loan might be that it is a loan secured by bond and mortgage on a piece of vacant property for the purpose of giving to the owner of that property the necessary financial accommodation to assist him in the erection of the building upon his land.

It may be well for me to draw a distinction between building loans as made in New York City and elsewhere. Partly owing to the difference in the laws in other States regarding mechanics' liens, building loans are made in a different manner in other large cities than they are in New York. Speculative building, such as we understand it in this city, is hardly known outside of it. Buildings are, of course, put up by speculators, but they do not do the actual building work, as our speculators do here, but let a contract for the construction of the building to a general building contractor for a fixed sum. If they want to obtain a building loan they file their contract with a building-loan company, which contract states specifically the exact cost of the building, and the building-loan company agrees to loan to them, let us say, 60 per cent. of the cost of the building. As the speculator or owner of the building makes payments to this contractor on account of the contract price, as the work progresses, he can go to his building-loan company and obtain 60 per cent. of the amount he has advanced, upon showing a receipt from the contractor for the payments and a release from the contractor of his lien; the lien laws in many other States are such as to make the amount due a contractor during the progress of the building a prior lien to every indebtedness of the property, whether there is a mortgage or not, except the city's claim for taxes or assessments.

G. RICHARD DAVIS.

In other words, the mortgagee dare not advance any money on the building until he knows that there are no liens against it; and to protect himself he obtains releases in the form of affidavits from the owner and the contractor and sub-contractor, if any, that there is no money due or unpaid them on the building. These laws practically insure to the contractors a receipt of their money, whereas in New York State the lien laws are very different, and no mechanic's lien takes prior claim to a mortgage unless it is recorded before the mortgage is recorded, or before advances secured by the mortgage are made.

SPECULATIVE BUILDING AND CONTRACT BUILDING, therefore, are distinct and different branches of the building industry, and New York City and its suburbs seem to have a monopoly of the speculative builder, as we know him. Whereas the contracting builder puts up the house with money furnished to him by the speculator or the owner, the speculative builder not only builds the house but borrows the money on his own name and credit to build it with. The building contractor is primarily and only a builder and not a financier as well. His business is to know all about construction, materials, where and how to purchase them, and their relative cost, value and usefulness. The speculative builder must or should know all of these things and in addition be a financier, able to borrow money and to use his credit along more or less extensive lines to swing his various operations.

Building loans on land in New York City are generally made for one year at 6 per cent. interest secured by a mortgage on the property, known as a building-loan mortgage, which has varied clauses, differing materially from other mortgages, and accompanied by the necessary bond, and also a building loan agreement. It is necessary to record this building loan contract as well as the mortgage. The loan is generally made in several or many different advances as the work upon the building progresses, and the building loan contract recites these various stages at which money is due.

WAYS OF FINANCING BUILDING OPERATIONS.

There are several ways in which building operations are financed in this city. The first way is where the land is owned by an operator and sold by him to a builder at a more or less material profit. To induce the builder to pay this profit, a loan is made to him liberal enough to admit very often of a builder with little or no capital of carrying through a substantial operation. The methods of making this loan are similar to the next character of loan which I will describe, differing only in its liberality and in the fact that when on completion, and a permanent loan is obtained, the operator is usually willing to take a second mortgage for the amount remaining due him if the new loan is insufficient to pay his building loan mortgage claim.

The amount of loan made by an operator and the terms are, therefore, governed materially by the profit he makes on the sale of his land, and cannot be compared to the loans made by building loan companies to builders who buy and own the land before they make any arrangements for the loan, as in the latter case the fee for such loans is small compared with an operator's profit and the amount of loan is figured on a different basis entirely.

Another way in which a building operation is financed is as follows: Taking a 50-ft. x 100-ft. plot as typical, let us assume that instead of belonging to an operator it belongs to a builder and he desires to improve it with a 6-sty tenement house. He has previously purchased the land for $30,000. He paid $5,000 cash and gave back to the estate he bought it from a purchase money mortgage for $25,000. He needs money to assist him in building—he goes then to a building-loan company and asks for a loan of $30,000. The building loan man (and again note the distinction made between building loan men or companies, and building loan operators) figures that the land is worth $30,000 and the building will cost $45,000, making a total cost of $75,000; and that if he loans the builder $30,000, subject to a ground mortgage of $25,000, he will have a claim against the property of $55,000, which will be over 70 per cent. of the cost. He further figures that when the building is completed the builder will not be able to borrow as a permanent loan over $55,000. He does not figure on what the builder will sell the property for, but what it will cost, and what permanent loan the builder can get. If he is reasonably disposed, he offers the builder a loan of $25,000, subject to a ground mortgage of $25,000, making a total loan of $50,000.

Now, you will note that when the builder makes the application to the building loan man or company for a loan that, in figuring upon same, the mortgage on the land is most essential in determining the amount of building loan to be made. If the builder had, instead of paying $5,000 cash, paid $10,000, his ground mortgage would be but $20,000, and a building loan of $30,000 would be equally as safe as a $25,000 building loan subject to a ground mortgage of $25,000. If the builder had paid $1,000 on account of the land and had a mortgage of $29,000, the building loan man would be justified in offering not over $21,000, although this would be less than 50 per cent. of the cost of the building.

CALCULATED AS A FIRST MORTGAGE LOAN.

Therefore, with these figures we draw the first important deduction which a broker in presenting a building loan application must consider. With all applications for building loans where the land is owned by the builder (and this is the most common form of application) they must be calculated as if they were first-mortgage loans, and that the building loan shall include an amount sufficient to retire the ground mortgage. It makes no difference how much mortgage is on the land as far as the amount of loan goes; if there is no mortgage on it, the builder may obtain all of the loan to use toward his building, but if he has a mortgage on the land, he will only have to use for his building purposes the difference between the amount of the loan and the mortgage on the land; therefore, whether the loan is to be made as a first mortgage loan or second mortgage loan, it must always be calculated on the basis of a first mortgage loan.

Another important requirement in figuring building loan applications is to be able to judge as to the amount of permanent loan that may be obtained on the property when the building is completed. There is no rule to judge this by other than that of experience and investigation as to mortgages on adjoining property similarly located and of like dimensions.

I said before that in figuring the amount of building loan that should be made it made no difference what the mortgage was on the land. But it makes a material difference in the manner in which the building loan payments are made. If the land is originally mortgaged for all it is worth, it is obvious that the builder has no equity in his property until he has reached such a course in the construction of it as to create one. For instance, if this 50-ft. plot of land had a mortgage of $30,000, or for all it was worth, it would not be until the building was enclosed that it could be said that he had created a reasonable equity of say $20,000. The property would then be worth $50,000, and a man might reasonably loan two-thirds of the cost at that time.

This is the theory (two-thirds of the then cost) on which some building loan payments are arranged and based. Another and a more conservative theory is to hold back enough money at all times to complete the building.

FIGURING THE COST OF THE BUILDING.

One of the missing facts in our discussion, and it is a very vital one, is to arrive at the cost of putting up the building.

Without these figures one cannot form any judgment as to whether a loan is good or not, and how the payments should be made. There is no exact rule for figuring the cost of building. The only absolutely accurate method is to take the plans and specifications of each building, get in bids on each contract, add them together, add allowances for extras, interest, carrying charges, etc., and the total is what the building will cost. But this may be necessary for a builder to know, but it is hardly necessary for the loan man or broker, because he can arrive at it by less accurate and easier methods, which vary according to the character of the building proposed. If the building we have been talking about is a 6-sty tenement house, he may roughly figure at so much per front foot, but the more usual method of figuring the cost of both fireproof and non-fireproof buildings, is at so much per cubic foot.

Sometimes building loan operators do not want to make building loans themselves, and they arrange with a building loan man or company to advance as much of the loan that is to be given the builder, as the building-loan company deems proper, and the building loan operator makes the remainder of the loan himself, taking a second mortgage behind the building-loan company's mortgage as security for his advance. This transaction is carried on in the same way as the one I have just outlined.

THE BUILDING PERMANENT LOAN.

"Another class" of building loan is what is known as a building permanent loan, or a loan made as a permanent loan for three or five years but advanced in building payments from the time the building is started. These loans differ from the previous loans principally because they are permanent investments and are made only by people who seek an investment. They are the most advantageous loans a builder can obtain, as they insure a certain fixed amount of money to use in his speculative operation and relieve him of the necessity, on the completion of his building, of obtaining a new mortgage.

In figuring this class of mortgage, which is a permanent investment, its amount must be determined by what the land can fairly be estimated to be worth when the building is completed and what the building is worth, not what it costs; in other words, on the total reasonable market value of the property. This makes it possible, of course, to obtain a larger loan than the ordinary building loan is, and constitutes the difference in amount between building and permanent loans. The rate of interest on such loans is generally 6 per cet. during course of construction and reduced to from 4½ per cent. to 5½ per cent. after completion, as the case may be.

WHAT LOANS COST.

It is not to be supposed that building loans can be obtained without more than the usual charge, both interest and brokers' fees, than that made for permanent loans. The cost is governed by money conditions and varies materially at times. The principal risk that building loan men are obliged to take is that the builder may be unable to complete his operation and fails during the course of construction; the building loan man forecloses his mortgage and if he buys the property in, as he nearly always does, he must complete the operation himself or else re-sell it to another builder.

Among the life insurance and other financial institutions who make these kinds of loans it is customary to charge a fee, in addition to interest charges, sufficient to defray the cost of title examination, employment of counsel, architects and engineers. They also are most particular as to the responsibility of the builders they loan to, and in a number of cases insist on some substantial bond as guarantee that the building will be completed.

Throughout the entire handling of building loan operations, the risk is always more or less great of the failure of the builder to complete his building. Every building loan man tries to loan only to responsible men, but the number of failures among builders is proof of the fact that mistakes are continually being made. The men who seem responsible when they start an operation may meet with reverses when they are half through. Owing to the agreements which exist among the workingmen's unions and among the material associations, it is very difficult to finish a building loan operation on which a builder fails and owes money to his contractors without making a settlement with them, because these unions control the employment of labor and the output of material. Thus, although the failure of the builder may ruin him, it also falls most heavily upon the man who has his money in the operation in the form of a building loan.

POORLY BUILT HOUSES.

It is a fact that within the past few years a large number of houses have been put up in this city by the speculative builders so poorly built and planned that they merit the severest condemnation. In some cases they are so cheaply constructed as to show signs of decay shortly after completion. But, undoubtedly, the worst results of such buildings are the effects they have had upon the value of similar property, which, however, was carefully and honestly constructed. Building loan operators and companies have been severely criticized for making loans to the builders who erect such types of structures, and for financing the building operations of men who, though financially responsible have no knowledge at all of the proper way in which to build.

THE MAN ON THE STREET.

Two little pigs were wandering across the Hackensack meadows this morning as the train flew by. They were going everywhere and nowhere. Their mother did not know they were out.

How many youngsters in architecture to-day are in the same fix. They are loose in the wilds of design and true esthetic expression, and they are bewildered in the tall growth of archeological forms around them. If they will look at the growing light in the east they may see the sun of democracy rising and know that the day is at hand for the development of a true form of their art, based on this great principle. So, look aloft, boys, and don't put on any blue goggles, for the glorious orb hasn't risen very far yet.

Bill picked up a magazine the other day and read an article on erecting steel buildings and bridges, written by a "popular" writer. The boys who do this work and who are friends of Bill and close to his heart are alluded to in the pages as "men-monkeys;" but, although Bill has always included zoology among the subjects in which he has a vital interest, he fails to see any resemblance which these splendid men of skill and courage possess that would place them in comparison with the Simian tribe, either in their mental or physical characteristics or methods of work.

It is a term about as offensive as that of "sand-hogs," applied to caisson and tunnel workers who may be clay-covered often, but are even more courageous than the steel erectors. For when the former are caught in an inflow it is all up with them, and to work underground in a box under the pressure of several atmospheres, with "the bends" liable to attack them any time, is a different thing from being surrounded by a glorious panorama and having God's blue sky above.

So back to the monkey house for yours, O Scribbler for pelf, with an ever-present eye on the grandstand, and learn accuracy in analogy, if nothing more. Monkeys and swine have quite different characteristics from these workers.

However, these writers may be like the man at the ball who remarked to his neighbor: "That man looks like a dromedary and his partner like a giraffe."

"Sir," said the other indignantly, "that is my wife and my brother."

"Pardon my peculiar language," said the guilty one, "but I am the manager of a menagerie."

Visions are sometimes distorted thus by too much mental self-sightseeing, "as in a looking-glass."

I used to have a big St. Bernard, called "Sancho." Had he been human, I would have given him a job as chief-draughtsman and ultimately taken him into partnership, for he was honest, loyal and had brains plus, as Hubbard says. Likewise, he was sympathetic and observant, and used to sit in a big chair in my den and watch me lay out work at home, where I could have peace and quietness for application, uninterrupted by clients, contractors and confidence operation salesmen of the only things to incorporate in my specifications.

"Sanc" used to accompany me on excursions into the woods to study natural forms of growth that might be lifted from our good old Mother Nature and incorporated in ornamental detail. As we passed along the road, there was always a bunch of small-fry canines who made it their business to investigate my dog's mental and physical attributes, and sought to draw him out by threatening attitudes, but they were as air to him. He looked not at them but through them. He was too big to notice them.

When you see a big man in the building trade, architect or constructor, don't feel obliged to get in his wake and make a mongrel exhibition of yourself. Respect his powers and strengthen your own by his example, if you can. Go your own way and mind your own business. Don't be a ki-yi.

Big bodies in the building trades are sometimes an advantage and sometimes otherwise.

Buck is big, body and brain, also brave. He once pushed a walking delegate through a fireproof block partition on a rush job, ended an argument and a strike, and the man became a firm friend ever afterward. Since Bill has known him, however, Buck has always had the greatest lot of yellows constantly yapping at him. Curs that he could mentally and physically break in two, but who invite such fracture with an eye to a safe and speedy retreat. Now and then they come near enough for Buck to turn to look sidewise, and when he does you can hear the rush of their feet in retirement sounding like the charge of the Light Brigade.

Now, Bill is small and cowardly, but as an architect he was an autocrat and walked upon obstreperous necks as on corduroy roads. He knew how to hold up the certificates of the mutinous until the aforesaid came to taw. Only once or twice has he been invited out on the sidewalk to be licked, and when he has finally ventured forth he has met a pacific diplomat with a proposition to debate. Hence in his old age his face is fairly well preserved and his body shows no scars, other than those acquired in his boyhood rough and tumbles.

Once, however, it was otherwise with the matter of avoirdupois. "Buck" and Bill went to Coney, intent on studying its interesting architectural and engineering features. They surveyed the wonders of the Bowery and went within a joint with small tables and vaudeville, part of which show was a moving picture exhibit of a bout between Tom Sharkey and Pete McCoy.

The place was full and they stood up. Consequently, they did not buy, and so the presence of two eminent constructors was unwished.

The Bouncer said to Bill, "Sit down or git out." Bill almost fainted, but as there was no seat in sight he appealed to "Buck" for advice. Whereon the Man of Maintenance of Trade and Order quoth, as he gazed on "Buck's" colossal form and iron face, "Dat's all right, gents."

Decoration Day being a holiday, and Bill being relieved from duty in the city and from the cruel oppression of a strenuous typewriter, Miss Katy-Did, resolved to do a little decorating himself. So he got some furring strips and studs and proceeded to design and build him a grape arbor up in the country. When it was finished he painted it green in honor of the insect aforesaid.

Bill belongs to all the trade unions in spirit and was not interviewed by walking delegates or building inspectors during the operation. He also cut wages and worked for nothing, but that is a common trick with him. He had on a pair of overalls, a flannel shirt and an old straw cady, and when it began to rain he kept right on as workmen often do, and sweated and soaked to his heart's content.

When Bill was a boy manual training was not in the school curriculum. Nevertheless, in addition to being an architect, he is a fair carpenter and painter, can lay concrete sidewalks and a little brick, and can excavate to beat the band, and when he is not so busy as the Man-on-the-Street, he is a pretty fair imitation of the Man-with-the-Hoe, whom Edwin Markham has sung of in verse. As he merrily hills up his corn he thinks of great architectural creations and constructive advances, and of function as the basis of form and of organic growth, and of the Infinite, and the latter is everything.

When the garden work is over he can sit under his own vine now, with a small bottle of ginger-ale and get busy with his pen. It is a great scheme, brother, and beats a New York flat all to shucks. We will all get going this way when the tunnels are completed, and everybody will be healthier and happier. How is all this for a simple life pastoral?

Active workers in the building trades and allied interests may well study railroad methods, and the sanctum sanctorum of the train dispatcher is a good spot to begin.

In these days this form of transportation is handled, telegraphically, by a clear-headed man who has heavy responsibilities. He has to be up and doing constantly while on duty, and move everything with his little key and wire just at the right moment, or there is disaster. If there is a delay with a resulting mix-up in the schedule, he is the man to coolly think it all out in the speediest manner and make the adjustments by orders to distant operators, so that the running is resumed in the quickest time possible. In our building trades business methods should be similar. The leaks of money in office management or constructive work caused by delays, the lingering and waiting by many employees for necessary orders, is to invite failure and bankruptcy. Our enterprising trade journals are full of methods to obviate it all, and he is a wise general manager who studies these with inferential application to his own conditions, and who first of all concentrates his attention on the effectiveness of his organization, for profit or loss depend on this more than any other condition.

Some men fail to realize this, and their working machinery is sooner or later out of gear, and ultimately lands on the financial scrap-heap. It is a sad sight to see these wrecks of splendid opportunities caused by those who will not or cannot see the outcome in the end caused by lack of efficient system.

It causes me to think of the boyhood days when I visited Uncle Esek in the country and was invited to go down to the cellar and drink hard cider. The barrel had a lock spigot and Old Uncle turned it on with his key very carefully. The cellar smelled strongly, and back of the barrel the dirt floor was damp and a puddle was there of the juice of the apple. The bung-hole was a-leak. Uncle marvelled at the weak stream and low pressure and opined that the hired man might have ensnared a duplicate key, but he was put wise and we drank in silence. Enough said.

On the train last night I sat beside a quiet but efficient railroad man whom I know. He was reading. I looked out of the window at the landscape. At the first stop he took a seat across the aisle, saying: "I'll give you a chance to expand." There's my text. Do you need such, oh, friend! and know anybody else who does? Cut some of the bonds, then, and get bigger, or let the other fellow. And if life is only a single-cylinder proposition to you, make your equipment quadruple-expansion, and as you live, let live.

So as we loosen the roots of growing things, pass it along and give the young people their chance. Then in our line we will see the thousand-foot building ere we live much longer. Don't make your life stunted like the foot of a Chinese lady. The constructive world to-day needs big people, bodies, brains, hands and hearts.

FALSE ECONOMY IN ELEVATOR SERVICE.

In construction work New York has the record of building the biggest and best, but it has been a matter of comment among many contractors that this same city has a so-called modern fireproof structure oven ten stories with an elevator service that appears to be almost anachronism. The building in question is uptown and in a busy section. There are all the usual office conveniences and five serviceable elevator cars. So far so good. However, the signal system, which consulting engineers unite in saying ought to indicate whether the passenger is going up or down, provides but one push button. The operator is informed only of the fact that a person is standing outside of the wireglass door, but does not know which way he or she is going. The result is that a car going down always stops, while cars going up rarely stop at intervening floors, the operators inferring that anyone signalling from an upper floor always wants to descend. Not only is there this drawback, but the signals do not work in combination, the push button notifying only one operator. Thus two or three cars may pass down after the signal is given.

Frequent complaints have been made of such a service in a modern building, recently completed, and it is agreed by the complainants that it is a case of false economy. A Record and Guide representative interrogated several engineers about the conditions, and they were unanimous in the opinion that such an elevator service was almost inconceivable now. Mr. R. P. Bolton, who is so well informed on the elevator question, when informed of the facts, remarked that it was one of the strange conditions that could not be accounted for from the standpoint of reason.

"I have had people ask me for my opinion on elevator service long after all the details had been decided. Of course the problems involved in installing a full and suitable elevator service in a modern building have to be worked out carefully before all plans are completed. There is hardly a building in New York that has the elevator service it ought to have, taking economy, speed and convenience into consideration."

SUMMER COURSES IN ENGINEERING.

The following courses counting toward the degrees of the Schools of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry, and the degree of M. A. in the School of Pure Science, open without examination to all students who are qualified, are offered in the summer session of Columbia University, July 7 to August 14.

Civil Engineering—Hydraulics—Five hours lectures per week. Professor Adolph Black. Structures—Reinforced Concrete—Five hours lectures per week. Dr. E. P. Goodrich.

Electrical Engineering—Electric Train Movement—Six hours lectures per week. Professor C. O. Mailloux.

Mechanical Engineering—Gas Engines—Six hours lectures, six hours laboratory per week. Professor C. E. Lucke.

Metallurgical Engineering—Metallography of Iron, Steel and Industrial Alloys—Five hours lectures, five hours laboratory per week. Professor William Campbell.

Also chemistry, drawing, mathematics, mechanics, mineralogy, physics and shop work.

All these courses will be of special interest to instructors in technical schools, to graduate students and to practicing engineers.

For further information in regard to these courses apply to the secretary of Columbia University.

THE ARCHITECT IN COMMERCIAL ARCHITECTURE.

No doubt there is a growing popular sentiment in favor of the architect. But there is also a strong tendency to consider him a superfluous element in a building transaction. The favorable sentiment applies chiefly to monumental and residential work, while the unfavorable sentiment is a natural consequence of commercial development and standardization. So easy is it considered to dispense entirely with his services in commercial building that many business structures have actually been built, and, one may say, designed, so far as there is any design in them, by engineers. Such structures have subsequently been turned over to some person who was considered to be sufficiently qualified to give the structural elements the necessary artistic touch. To such an extent has this practice been carried on that one is almost tempted to ask, Is the architect to be eliminated entirely in the designing of such buildings? Is their design to be reduced to an absolute standard commodity in some such work as steel skeleton construction with its standard beams, columns and connections? Are we to expect in the future that all commercial designing will be almost commercially compact, consisting merely of a combination of a limited number of standardized parts which may be put together by the mechanic with a minimum amount of instruction and attention from a designer who thus becomes merely an operator playing on a system of building blocks. Is the design of our commercial buildings to be syndicated and controlled absolutely like so much building material, as so many of our other lines of activity have come to be?

White Brick and Terra Cotta for Courts.

Problem of Lighting Inner Section of High Buildings Has Had an Effect on Color of Brick.

Mr. Walter E. Maynard, vice-president and secretary of the Fifth Avenue Building Company, which is erecting the big structure at the corner of 23d st. and Broadway, states that it has been decided to use a light-colored and expensive terra cotta for the exterior of the court of the proposed building for the primary purpose of giving the tenants of this part of the building as much light as possible, as well as providing a pleasing view from the court windows. The fact that light and view are the first things considered in the erection of the inner section of this skyscraper discloses the effect that high buildings have on the color of brick or terra cotta. Speaking of this and the color of brick in general a representative of the firm of Pfotenhauer and Nesbit, 1133 Broadway, remarked:

"There is more call for the light color in face brick now. The iron-spotted brick was in great demand for a time, but its popularity appears to be waning, especially among the speculative builders. The light colors, such as in cream and gray, give a brighter effect. There is no doubt that the erection of very high buildings requiring narrow courts, has had its effect on the color of brick used, and that the white brick is more in demand, to increase the light for offices looking out into such a court."

Mr. Woodruff Smith, of the Sayre & Fisher Company, 263 Broadway, cited several recent instances where brick of light color was used to reflect light in courts. One was in the addition built to the Woodbridge Building, at John and Willlam sts.

"A good, white face brick, or a glazed brick, has been found to serve this purpose best," said Mr. Smith. "A glazed brick is probably the best to reflect the light, and the effect is better than that produced by an enamel brick. Where a fine view is wanted for the tenants of the offices on the court side of the building this means more expensive brick."

Demand for the Best Not so Strong.

A visitor to the office of the New York Metal Ceiling Co., 539 W 24th st., one day this week noted the heavy recessed panels over his head, placed there by the company as a sample of the work that could be accomplished in an highly ornamental way. The panel is five and a quarter inches deep. Such metal panels are so rarely seen that Mr. John C. Upton, secretary of the company, was asked if there was any demand for them. His answer brought out a general comment on the metal ceiling-business that is interesting.

"There is not the demand for the best that there used to be," he said. "This applies to material as well as to excellence of workmanship and ornamental effect. The panel used in residential and business structures are rarely more than an inch deep.

"Five-eighths of an inch is about the limit in the recess for regular use. Of course, the greater the recess the more the cost. It requires more material, and as we use the same quality of material for all kinds of panels the 'flat' one is the most in demand.

"It requires 13 square feet of material to make nine square feet of a panel five and a quarter inches deep. As the steel is made especially for this purpose in sheets 42 inches wide, a width that cannot be purchased in the market, it makes a ceiling with such panels come pretty high."

Pennsylvania Station Taking Shape.

Such progress is being made on the Pennsylvania Terminal on 33d st., that orders have been received by the Sayre & Fisher Co., to begin the regular delivery of the fine enamel brick to be used in parts of the interior. About 100,000, of these are now on the spot, ready for immediate use.

The structural framework of the eastern half of the terminal is well advanced, the shape of the building being now apparent. The granite, which is being supplied by Norcross Bros, and which will be used for facing the four sides, is beginning to rise on the lower part of the south side.

The structures on the site of the proposed tunnel facing Sixth avenue, are being razed. Blasting is still in progress on the site of the post office west of the Pennsylvania terminal.

Transporting Twenty-four Ton Girders a Spectacle for Wall Street.

An interesting spectacle in the downtown section this week was the hauling through the crowded business thoroughfares of the huge girders required in the reconstruction of the old Custom House for the National City Bank. The girders, of which there are twelve in all, weigh twenty-four tons each. A string of twelve horses was needed to haul them from Pier 11, North River, to the scene of building operations. When one passed up Broadway it attracted the attention of the thousands of pedestrians. When the turn at Broadway and Wall st. was made regular traffic had to be stopped a few moments by the police officer stationed there.

The girders are over seventy feet long. They ar ethe product of the plant of Milliken Bros. Inc., on Staten Island, whence they were brought on lighters to Pier 11. Four thirty-ton trusses will be placed around the interior court, but these have been transported in sections. The heavy structural pieces are removed from the trucks by one large derrick, moved through an opening in the wall on Wall st., on rollers, and there seized by another derrick inside. The old walls of the Custom House being partly retained this method was adopted, as the steel pieces would otherwise have to be raised high in the air over the wall. The construction is being done by the Geo. A. Fuller Co., Fuller Bldg., and is to be completed late this fall.

N. Y. Chapter of Architects Indorses Exhibition of Building Material.

At a meeting of the executive committee, of the New York Chapter, of the American Institute of Architects the permanent exhibition of building material started on the second floor of the Builders' Exchange Bldg., West 33d st., by the Building Trades Employers' Association was indorsed very strongly. The following letter was sent to Mr J. J. Conor, director of the exhibition, by the chapter through the secretary, Mr. D. E. Waid:

"I brought your communication to the attention of the Executive Committee of the Chapter and am pleased to say that we believe that the proposed permanent Exhibition of building materials, and appliances will be appreciated and that we shall be glad to know when it is in running order. Personally, I can say that I knew of a similar exhibition which was maintained for a number of years in Chicago and which was found to be of great convenience to Architects, who were thus able to inspect easily any devices or materials which they thought of specifying."

Important Builders' Hardware Contracts.

It is interesting to note that the Shelby County Court House of Memphis, Tenn., Hale & Rogers, 11-15 East 24th st., Manhattan, Architects, will be fitted complete with Yale & Towne Hardware to the amount of $17,000. The importance of the feature is that the Yale & Towne Mfg. Co., after having been among the foremost makers of Builders' Hardware in the world for forty years, still retain their position, the selection having been made after a most careful investigation of the samples submitted by all of the other reputable manufacturers. Their hardware was also selected for the Cook County Court House, Chicago, to the extent of $35,000 and the Supreme Court at Springfield, Ill.

For the Metropolitan Life Insurance Tower (seven hundred feet high) they originated an entirely new lock, harmonizing with the fireproof features of the door, attached to the door with no visible means of fastening and without cutting or marring in any way the edge, and having for its economical feature, that of being interchangeable with the letter hole plate which is set in the hinge stile: thus, if the swing of any corridor door need be changed, the lock is set into the mortise of the letter hole plate and the letter hole plate set into the mortise of the lock.

Atlas Co. to Have Costly Exhibit.

The Atlas Cement Co. is planning to put in a handsome and costly display in the rooms of the Concrete Association of America, 11th floor of the Brunswick Bldg., 25th st. and Fifth av. A space facing Fifth av. has been engaged and it is estimated that the exhibit will involve an outlay of between $2,500 and $3,000. The display will show to good advantage the possibilities of concrete from the standpoint of both utility and ornament.

Will Change Tile Exhibit Weekly.

The American Encaustic Tiling Company, 1123 Broadway, which is installing a handsome display in the permanent exhibition of building materials conducted by the Building Trades Employers' Association on the second floor of the Builders' Exchange, West 33d St., has decided to change its display weekly, a unique idea in exhibits of this character. Only the matt tiling on the wall, which will be set in cement, will be permanent. The feature of the display will be the weekly changing of the tiling to be placed on a large easel. The first week will show faenza, and this will be followed by hand painted tiling, trimmings for doors, etc., art ceramics and mosaics, borders and the like.

As a result of the visit of many members of the Employers' Association to the rooms of the Concrete Association last week there has been increased interest shown in the exhibition in the Builders' Exchange and hurry orders have been given to have more of the exhibits installed.

PRICES CURRENT.

BRICK.—Hudson River commons continue to be shipped into an over-supplied market.

Trade remains in the same low state of inadequacy, with quotations nominal. Works in operation are employing only their home people, as a rule, and are not moving at full capacity. Some have not produced at all.

Here in the city there are a good many jobs that have not yet required brick, but will be needing it very soon, so that some improvement is certain after the fourth of July, along with the ending of the political suspense.

CEMENT.—The Portland cement industry in Germany has passed through a period of unsurpassed and almost unsurpassable prosperity. The dividends of most companies show an improvement on the previous year, which was scarcely less prosperous, in which connection one of the most eloquent facts is that only two out of thirty-one companies whose shares are quoted pass their dividend, as compared with four in the previous year. Of the two which have paid a dividend after failing to do so in the previous year, one pays 10 per cent. and the other 9. The highest distribution was 22 and the lowest 4. The average for the past year works out 11¾ per cent., with the previous distribution standing at somewhat less than 9½.

These figures show the trend of prosperity of the trade in Germany much more closely than do outputs, exports or imports. The output has been greater, but prices have been well maintained, and are high. At the present moment reports from Germany show no lessening in the demand for cement, and, at any rate, for some little time the outlook is good. But there is, nevertheless, a growing feeling that a period of depression will shortly follow, the harbingers of which, in the majority of industries in that country, have already put in an appearance.

So far, this depression has had no appreciable effect on the cement trade which in common with all industries in Germany amply provides for the commercial rainy day. The enormous increase in the demand for Portland cement the world over has had its influence in drawing the attention of investors, and many new works have just begun erection, many have started and others are projected.

In the British Isles the prices realized for cement for several months have been low. In spite of this Belgian cement has been imported this season at a larger rate than ever before, about half of it going to Scottish ports.

There are some points in the distribution of cement more curious than the importation of Belgian cement into the United Kingdom. How is it that the United Kingdom exports to the United States, the largest producers in the world, and in spite of a protective tariff? A great portion comes to the Pacific ports of our country. And this cannot be entirely accounted for by the earthquakes in San Francisco creating a demand with which the American works could not cope.

Locally ,the requirement for Portland Cement does not noticeably strengthen. There are many inquiries but comparatively few results in orders for delivery. The price for standard cement is being maintained at $1.48, as the wholesale price to dealers, but reports are heard of concessions by small manufacturers.

IRON, STEEL, ETC.—Recent bids show that structural steel fabrications are still competing sharply. Prices are somewhat higher than some heretofore submitted.

The tenders for the contruction of the educational building to be erected at Albany by the State Board of Education have been submitted to State Architect Ware for tabulation. Awaiting the official report it is understood that the R. T. Ford Company of Rochester is the lowest bidder. The building will require about 10,000 tons of fabricated steel.

The American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. is operating 312 mills, while the independents have 70 in operation. It is expected that the mills will run full time until the beginning of July. Orders for nails have not shown any perceptible increase since the recent cut, but there has been a marked improvement in the call for wire and wire products. There is a little better tone to the market for semi-finished steel.

M. J. Drummond & Co. secured a contract for 3100 tons of the pipe required for the city of New York, mainly 16 and 20 in. The city of New York will purchase 2800 tons of 6 and 12 in. in about two weeks. Carload lots of 6-in. are held at $24.50 to $25 per net ton at tidewater.

Sheet copper is nominally quoted at 17 cents a pound base, but is being sold at a lower price.

BRASS GOODS.—Prices for steam and water brass goods are low in a dull market. Manufacturers are loth to book large offers at prevailing prices, but necessity requires them to keep going.

LUMBER.—It is possible now to secure more and better work for the same price than at any time within the last two years. Materials are cheaper, and labor is cheaper, anxious for employment and earnest in its desire to give full value. These certainly are factors which the wise investors should take into account.

By building at this time investors should save 10 to 20 per cent. on the cost as compared with the cost in 1907 and the outlay that probably will be required next year.

Yellow pine, hemlock, spruce, northern pine and hardwoods in all sections of the country now are being offered at prices ranging from $2 to $10 below last year's schedules.

The American Lumberman says that, lumber now is being offered at prices which appear ridiculously low when compared with market values last year. Where the manufacturer or the dealer refuses to make heavy concessions in prices some one else willing to do so steps in and takes the trade.

This year a great deal of lumber has been sold at prices that did not yield sufficient to cover the actual cost of producing the stock. This, of course, has not been the case generally, but the lumber trade, so far this year, has been conducted on about the same basis as the business of the man who trades a dollar for 100 cents.

In some sections of the country building has been good but as a whole it is far from satisfactory. Its sluggishness may be traced largely to the ignorance of the people who are able to build and who will not appreciate or do not know of present advantages.

A moment's reflection could convince anyone that it is a pretty safe thing to buy at prices which represent merely the cost of production. It is incumbent upon those who handle building material to acquaint the trade with those facts.

Soon the railroads and other heavy consumers must come into the market and the instant they do prices are going to advance 10 to 25 per cent., and the individual who delayed building in the hope of securing even better terms is going to be left.

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—A steady undertone is noted in the market for linseed oil, though the business is in a larger degree than usual for present needs, as little is being done in futures.

Business in shellac might be considered almost satisfactory, in a jobbingway, but no large sales are reported. Ordinary T. N. is quoted at 31; bright orange grades 32½@ 42, fresh bleached shellac 28@ 30.

Turpentine was quite but slightly easier, with 43 cents as a general quotation. For tar and pitch quotations are maintained at $5.00@ 5.50 for tar and $3.15 for pitch, and the market is quiet.

The dry color market has recently improved. Orders are now routine and are apparently well covered for the present. Blacks have not been in such easy call, although there is still a little interest manifested in carbon grades. Paris green continues to move in a small way into consumption, on withdrawals on outstanding contracts. High grade reds are neglected, but there is still some interest in the lower grades. Others are moving fairly freely. Browns and blues are quiet, with only a jobbing trade reported. Prices on all grades are firm, but unchanged.

STONE.—Among the stone interests it is hoped that the reduction of the price of structural steel will lead to more work coming out. This and the approaching settlement of political uncertainties are the two encouraging features of the moment.

The stone trades feel with other builders the loss of the speculative tenement house work. To show how little of this is being done, it can be stated that at the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings the occupation permits for apartment houses or tenements do not average more than two a week. Ninety-five per cent. of the tenement houses in Manhattan, in normal times, are erected by men of the Jewish faith.

The Woodbury Granite Co. has landed the contract for the granite work of a bank building to be erected at Uniontown, Pa., and also one for the barracks at Fort Scott, N. J., a duplicate of the Fort Hamilton job.

The John Swenson Quarry and Works, at Concord, have just finished getting out the granite for the Yonkers City Hall. The contract called for between 16,000 and 17,000 cubic feet of granite, including a carved entrance out of the ordinary.

Our new buildings are being beautified by ancient marbles of every color and hue. In the Plaza Hotel visitors notice a beautiful marble whose white ground is stained profusely with a rich red-purple, and yellow often appearing, the effect being most attractive. This stone comes from an ancient quarry on the Island of Sciyros, in Italy, that is now being reworked.

In the new Custom House are hugh columns from the ancient quarries in Euboea. There are also columns of Cipollina in the Engineering Building—the same stone that is used in the decorations of St. Mark's, at Venice.

Southern marbles are becoming exceedingly prominent in this market. Georgia is now second only to Vermont in the production of marbles. Although the major part of the product is naturally sold for building construction, both for interior and exterior work, there is a large and growing demand for monumental purposes, which keeps a number of firms busy and amounts to a very large sum annually. All of the Georgia marbles thus far worked on a commercial scale occur along the Louisville & Nashville R. R., in the northern part of the State. They are contained in a narrow strip of country, some 60 miles long and from one to three in width, running in a southwesterly direction through the counties of Fannin, Gilmer, Pickens and Cherokee. The country is still hilly and broken with many small streams, which, however, afford considerable water power, used where available. Mr. S. W. McCallie, the State Geologist, has prepared an interesting "Preliminary Report" on the marbles of Georgia.

The Monumental News for June has an illustrated account of the marbles in the Moravian Cemetery at New Dorp, S. I.

The details of the Stony Point Memorial which the State has undertaken have been decided upon, and the model, by the sculptor, H. K. Bush-Brown, has been completed. According to the Monumental News, this memorial is to take the form of an arch which will serve as an entrance to Stony Point Park, twenty-one feet in height and twelve in breadth; the supporting columns narrowing toward the top and bearing tablets with inscriptions. The material used will be the native ledge stone of the place, a dark slate in color, and Connecticut cut granite of a light gray. The total cost will be about $5,000.

Marshall Field & Co. Will Erect a Block Front Department Store on Fifth Avenue.

FIFTH AV.—The Record & Guide was informed on Thursday that plans are now in course of completion for a huge fireproof department store building which is to be erected on the east side of Fifth av., on the block front between 37th and 38th sts., with a running depth in both streets of about 200 square feet. In this connection it can also be announced that Daniel H. Burnham & Company, of Chicago, Ill., will be the architects. The size and height of the building, there is reason to believe, will rival the new Wanamaker store at Broadway and 9th st.,and the new Altman building immediately south on 5th av., between 34th and 35th sts., which was only recently completed. Of course no building contracts have yet been awarded. Further announcement will be made in later issues.

New West Side Apartments to cost $700,000.

Paterno Bros. will proceed at once with the construction of two more handsome steel frame apartment houses on the property which they purchased the past week on the south side of 114th st, 100 ft. west of Amsterdam av, a plot 100x100 ft. The buildings will be 8 stories, and contain four family apartments on each floor, of two, four and five rooms each. There will be electric elevators, limestone, light brick and terra cotta exteriors. The cost is placed at about $200,000. The same builders will also begin immediately the erection of a 12-sty steel frame elevator apartment house at 116th st, near Claremont Park, eight families on a floor, on plot 107x183 and irregular, to cost in the neighborhood of $500,000. Messrs. Schwartz & Gross have been commissioned to prepare the plans.

Latest 24th Street Improvement.

24TH ST.—Architect George L. Nichols, 82 Wall st., has asked for estimates on the general contract for alterations and extension of the two 4-sty, brick residences at 111-113 East 24th st. The basement and first floor will be made into stores and offices, with apartments above. The extension will be in the rear, 1-sty, 40x55 ft. Work will include changes to partitions, masonry, carpenter work, electric wiring, modification of heating system, plumbing, sheet metal work, structural steel and painting. The old surface of the front brick will be tooled off and left rough under the chisel. William H. Spelman, plumber, 130 West 28th st., the lessee, for whom the work will be done, represents a coterie of men who intend carrying on a number of similar operations.

Taking Figures for New Elliott Theatre.

39TH ST.—Architects Marshall & Fox, First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill., represented by G. B. Hammer, Broadway and 39th st., Manhattan, are taking figures on the theatre, to be erected at Nos. 107-115 West 39th st., for Samuel and Lee Shubert, and Maxine Elliott, the actress. The construction is to be of stone, terra cotta and brick, and will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000. When the playhouse is completed next January Miss Elliott will become the manager of it, and will be the first woman star in New York to own a playhouse and have it named for her since the days of Laura Keene, and hers will be one of the finest of the small modern theatres, in the city.

Edward Corning Co. to Erect Educational Building.

AMSTERDAM AV.—Messrs. Parish & Schroeder, 12 West 31st st., have awarded to the Edward Corning Co., 100 William st., the general contract to build the new 5-sty and basement Educational building 152x57 ft., on the block bounded by Amsterdam av., Broadway, 120th and 121st sts., to cost about $350,000. J. T. McKeon & Bro., 882 Lexington av., have obtained the plumbing contract. The building is for the Trustees of Teachers College, 120th st., and Broadway.

Nine-Story Business Building for West Eighth Street.

8TH ST.—F. A. Minuth, architect No. 425 5th av., has completed plans for a 9-sty and basement fireproof store and loft building, to be erected on No. 37-39 West 8th st., for A. deJonge. The building will be equipped with electric elevators, electric wiring, steam heat, and finished as an up-to-date, commercial building. The front will be of granite, stone, brick and iron. The cost is estimated at $130,000.

Whitfield & King Plan Rochester Building.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Messrs. Whitfield & King, No. 160 5th av., Manhattan, have been commissioned to prepare plans for an ornamental designed laboratory of Applied Science building to be erected on the campus grounds for the University of Rochester, at Rochester, N. The latest developments in engineering have been embodied in the Hudson Terminal buildings, and it is interesting to note that tungsten and tantalum lamps are largely used for illuminating. The lamp equipment includes 8,500 General Electric tungsten lamps and 1,500 tantalum lamps of the same make in 40, 60 and 100-watt sizes.

It will interest those who desire to see the United States improve in all branches of art, to know that the Yale & Towne Mfg. Co., 9 Murray st., Manhattan, are furnishing hardware of an unusual and particularly artistic character for the residence of Charles A. Baldwin, Esq., Colorado Springs, Colo. A fact which carries some atmosphere with it is that the residence is a most faithful reproduction of the Grand Trianon at Versailles, the scene of so much gayety during the reign of Louis Quatorze. All of the hardware is in the correct periods of heavy gold plate and highly chiselled ornamental surfaces.

Although the construction of the subway loop, that will connect the Brooklyn and Blackwell's Island Bridges, is far from being completed, the construction of the reinforced concrete stairs that will connect the subway with this bridge will be started at once. The contract for this work has been awarded to the Turner Construction Company, 11 Broadway. There will be five flights, each seven feet wide. Mr. J. P. H. Perry, of the Turner Co., stated that the work will be started immediately. The stairs will be east of Second av., between 59th and 60th sts. Mr. Perry states that reports from J. L. Bruff, in charge of the office recently opened by the company in Buffalo, indicate that the Bison City will be one of the very active ones this year.

Light Colors in Terra Cotta Predominating.

Apropos of a remark dropped by a brick supply dealer the other day that there is a change in the fashion of brick corresponding, in a measure, to the constant changes in the style of wearing apparel, Mr. E. V. Eskesen, secretary and treasurer of the New Jersey Terra Cotta Company, 104 Fulton st, remarks that there is a strong inclination for lighter colors in terra cotta. This is evident in many of the apartment houses erected within the last six months, more particularly on Riverside drive.

"One cannot account for inclinations," said Mr. Eskesen, "but in the recent orders for terra cotta the light colors seem to meet with most favor. Of course, there is no difference in quality, the desire of the owner probably being for architectural effect."

Granite Trade Shows Growing Activity.

Mr. John Hynes, whose granite works cover a whole city block at the junction of Bond and Union sts and Gowanus Canal, Brooklyn, reports a brisk business.

Among these is the granite work for new Fifth Avenue Building, to be erected at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, on the site of the famous old hostelry of the same name. Much of this work is almost ready for delivery to the constructors, and the last cargo of granite for the building is now within a day's sail of New York, and will soon be put into condition for the construction work. The granite work of this interesting office structure will be noteworthy. Many of the blocks weigh thirty tons each, which Mr. Hynes declares is larger than any stones used in New York building work for some time.

The Fort Greene memorial work is reported to be practically completed as regards the monument proper, and Mr. Hynes' workmen are now engaged in finishing up the work on the steps. The shaft is ready for the erection of the statuary.

The improvement in granite trade is well shown by the fact that Mr. Hynes has purchased and had delivered within the last few days seven large cargoes of granite, containing well over 28,000 cubic feet.

Wood Paving.

The first attempts to pave streets with wood, three-quarters of a century ago, were failures, but the blocks that have been laid in recent years, at least in New York, have given satisfaction so far. Time and experience will tell the story. For years no satisfactory progress was made. The blocks were round, which left large, unequal spaces between them. Their edges broke down and wore off, the wood rotted, and the pavement was soon uneven and rough, and therefore difficult to clean and insanitary.

At the present time, through the selection of suitable woods, cutting the blocks into rectangular shape so that their edges may lie close together, and treating them chemically to increase their durability, wood pavement is better in many respects than any other in common use. It is smooth, quiet, resilient, easily cleaned, and easily repaired.

No road surface is easier to draw a load upon, or, as it is put in technical language, none offers a lower "traction resistance," and none is easier to keep clean. Creosoted wood pavement stands above the average in smoothness, freedom from dust, mud, noise, reflection of light, radiation of heat, and ease of maintenance.

The first cost of creosoted wood is greater than that of macadam, brick, or asphalt, but not so great as granite or sandstone. On the other hand, it must be remembered, it exceeds any of the first group in wearing qualities. Too much weight is sometimes attached to the inital cost of creosoted wood and too little to its counterbalancing durability, which is equally important in calculating investment returns. It costs from $2.40 to $3.50 per square yard, laid, as compared with an average of $3.50 for sandstone, $3.26 for granite, $2.30 for asphalt, $2.06 for brick, and $0.99 for macadam, in a number of cities in which a study has been made.

Cedar has been extensively laid in the Middle West, and oak, cypress, white pine, hemlock, western red cedar, cotton wood, mesquite, Osage orange, red wood Douglas fir, and tamarack in various cities of the country. Untreated American red gum, tried in England, raised great hopes, but it finally proved unsatisfactory. Pavement of Australian eucalyptus has lasted for from fifteen to twenty years in the streets of London. It is more slippery, however, than American woods, and its cost, about $5 per square yard in the United States, is prohibitive.

In recent years the difficulties which attended the use of wood pavement have been largely overcome by better methods of handling, treating, and laying the blocks. Creosote is the best of the preservatives in common use for wood pavement. Since it is insoluble in water, it does not leach out, and if a sufficient amount is injected into the blocks it prevents the entrance of water, which weakens the pavevment.

The blocks should be rectangular in shape. For heavy traffic their depth should not be less than 4 inches. The usual width is 3 or 4 inches, and the best length from 6 to 10 inches. They should be laid with the grain vertical, on a concrete foundation having a thin surface cushion of sand or other material.

Increasing Sales Justify Optimism.

To start in business during the darkest period of the industrial depression and be successful is the experience of Mr. Frank Vernon, masons' supplies, Terminal Building. Mr. Vernon was associated with the Atlantic Cement Company before it ceased to do business last fall. He began on his own account in October. To date his orders aggregate over twenty million of brick and 200,000 barrels of cement.

"I am always looking for more business," said Mr. Vernon, when interrogated about business conditions, "but recent orders indicate that prospects for the year are improving. It will not be a very busy season, but contractors will have less reason to complain later on in the summer."

Fifth Avenue Hotel Scattering.

There is promise of the historic Fifth Avenue Hotel being distributed to the four cardinal points of the compass, and for indefinite distances inquiries are following each other in quick succession for the purchase of the articles that are being saved by the Rheinfrank House-wrecking Company, 620 East 14th st, which has the contract for the demolition. Already the distribution has started. A set of the large folding doors has been sent to Macon, Ga., where they will be installed in a big business building there. A farmer in Ohio intends to erect the best part of a new home of material taken from the structure. A query has been received from Jamaica for certain parts of the hotel. There will be an interesting story to be written when a compilation will have been made of the distribution of the various parts.

Where Blaine's Hand Rested.

A section of the hand rail of the main stairway in the old Fifth Avenue Hotel disappeared mysteriously the other day, and the affair made the representatives of the Rheinfrank House-Wrecking Company, the concern demolishing the structure, do some thinking. The piece of wood that was sawed out was not valuable, but just why it should have been taken out of the middle of the stairway was a problem that they were determined to solve. Investigations developed the fact that one of the workmen employed in connection with the operations in progress was the offender. When questioned as to why he did it, he said that a gentleman informed him there was a ten-dollar bill for the man who would get the piece of wood in question, as Secretary J. G. Blaine was reported to have rested his hand on it at the time when Rev. Burchard delivered the famous "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" speech.

THE WEEK.

THE volume of business was not as well distributed as during the past few weeks. Judging from the action of the market during the recent hot wave business, from a sales standpoint, will likely be dull and uninteresting during the next few ensuing months. Conditions are decidedly better for an active market than for over a year. Many weak holders have been shaken out and titles are in more stable hands.

It is natural that the market should be quiet at this time. Summer is at hand; the large investors are out of the city, besides being a Presidential election year, which in itself always upsets business conditions temporarily. This quietude, however, is more keenly felt coming as it does after a year when business was practically at a standstill.

Real estate men, as a general rule, are optimistic. If not, they will soon be driven out of the business. While some might be doubtful of any immediate rise in values, yet if questioned closely will admit that in the course of time the prices of to-day will appear ridiculously low.

When the change of feeling comes it will be almost instantaneous. It will have happened before people realize it. As an example, the statement issued by the Title Guarantee and Trust Co last week, in which it says: "The amount of money available for investment at present in moderate amounts is apparently very large and the number of those who want to borrow on their real estate is not sufficient to absorb the supply. * * * Mortgage money is at last available at a rate which makes real estate in New York City an investment yielding the return it rightfully should."

Six months ago the condition of the money market was apparently hopeless. It certainly seemed as though it would not right itself again. Yet what has the result been? In a half year the market has improved so much that it is almost unrecognizable. As an illustration there were all told 445 conveyances recorded in the Record and Guide last week for Manhattan and the Bronx, and last year there were a total number of 442 conveyances recorded for the week ending June 29 in these boroughs. This brings the actual amount of business consummated (in all branches) pretty well on a par.

There were but few sales of importance consummated, though the purchase by Paterno Bros. of four lots on the south side of 114th st, 100 feet west of Amsterdam av, is worthy of notice.

The purchasers are going to improve the plot with two 8-sty apartment houses, similar to the ones that they are erecting in West 116th st. The dwelling 12 East 65th st also changed hands. James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, is the purchaser. He is going to give his new purchase to his daughter. Mr. Hill owns the adjoining houses, Nos. 8 and 10. A 4½-sty American basement dwelling 229 West End av, 16x60x100, was also sold to an investor for occupancy. The present sellers have occupied the premises for some time past.

There was a fairly large number of sales reported in the Bronx, though in the main they were small parcels. This borough has an advantage at this time of year because it is in an outlying district, and shows to the best advantage during the summer months. Brokers are quick to realize this fact and do their utmost to take advantage of it.

Among the mortgages recorded was one affecting the property on the southwest corner of Park av and 57th st, 100.5x28. The St. Luke's Hospital loaned to Henry B. Anderson $110,000 at 5 per cent., due July 1, 1911. The Rosenthal Construction Co. borrowed from the Albany Savings Bank $90,000 for 5 years at 5 per cent., on the property 523 and 525 West 134th st. This loan was in the form of two mortgages, each of $45,000. The property consists of two lots, each 48x99.11. The Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Co. loaned to the Fifth Av. and 31st St. Co. $600,000 on the property 303 and 305 5th av, located on the northeast corner of 31st st, 56.9x150. It is a three year mortgage, from June 19, interest as per bond. This property was sold to the present holders by the City Investing Co. on May 27, 1907.

THE AUCTION MARKET

THE market was almost featureless. There was a smaller number of properties advertised for sale than for some time past, and those which were put up were not of special significance. The prices obtained during the past few months have discouraged property owners from offering their holdings in this mart at the present time. Only those who are compelled to sell through force of circumstances are doing so. Every means to get a postponement is resorted to, because it is realized there is no market at the present time.

One of the features of the situation has been the fact that private holders of property have been content to wait until times get a little brighter before selling. Many small mortgages, at high rates of interest, have been placed to tide over this trying period. A man with ready money can pick up some bargains in the salesroom at the present time. Properties are in many instances not bringing the amount of the mortgages placed on them two and three years ago. This does not mean that the value is not there, but simply that the owner of record is pressed for ready cash, and consequently must sacrifice his holdings.

All told there were thirty-five parcels advertised for the week. All of these were forced sales, and the prices obtained for those that found buyers were considered low. This market has not improved any. Many auctioneers are refusing to offer for sale properties that are not under foreclosure, as they know that the prices obtained will not be satisfactory to their clients.

On Monday there were three parcels advertised for sale at the stand of Joseph P. Day. Of these two were sold to the plaintiffs in the actions and one was adjourned to July 13. The first one offered was a vacant lot on the west side of Intervale av, 375 feet south of Home st, about 25x125. The amount due was $1,754.76; taxes and other charges amounting to $106.17. The second plot offered was on the south side of Home st, 91.8 feet west of Prospect av, 40.1x120.3x irregular. The amount due was $13,050.50. The best bid was $12,000 put in by the plaintiff. The third parcel was adjourned.

At the stand of L. J. Phillips & Co. on Tuesday the two properties 52 Washington st and 20 West st were adjourned to July 7. The sale of the vacant property, 100x114, located on the north side of 231st st, 205 feet east of Barnes av, which was to have been held by the referee, J. P. Morrissey, on the premises, was adjourned sine die.

WAINSCOTTING IN BEDROOMS.

Wood wainscottings grow in favor, and now are to be seen oftentimes in bed-rooms, as well as in dining-rooms. Sycamore, birdseye maple and birch, alternating with enameled woods, are most frequently seen. The Owners and Builders' Magazine describes several rooms so fitted:

One sleeping room so arranged is finished in birdseye maple, with a baseboard or wainscotting about 27 ins. wide, and a cornice and frieze 18 ins. deep, composed of this wood. One of the new-style nurseries is wainscotted with sycamore of a yellowish tint, to a depth of three ft., the space between the wainscotting and ceiling being broken half-way with a wide moulding of wood.

A dining room is wainscotted to within three ft. of the ceiling with chestnut wood of a drab, or putty color, the black-brown large grain of the wood showing up in a moiré antique effect, describing an inverted V. This effect was produced by piecing the panels down the centre and cutting the wood on the bias, matching the grain as perfectly where the halves joined as a dressmaker would match the stripes in a silk gown.

NEW JERSEY TO THE FRONT.

HUDSON COUNTY VISITED ON THE AUTOMOBILE INSPECTION TOUR UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE BOARD OF BROKERS

THE third automobile inspection trip of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, to show what New Jersey offers in the way of real estate opportunities, was made Wednesday, June 24, being held under the auspices of the Jersey City Real Estate Board, composed of the real estate interests of Hudson County under the energetic leadership of Frank Stevens, L. A. Ryer and a committee of thirty hustlers, who adopted as their slogan "Have you said Hudson County to the front!" And they surely did come to the front, establishing a lead it will be hard to beat for hospitality, good time, demonstration of bustle and activity and a most delightful and surprising trip.

FREEDOM OF CITY.

The freedom of the city was extended to the party by the Mayor. The police officers were instructed that it was as much as their positions were worth to interfere with the progress of the party. The lid was lifted off the speed limit. What was said to be the largest clock in the world, on top of the Colgate & Co., was visited, and as far as was learned no one had any difficulty in telling the time. A fine panoramic view of the city was obtained, and many interesting points were seen.

At eleven o'clock the automobiles, one hundred in number, carrying about five hundred real estate men, got under way, each man smoking the largest and blackest cigar in captivity, presented to him by the American Cigar Co. The route of parade first led through the manufacturing district of Jersey City, where some large warehouses were visited. At Lorillard's factory souvenirs in the shape of plugs of tobacco were distributed. At Dixon's samples of lead pencils were given out.

At the Jersey City Club the party was splendidly entertained. The building was thrown open and carte blanche given to the visitors. Luncheon was served here, and several speeches were made. The Greenville section was visited immediately after leaving the club; then the party went through Bayonne to Bergen Point, to Melville Park, to the North Hudson section, through Highwood Park, through Hoboken, where Castle Point, the Stevens mansion, was seen. The return to the city was made by way of the Hudson Tunnel. The day will long be remembered as most enjoyable, and Hudson County has shown with just pride the improvements she is making and the fine boulevards she is building.

GROWTH OF EXCHANGE.

The New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, now one year old, with a modest beginning, is becoming a strong and powerful factor for New Jersey, made up in membership of the best real estate operators, brokers and owners who have interests there. When new sections were being exploited and boomed that had no such advantages as New Jersey, and such prices asked in comparison, Mr. Edward Kenaley and F. W. Creighton, who had interests in New Jersey, thought it time to educate the people and give publicity to the honest superior advantages the State offered, particularly the metropolitan district, and by Mr. Creighton's personal efforts a meeting was arranged to consider the plan, this first meeting being held at the El Mora Land Co.'s office, at which Mr. Otto Kempner was invited to lend his valuable experience and assistance . Those present at this meeting were virtually the fathers of the organization, viz.: Mr. J. W. Doolittle, J. E. Grape, Wm. A. Lambert, B. J. Kline, Otto Kempner, Edward Kenaley and F. W. Creighton. Other very capable men joined the organization and have also been the means of materially aiding in its success, notably Joseph P. Day, Frank Stevens, E. H. Lambert and F. M. Welles.

"NEW JERSEY TO THE FRONT."

The Exchange is continually exploiting and pushing "New Jersey to the front" with telling effect, and is arranging this series of automobile tours under the auspices of certain sections, the first tour being of Paterson, which was a great success, managed by Mr. E. H. Lambert and L. A. Piaget; the second of Plainfield and towns along the Jersey Central Railroad to Elizabeth, where a grand section was shown; and the third "Hudson County."

There are more very interesting ones coming. In these inspection trips each becomes familiar with what the other is doing, creates good fellowship and broadens a man.

Ferry Co. Sold at Auction.

At the stand of Herbert A. Sherman, in the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange Salesroom, 189 Montague st, last Thursday, in the action of the Knickerbocker Trust Co. against the Brooklyn Ferry Co., was sold to W. O. Madden, as agent for the New York Terminal Co., all the ferries, franchises, water rights and grants, etc., of the Brooklyn Ferry Co. The amount due on this action was $6,774,132.25; taxes and other charges amounted to $1,000,000, subject to a judgment of $1,100,000. The amount realized was $25,000 over the incumbrances.

LAW DEPARTMENT

EARNS COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

As one of your subscribers I will ask you to kindly advise me your decision as to the following item:

A real estate broker has leased for an owner a store for a period of three years, having received his full commission on the entire lease.

After one year has elapsed a fire occurred, destroying the contents of said store, causing same to be vacant and to be re-occupied, for which the same broker has leased the said store to another party for the balance of the two years.

Is the said broker entitled to a commission from the owner on the said lease to the new party?

Your answer to the above will be greatly appreciated by

Respectfully yours,

BROKER.

Answer.—Yes. The broker is entitled to the commission.

RESISTERING TITLES.

AMENDMENT CONTEMPLATED.

In the issue of June 20 of the Record and Guide a suggestion of Mr. A. N. Gitterman, secretary of the Legislation Committee of the Board of Brokers, appeared that an amendment of the new Title Registration Law at the past and future sessions of the Legislature for compulsive legislation, for that is what a preliminary amendment to compel all large cities to register public holdings. The camel's head thrust within the tent! We should greatly deprecate such steps; the very contemplation of these before any special recognition on the part of the public of the new law and its bearings seems to us very premature. The American public can be led anywhere, but objects vigorously to being made to drink—except in Presidential convention assembled: and then but once in a while.

The brokers, the bar, the general land-holding public, we ourselves, and we venture to say the committee that framed the bill, to say nothing of the Legislature that passed it, are more or less in ignorance of the defects or possible too far-reaching effects of the law, even though no single person register a single lot under it to push extension, or do other than sit and think awhile over what has already been accomplished!

A single thought would prescribe going slow on the lines above contemplated. What if perchance all the holdings of cities throughout the State were so registered, and for some reason one or more of these holdings became a subject of attack, and a city become, with a large claim, the first in line on any moneys to come into the fund for the liquidation of the claim (Section 60), the fund being at the time exhausted, and all comers with claims upon it left to stand in line for its gradual filling up again? This query is somewhat academic, but it is a fact, and in possibility, if not probability, to be reckoned with. How many other points and features are yet to be revealed, by consideration, operation and court decision, no one is yet in position to fully determine.

The principle is a good one, the instrument, with some remediable defects, probably a fairly good one, but a too great precipitancy for operation and extension may turn the public immediately against its use.

LEGISLATIVE DIGEST.

SOME OF THE MORE IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED UPON DURING THE YEAR BY THE ALLIED REAL ESTATE INTERESTS.

Every Monday during the legislative session the Law Committee of the Allied Real Estate Interests has met and examined all bills introduced in the Legislature affecting real estate interests. The legal questions involved in these bills have been carefully considered, and a report on each such bill has been made by the Law Committee to the board of directors. The directors have reviewed the action of the Law Committee in reference to each legislative bill, and have instructed the executive officers of the association to take appropriate action in reference thereto.

In some instances the association has communicated by letter with the legislative committees having the various bills in charge, giving facts and arguments why such bills should pass or be defeated. In other instances, representatives of the association have gone to Albany and appeared in person before committees in reference to important bills.

The minutes of the Law Committee and of the Board of Directors in reference to each and every legislative bill examined are matters of permanent record.

BUILDING LOAN MONEY EASIER.

That a more cheerful spirit is prevalent among builders is evident by the fact that applications for building loans are more numerous. A few months ago all loans were immediately rejected, no matter what value was back of them. There simply was no money to be had for building purposes.

Conditions, however, have changed. Lenders will consider a desirable proposition at the present time, as was manifested by the number recorded during the past week. Upper New York came in for the major share. Washington Heights and the Bronx figuring in the largest and most important ones.

The City Mortgage Co. recorded eight loans of this character on last Wednesday to the following builders: Thomas D. Malcolm Construction Co., $36,000 on the property at the southeast corner of Belmont av and 179th st, 100x134.4; Martha Graham Construction Co., $30,000 on the property at the northeast corner of Southern Boulevard and Home st, 100x36.10; Kemp-Jones Realty Co., $36,000 on the property on the east side of Anderson av, 419.1 ft. north of Jerome av, 81x139; Beck St. Realty Co., $50,000 on the northeast corner of Beck and 156th sts, 100x100; Crystal Realty and Construction Co., $140,000 on the northeast corner of Broadway and 160th st, 99.11x100, and also to the same concern, $165,000 on the northwest corner of Broadway and 151st st, 99.11x150, and $280,000 on the block front on the east side of Broadway, between 160th and 161st sts, 200x100.

PERFECTING REALTY TITLES.

REGISTRATION OF TITLE TO REAL PROPERTY UNDER THE TORRENS LAW EXPLAINED.

THE real property of any country must always be at the foundation of its wealth. The greater the security of that property, and the easier its transfer, the better foundation it becomes. English speaking people have endured, too long, a degree of uncertainty as to realty titles, which ought to be removed as quickly as possible. Magnificent advances have been made in perfecting the security and ease of transfer of other forms of property rights, such as bonds, stocks and other collateral. The same can be done with real property. This is proved by the fact that it has been actually done in the German speaking countries and in London, England, with realty titles far older than our own, and in the whole of Australasia, with similar interests much younger than our own. The method of accomplishing this result, wherever it has been really successful, has been by the registration of titles, as distinguished from the American method of recording instruments of title.

This innovation—this registration of title as such—was introduced, before the present year, by statute, in Massachusetts, Illinois, Minnesota, Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington. As the result of considerable agitation in the State of New York, and pursuant to the work of a commission appointed by Governor Hughes under Chapter 628 of the Laws of 1907, a similar system is to take effect in this State as prescribed by Chapter 444 of the Laws of 1908. The operation of the last-named important statute, which, however good or bad it may prove to be, is certainly the outcome of a large amount of careful work, may be summarized as follows:

Anyone who is about to acquire a piece of real property has the title examined by an "official examiner," in the same way in which such work is done at the present time. The official examiner may be a lawyer or title company licensed by the court, in the manner to be prescribed by the Court of Appeals, to act in that capacity. The provisions for choosing these examiners may be similar to those for admitting applicants to practice as attorneys and counselors. This method of obtaining them, says the Commission, is recommended for three chief reasons. "The first of these is to avoid the appointment of a large number of officials by the court, which is required under some systems of registration; the second is to let the payment of fees be made between the examiner and the employer or land owner directly, and not from any public funds; and the third is to utilize the magnificent equipments of the title corporations in our large cities in procuring the registration of titles."

The official examiner, having ascertained the exact history and condition of the title, prepares a certificate thereof in substantially the form prescribed by the statute. He also has a survey made and certified by a competent surveyor. Up to this point no public official as such has been employed. The title may now pass in the ordinary way; and the possession of the land and any other dealings with it will be practically unaffected by subsequent proceedings for its registration.

Those proceedings are commenced by filing a complaint, the general form of which is prescribed by the statute, and the certificate already made by the examiner, and the survey, and a notice of the pendency of the proceedings. These papers go to the Supreme Court and are examined carefully by the court, and, if it appears that the plaintiff has a good title, the issuing and service of a summons and a notice of the object of the action (describing the property) are ordered by the court. The summons and notice are then served personally on all the defendants who do not voluntarily appear and can be served within the State; and on all other defendants they are served by publication or other form of substituted service, as carefully prescribed by the statute. The defendants are all persons ascertained to have any interest or right in or claim upon the property, and the owners of the adjoining properties, and the people of the State of New York, and "all other persons, if any, having any right or interest in or lien upon said property or any part thereof."

Thus all possible claimants are made parties to the proceeding, and so are given their "day in court." In the normal and ordinary case, the persons thus made defendants, and served as such, made no objection; and at the end of twenty days after service upon them is complete, judgment of registration is obtained. Pursuant to that judgment, the Registrar, who is a county official (the County Clerk or Register, as the case may be) enters upon a certificate, properly prepared and bound in a book, the name of the owner of the land, a statement of how and under what conditions he owns it, and a description of all mortgages and other liens, charges, rights and claims thereon. This certificate completely and accurately sets forth the title to the property. A duplicate certificate is delivered to the owner.

All subsequent transactions with the property so registered (except U. S. judgments and decrees, taxes and assessments, some easements, and leases for a year or less) must be noted on the certificate, in order to become effectual. All transfers, mortgages, leases, judgments, mechanic's liens and all other liens, charges and encumbrances (except the few above specified) as they may arise against the property, are thus required to appear upon the certificate, which thereby is kept a constant and accurate record of the title. The judgment of the court has made this certificate conclusive evidence in favor of any one who, after it is duly made, is an innocent purchaser or encumbrancer of the property for value and in good faith. The certificate also becomes conclusive evidence of the owner's title, though retained by him, at the end of six months after the judgment is entered, unless such owner was guilty of fraud in obtaining the certificate. A certificate obtained by fraud is voidable against the fraudulent taker, and those who take the property with notice or without paying value, for ten years after the registration.

The net result is that he who holds property, the title to which is evidenced by a certificate of registration, may sell it, or borrow money on it, without the necessity of having the title re-examined by or for the vendee or mortgagee. The latter relies on the official certificate, and so avoids the delay and expense of a long examination. And this desirable result has been brought about through one expeditious and comparatively inexpensive court proceeding. No large body of officials, appointed by the court or paid by the State, and no complicated machinery have been required. The title is fixed and settled, and must remain so, since subsequent transactions affecting it must appear on the official certificate of registration.

The advantages of such a system readily appear in considering the position of a land owner who may be called on to raise money quickly and cheaply with his land as security. Instead of having to wait for the present slow process of examination of his title, he can use his certificate as evidence of his title, and borrow money on bond and mortgage within a few hours. Such transactions are taking place in Massachusetts, in hundreds of savings banks, at the present time. It needs no extended argument to commend such registration to the average business man. His real property may never become as fully and quickly available as an asset as are government bonds or certificates of stock; but it is made much more nearly so, and therefore much more valuable and important to him by the registration of its title.

This new law of New York, in addition to aiming like all statutes for registration of titles at ultimate quick and inexpensive transfer, has a number of features peculiar to it, which are regarded by its framers as particularly important. Prominent among these are the following:

(1) Its operation is purely voluntary, and it calls for no expense on the part of the public, except in so far as it is put into practical use in the registration of titles. Thus, it can do no harm to any part of the State where its use may not be desired. Yet it is believed to embody sufficient inducements to the average owner of real property, especially in the great cities, to cause it to be effectually though gradually adopted as a practical working system of dealing with titles.

(2) Unlike other registration laws, this statute provides for official examiners, who are not to be paid by the State, and the appointment of whom is to afford no opportunity for patronage. They are to be licensed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, pursuant to rules to be prescribed by the Court of Appeals; but their work is to be for the land owner and their payment is to come directly from him. Around these official examiners, however, are thrown the very effective safeguards of the requirement of an absolute ten years' guarantee when the work is done by a title insurance company, and by declaring that a false certificate or statement intentionally made by an individual examiner shall be a felony, punishable by a fine of five thousand dollars, or five years' imprisonment, or both.

(3) By requiring an accurate and verified survey for each piece of property registered, the statute provides for the gradual settlement of the questions of boundaries which cause so much trouble in conveyancing at the present time. The judgment of the court, based on the survey and made in an action to which the owners of the adjoining lands are parties, fixes the boundaries of each piece of land as it is registered, and when an adjacent lot is registered its survey must be made to harmonize with that of the previously registered parcel. Thus, without material public expense, one of the most fruitful causes of litigation in connection with real property should be gradually removed.

(4) The difficulties, real or fancied, which have been said to be found in registration statutes because of the apprehension that one man may register as his own the land of another, are minimized in this law by a provision for the filing and proper indexing of a cautionary notice by any land owner, in such manner that he must be made a party to proceedings by any other person for the registration of the land.

Careful work will now be required to prepare for the successful operation of the new law. As it is tested by actual experience, its defects should soon become manifest; and it may be that to supply the remedies, which experience will suggest for those defects, may lead to very radical changes. It is confidently expected, however, that this innovation as a system, like many other statutory reforms in which New York has taken the lead, has come to stay and to be a permanent benefit to the State.

ALFRED G. REEVES.

OFFICE BUILDING ON HOTEL SITE.

The Everett House, on the northwest corner of 4th av and 17th st, has closed its doors. This is the third hostelry well known to New Yorkers that has met a similar fate within the past few months. The decision was rather sudden. The restaurant attached to the hotel went into the hands of a receiver a few days ago, and undoubtedly this hastened the end.

None of the guests had any idea of what was going to happen until they came downstairs last Monday morning and saw a notice posted in a conspicuous space announcing the fact that the house would be closed at 8 p. m. that evening.

The Everett House is one of the oldest hotels of its kind in the city. It opened its doors in 1854 and took its name from Edward Everett. In its time it has housed many notables, the most prominent of whom was King Edward VII., then the Prince of Wales. His quarters on the third floor have ever since been known as the "Prince's Suite."

The Century Realty Co., the owners of the property, are going to demolish the structure and erect in its place a 20-sty office building. With the passing of this old hotel goes another of old Manhattan's landmarks.

REPORTED SALE PREMATURE.

There was a report current during the week that the Hotel Saranac, formerly the Rossmore, had been sold at private sale. This property is owned by the New Amsterdam Bank and was put up at auction last November but bid in by a Mr. Simpson, a representative of the bank at $919,000. It was understood at the time that the Coe estate, the owners of the Hotel Metropole adjoining, bid $918,000, but refused to go any higher. They are the reported purchasers in this present rumor.

Another one of the rumors afloat was that a Philadelphia syndicate, headed by Felix Isman, was after the property. As the matter stands to-day, no contract has been signed, though the property is in the market for sale. It has a frontage of 92 ft. on Broadway, 89 ft. on 7th av, a north line of 99.11 ft. and a south line of 124.7½ ft.

Thomas Morrissy, sole owner of the business conducted under the name of Callahan & Morrissy, signed leases with the Rhinelander Real Estate Co. and Benjamin Ogden Chisholm, by which that firm will continue its occupancy of its present store at 48 to 50 West 14th st, running through to 13th st, and will also secure 4 additional 6-sty buildings, known as 47 to 53 West 13th st. The leases are for a term of 15 years. This transaction is regarded as a further indication of the strength of 14th st as a retail dry goods centre.

Huberth & Gabel, in conjunction with Horace S. Ely & Company, sub-leased for J. F. Rooney, and leased for the Haven Estate, the 3-sty high stoop house, 103 East 19th st, to the Rev. Alexander Irvine.

Hotel Normandie Leased.

Horace S. Ely & Co., in conjunction with Francis B. Robert, leased for the United States Trust Co., as trustee, the property at the southeast cor of Broadway and 38th st, for many years known as the Hotel Normandie. The property has a frontage on Broadway of about 78 feet and on 38th st of about 120 feet. The lease is for 21 years at a net rental said to amount to about $750,000 for the entire term. It is understood that the new tenant, whose identity is not disclosed, will convert the old hotel into a store and office structure. Several months ago there was reported a lease of the property to Henry Corn, but this transaction apparently was not consummated. The Normandie is owned by the heirs of Joseph Fisher, who built the hotel about 25 years ago.

SUBURBAN.

UNCLASSIFIED SALES.

The total number of sales reported is 57, of which 5 were below 59th st, 19 above, and 33 in the Bronx. The sales reported for the corresponding week last year were 91, of which 21 were below 59th st, 45 above, and 25 in the Bronx.

The total number of mortgages recorded for Manhattan this week were 169, as against 169 last week, and in the Bronx 389, as against 248 last week. The total amount involved is $5,236,179, as against $8,334,790 last week.

The amount involved in the auction sales this week was $8,736,037, and since January 1, $33,577,640. Last year the total for the sweek was $818,753, and from January 1, $26,506,850.

148TH ST.—Renton-Moore Co. sold for Christian Roeser the 3-sty and basement, high stoop Indiana limestone dwelling with 1-sty extension, 455 West 148th st, 18.6x99.11. The building is built to a depth of 52 feet.

116TH ST.—Slawson and Hobbs sold for Paterno Bros., incorporated, to Victor M. Earle the 12-sty fireproof high-class apartment house 606 West 116th st, 75x100. This building is being built by the sellers and is nearing completion. It is known as the Broadview and will be held as an investment. It is opposite the new Barnard building and grounds. Adjoining the Broadview is another 10-sty apartment house, also built by the Paternos, and not yet sold. The same firm owns several other parcels in this block, which will be the direct approach to the new Columbia stadium, and is one of the handsomest broad streets in the city. The Paterno firm owns the entire westerly half of the north side of the block, between Riverside Drive and Claremont av, and on this site, which faces a broad curving plaza at each corner, will erect next year a monumental building of the highest class. They have also improved the entire south side of the block, except the corners.

PREPARE FOR TAX PAYMENTS.

At this time of year many owners of realty are looking forward with no little amount of discomfort to the time when the yearly taxes come due. As a general thing suitable provision is not made for this charge in advance. It is, however, an expense that must be met. It is a wise move on the part of the property owner to meet it promptly when due.

The professional speculator meets this bill in a different spirit from that of the investor. He assumes the attitude that it must of course be paid, but he is not going to meet the obligation if he can possibly avoid it. Naturally he must pay the city the amount demanded, but he figures that it will be returned to him, with good interest, the moment he disposes of the property. The amount of the taxes, when paid, is immediately charged up against the cost of the property, and an equivalent sum must be added to the purchase price. On the other hand, when a speculator purchases realty he tries his best to get the date of taking title put off until after the taxes become a lien, then they must be paid by the seller.

The investor, on the other hand, rarely gives the question any consideration until the time for actual payment is close at hand. As soon as he receives his receipt from the city he assumes the attitude that the next bill will not be presented for a year to come and will take care of itself. The year following he is in the same fix again. When he comes to dispose of his holding the details are not gone into until the date of closing, and, as a rule, there is experienced some disappointment because he is not receiving actually as much cash as he anticipated.

THIS PLAN WORKS.

A man who has owned considerable property in this city for some years adopts the following plan: He lays away monthly a fixed amount to meet his tax bills when they are due. In addition to this, he puts aside ten per cent of the gross rents for repairs and other charges. There are a number of things that must be replaced from time to time, and the money to pay for them must, or should, come from the rents. For example, in an apartment house, the halls must be decorated every so often; new carpets put down on the stairs; steam plant repaired; dumbwaiter ropes replaced and a hundred and one other little things attended to, all of which take money. This fund is deposited in a separate account and is not interfered with except for the specific purposes for which it is intended.

By following out this system, the owner is able to meet his taxes promptly, and receive the benefit of the discount allowed, and get all the prompt attention that a cash customer is entitled to. At the end of the twelve months should any surplus exist a dividend can be declared. This plan is particularly desirable in the case of an estate, where there is more than one person interested in a given property. Much discomfort has frequently been encountered, because one, or more, of the owners was not ready to meet his obligations. A considerable amount of worry will be saved the owner of property if this, or a similar, system be adopted.

DAMAGING POWER OF BILL BOARDS.

It has frequently been maintained by real estate authorities that the multiplication of large bill boards is doing more to hinder the natural growth in property values than is generally suspected. While at present no reliable figures are at hand to bear out the contention in this direction, it is conceded that drastic action should be taken at once by property owners looking toward a better regulation, if not the complete abolishment of a nuisance so threatening.

Much good work is being accomplished in the suppression of bill board advertising by the American Civic Association, whose aim at this moment is to arouse the public in an attempt to check the spread of the evil.

It has well been said that beauty, speaking in a commercial sense, is a valuable asset. Therefore anything which is destructive to the views of buildings and their surroundings tends to exert an equally depressing influence on the value of real estate.

In this connection a leading publication points out that there is no longer any question in the minds of thoughtful observers that unrestrained outdoor advertising is incompatible with attractive city conditions, and that public authorities are beginning to appreciate that not only are billboards detrimental to the physical beauty of the community, but likewise inimical to health and injurious to property values.

The bill boards should go, and the sooner the better.

IMPROVE YOUR LOTS NOW.—The lower cost of building is likely to bring about increased construction by early fall. With a quickening in this direction higher prices for material and labor will surely follow, therefore property owners who contemplate improving their holdings should take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the present stagnation and close their contracts for building now.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Harris & Co. were the brokers in the exchange of 127 West 131st st for 404 West 46th st, which appears in the conveyances this week.

Felix Isman transferred to Felix Isman, a corporation, the Stewart Building, on the northeast corner of Broadway and Chambers st.

Harris & Co., composed of Sidney A. Harris and Sol Cohn, real estate brokers, have removed their offices to 304 West 145th st, near 8th av, where they will conduct a general real estate business.

A building loan for $31,500 was received on the property located on the east side of Prospect av, 400 ft. north of 187th st, 95x irregular. Solomon C. Powell is the lender and George C. and Clara H. Turner the borrowers.

Frederick Fox & Co. have been appointed renting agents of the new 11-sty office and store building 11 West 17th st, which is being built by Otto J. Strack for Mr. Edward W. Browning. It will be completed early in the fall.

The last meeting of the season of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association was held last night at Corrigan Hall, Broadway and 157th st. Matters desired to be dealt with during the summer were brought up at this meeting.

A lis pendens was filed on the property at the southeast corner of Broadway and Howard st, 52x100, as a result of the beginning of foreclosure proceedings by the Mutual Life Insurance Co. against L. Bradford Prince and others.

As soon as the nominees at the Republican convention were announced, activity was noticed in the building loan business. A number of important loans were made at 4½ per cent. during the week. Undoubtedly this will give courage to builders to begin operations.

A mortgage for $150,000 was secured by the New York Club from the Bowery Savings Bank on the property 18 to 22 West 40th st, 54x98.9. The structure is 9-stys in height, the front being of brick trimmed with limestone and terra cotta. The structure, according to the plans filed, was to cost $300,000.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Edgar Bronk, proprietor of the Hotel Narragansett, Broadway and 93d st. Elbert B. Hamlin has been appointed receiver under bond of $5,000. Mr. Bronk has been connected with this apartment hotel since Dec. 1, 1906. Competition and high prices are said to have been the cause of the present difficulty.

A mechanic's lien for $114,269.42 was filed against the Goelet garage, on the northeast corner of Broadway and 64th st. The property is owned by Robert Goelet. A concrete garage has been in the course of construction for a couple of years. The lien as in favor of the General Supply and Construction Co. on a claim for materials, labor, steel, etc. Rose & Putzel are the attorneys for the lienor. The claim is said to be disputed.

In last week's issue the reported sale of the block front on the east side of 5th av, between 37th and 38th sts, was denied. It is understood on excellent authority that the deal will shortly be consummated, Marshall, Field & Co., of Chicago, being the purchasers. Plans are being drawn at the present time. This dry goods firm some few years ago opened negotiations for the Metropolitan Opera House site, Broadway and 39th st, but were unable to come to any satisfactory conclusion. Since they have purchased property on 5th av and 31st st.

Among the leases recorded during the week were the following: 164 5th av, the estate of Margaret Budd to William M. Hepburn for ten years from May 1, 1908, at an annual rental of from $5,500 to $7,500; 1158 Broadway, on the northeast corner of 27th st, including No. 17 West, Christian Hanfeld, Jr., and another, executors of Christian Hanfeld to John H. O'Brien, for 5 years, from May 1, 1907, at $18,000 a year; 90 Cannon st, for 9 years and 10 months, from July 1, 1908, Isaac Goldblatt to Meyer Silverstein at an annual rental of $3,600, and 1108 3d av, Michael J. Jennings to Frank J. Gannon for a term of 4 years and 10 months, from July 1, 1908, with a 5 years' renewal for $4,800 a year.

WANT SUPPORT FROM TAXPAYERS.

The Membership Committee of the East Tremont Taxpayers' Association is exerting strenuous efforts in an attempt to increase the membership of that organization. In its appeal to the property owners in the eastern Bronx to combine with the association the committee is distributing printed arguments by which it expects to arouse the interest of a large number of taxpayers.

In part the circular says that every person owning real estate, or a mortgage, should be interested in a taxpayers' association, that the mutual benefits derived by combining are manifold for tenants as well as owners, and that things that would be impossible for an individual to do can be accomplished by organization.

The East Tremont Taxpayers' Association meets every fourth Friday in the month. The organization seeks members in the district bounded by Bronx River on the east, 3d av on the west, Bronx Park and Pelham Parkway on the north, and Crotona Park on the south.

The Committee on Membership consists of Chas. A. Schrag, F. J. Muhlfeld and John A. Steinmetz.

THE VACUUM CLEANER.

AN APPROVED METHOD OF SANITARY CLEANING.

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness," and the sanitary conditions under which people have been content to live are a measure of the progress of civilization throughout the world.

The development of vacuum cleaning systems constitutes one of the most interesting chapters in the history of sanitary science. The old method of sweeping and dusting was both unsanitary and ineffective, since the dust was merely disturbed from one part of a room and immediately settled down in another, and it was due largely to the attention directed by the medical profession to the dangers arising from dust germs, that the vacuum or suction system was invented.

Vacuum cleaning for the interiors of buildings of all kinds has now passed the experimental stage, and is being daily practised in office buildings, hospitals, theatres, hotels and private houses with excellent results. To such an extent is the system used that architects now include vacuum cleaning in their specifications on every important building as a matter of course.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATION.

For the benefit of those who are unacquainted with the principles of operation, it may be stated briefly that a pump or other apparatus is used to produce a more or less high degree of vacuum, the apparatus being connected by means of fixed piping and portable flexible hose with specially designed renovators or cleaning implements. These are applied to the floors, walls and furniture of the various rooms to be cleaned, and the dust and dirt are noiselessly and quickly sucked up and carried off to separating tanks, or better still, are discharged automatically into the sewer.

The effectiveness of a dry cleaning plant depends largely on powerful suction, especially in the case of carpets and other heavy fabrics where dust has been trodden into the texture or become firmly embedded, hence a pump of the positive displacement type is now generally used to produce the vacuum although fairly successful results have been obtained on the rotary exhauster and on the steam ejector principles.

POPULARITY ATTAINED.

The popularity which vacuum cleaning has already attained, although a new branch of applied science, is evidence enough of the excellence of the work being done. In hospitals, where the dangers of dust are more fully appreciated and its noiseless removal is so essential, the sytem has been welcomed; in theatres and car shed it is being used for the cleaning of cushioned seats, an operation which, until the introduction of this process, could never be properly performed. In hotels and private houses the carpets, bare floors, walls, upholstery, as welt as mattresses and bed furniture, are cleaned by this means, and the life of carpets is thereby greatly prolonged, for it is an established fact that the wearing out of a carpet is caused by fine particles of grit which are trodden upon and ground in until they cut the pile and eventually destroy the material.

An important and far-reaching development of the principle under consideration is the wet scrubbing and drying by vacuum of marble, mosaic and tiled floors. For this purpose a separate water supply is laid on throughout the building and connected to the vacuum outlets and water is conveyed through flexible hose to the floor . Special scrubbers or floor mops are used, the scrub water being sucked up through the vacuum hose, and the floor left clean and dry. This is a great labor saving appliance and is especially applicable to large floor areas.

DISTINCT ADVANTAGE.

In further explanation of the working of the scrubbing system, it should be mentioned that the scrub water is sucked up off the floor and after being conveyed through the air line is passed through the pump or discharged direct into the sewer; no handling whatever is required, and thus a distinct advance has been made on the older system of emptying the separating tanks after each operation.

The accompanying illustration shows this system in operation at the Silversmiths' Building, New York City, the apparatus having been recently installed by the Vacuum Engineering Co., 114 Liberty st, who are among the pioneers in the development of this branch of vacuum cleaning. The same firm has also carried out successful installations of combined dry cleaning and scrubbing at the Washington Terminal Station, Washington, D. C., and at other important buildings.

UNCERTAINTY IN COMPETITIVE BIDDING.

In a paper read by Geo. C. Nimmons at the yearly gathering of the Estimators' Club at Chicago relating to the evil effects of competition in building the author touches on the subject of risks in signing contracts. He says:

The undue financial risk and hazard connected with signing the average building contract are harmful influences which make themselves felt all through the operation of erecting a building. Of course, it is not denied that there is risk or chance in every business transaction. Risk cannot be done away with in building contracts, but it is very evident from the results of our methods of letting contracts and from the great difference in the amounts of the bids, that an undue amount of risk is taken with the average building contract. The contractors themselves do not agree with any accuracy as to what the cost of a building is. The bids often vary several times the amount of the contractor's profit. They know that they do not know, and the minute a contractor signs a contract for an imporant building, he assumes a responsibility far greater than the merchant or manufacturer does in his business. I believe the risk of a contractor for financial loss is far greater than was ever intended by the genius who first said "competition is the life of trade."

The statement in this respect is clear and the facts are uncontrovertible. Not only does the contractor often suffer through uncertainty in such matters, but the owner not infrequently assumes a risk equally as great.

If you intend improving your property look well to the responsibility of your contractor, thereby precluding the possibility of serious inconvenience and loss by errors that are likely to occur through competitive figuring.

WANT THROUGH CARS TO SUBWAY.—The Taxpayers' Alliance have requested the Public Service Commission to have the Sedgwick ave trolley cars cross 3d av at 177th st, and run through to the Subway at West Farms. If the efforts in this direction meet with success it is believed that property interests in Morris Heights will be considerably benefited thereby. Under present conditions passengers are compelled to transfer at 3d av in order to continue their journey east of that thoroughfare.

—In a former paragraph we told the mortgage broker how he could easily and economically follow up the expiration of mortgages by the use of the Record and Guide Quarterly. Of course the mortgagor may not be the owner of the property at expiration of the mortgage, and it is the owner who should be approached. This is given by the Real Estate Directory, and should be invariably used.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller make no expressed covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:484—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

June 19, 20, 22, 23, 24 and 25.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of Judgments the names alphabetically arranged and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) Signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column, but in list of Satisfied Judgments.
The Judgments filed against corporations, etc., will be found at the end of the list.

June.

DON'T GUESS

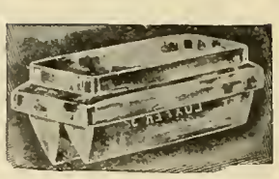
A Real Estate Information Service is as necessary in a Real Estate Broker's office as the ticker in the office of a Stock Broker.

A personally maintained Service is inefficient and inordinately Expensive compared with a Big Central Co-operative Service. The Biggest Service is the best, because the advantages of Co-operation are centered there on the biggest Scale.

The RECORD & GUIDE to-day supplies thousands of Brokers and others with information—has been doing so for a generation. Its own records cover the history of ALL transactions of every kind in New York for forty years, and in addition to these it has a COMPLETE PLANT that includes the previous period.

Obviously, the RECORD & GUIDE possesses FULL information covering ALL particulars concerning real estate. Other systems are necessarily either partial or mere second-hand abstracts of the records which the RECORD & GUIDE has been gathering and publishing in the course of its forty years' history.

If you need Real Estate Information don't guess. Don't use personal Systems. Don't use partial Systems. Don't use temporary Systems that must be fragmentary and Second-hand. Don't use Systems built for the use of a Few, and that offer you scarcely any of the advantages of co-operation.



USE THE RECORD & GUIDE BUREAU OF REAL ESTATE INFORMATION. The oldest, the largest, the most permanent, the best equipped—a Service that can serve you TO-DAY and TO-MORROW on a progressive plan.
